HUGHES SENATE FOES INCREASE FORCES TO MORE THAN 25 VOTES

New Recruits Expected Today by Opponents of Nomination.

WATSON REDOUBLES EFFORTS FOR BALLOT

Democratic Jibes Heard When He Threatens Night Session.

GLENN VIGOROUSLY DEFENDS SELECTION

Brookhart, of Opposition, Asserts Court's Present Alignment Is Good.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The opposition to Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice had garnered between 25 and 30 votes in the Senate yesterday and entertained high hopes of having 35 today.

In the meantime, Senator Watson, Republican leader, pressed particularly by the Young Turks, redoubled his efforts to get a vote and put out the fire before its spreads too far.

He threatened a night session last night and was dissuaded only by the warning of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, that he would have to take the consequences of trying to shut off debate, the expressed opinion of both Senator Norris and Senator Borah that a vote would come today, and undoubtedly, to some extent, by the taunts by the Democrats that he did not have the votes to force a night session.

Specific Time Effort Fails.

He failed in an effort to get a unanimous-consent agreement to vote at a specifiedd time today, Senator Borah objecting, and then when the latter said he had no objection to agreeing to vote before adjournment today without setting a time, Senator Bratton, of New Mexico, objected.

Finally he moved for a recess until 11 o'clock this morning "with the distinct understanding that we will vote before we adjourn today."

"You mean if you've got the votes (to force a night session tonight)," Senator Smith, of South Carolina, shouted.

"We have the votes all right, make no mistake about that," Watson retorted.

"Then why don't you demand a vote now?" Senator Glass, of Virginia, challenged.

Laughter at Tariff Mention.

Senator Watson insisted he had no desire to curtail debate but that he was very "anxious to get back to the tariff." The senators laughed, and Senator Glass contended that inasmuch as three hours had been spent on the question of "lowering the tariff on starch three-sixteenths of a cent" he saw no reason why there should be haste "on the most important matter that will come before this body at this session."

The point is that delay is assisting the opposition. From smoldering smoke in the Progressive camp, a serious blaze has burst forth and is developing as the time goes on.

Senators Brookhart, Wheeler, Connally and Dill attacked the nominee yesterday and Senator Glenn, of Illinois, made a vigorous defense.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, said he intends to vote for Mr. Hughes because he considers him eminently qualified for the place, but that he is worried about his views on public utility matters. But he

Man Leaps in Path Of Autos; Arrested

Gallinger Gets Grimms, Who Made It Harder for Drivers.

George P. Grimms, 36 years old, tried to make it harder for autoists last night by jumping in front of cars at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

After telling Vick Gazie, proprietor of a tire shop at 3030 Eighth street southeast, of his intentions, Grimms walked into the street, picked out a car and jumped. But the driver was too quick for him.

Undiscouraged, Grimms eyed another car, operated by Miss Elinore Erwin Lee, 36 years old, of 1400 M street northwest, and containing also Miss Estelle Beinlich, of 1923 Sixteenth street southeast. Again he jumped, this time with more success. For, though the driver turned the wheel, the side of the auto struck Grimms down.

Second Precinct Policeman W. P. Als arrested Grimms for drunkenness and then sent him to Casualty Hospital, where a deep gash was found on his head. Grimms was later transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

Huston to Be Witness In Shoals Lobby Quiz

Calling G. O. P. Chief Appears Inevitable, Caraway Says.

(Associated Press.)

Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, probably will be called before the Senate lobby committee during its investigation into the activities of persons interested in Muscle Shoals legislation.

This was announced yesterday by Chairman Caraway, of the committee, who expressed the opinion that it was "inevitable" that Mr. Huston would be asked to testify concerning the activities of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, which has advocated the offers of Henry Ford and the American Cyanamid Company to acquire the power and nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals.

Mr. Huston resigned as president of the association a short time before he became chairman of the Republican national committee a few months ago.

Mr. Caraway's announcement was made after a letter written by Mr.

CLAUDIUS H. HUSTON.

Huston and sent to members of Congress last April had been placed in the record of the lobby committee. The letter, issued in the form of a pamphlet, was described as advocat-

SIR ESME RECEIVES DOCTORATE AT G. U.

80 DIPLOMATS ATTEND

Sir Esme Howard, retiring British Ambassador to the United States, was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws by Georgetown University last night at a special convocation commemorating the 121st birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln and the 100th anniversary of the founding of Georgetown's Philodemic Society.

Before a distinguished gathering which included 23 ambassadors and ministers of foreign nations, 57 other members of the Diplomatic Corps, prominent Catholic dignitaries, educators and invited guests, the Rev. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of the university, presented Sir Esme with the degree for his conspicuous service in promoting "peace and concord" between his fatherland and the United States.

Dr. Nevils read the citation of the degree in Latin while the dean of the Diplomatic Corps responded with a short address, also in Latin.

Sir Esme said in part:

"I am glad to take this occasion to tell you that it has always been in my heart and mind to foster the friendship between America and England, and I have constantly hoped that this friendship may ever flourish. During my six years here I have seen these bonds strengthened, and when I am in my home in England I shall give thanks that they have been preserved and strengthened."

An incident in connection with the celebration of the Philodemic Society was the reading of a message from Senator George Casimir Dessaulles of Canada, 103 years old, oldest graduate of Georgetown and of the soci-

GARMENT STRIKE IN NEW YORK ENDS

Employers and Union Sign Contracts as 29,000 Prepare to Resume Work.

NO PAY RISE IS PROVIDED

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Employers' and employes' organizations in the New York garment industry tonight signed agreements officially ending a strike which for nine days has paralyzed the industry.

The signing of the agreements means that 22,000 strikers employed in shops affiliated with the various employers' groups will go back to work as soon as arrangements can be made to reemploy them. All are expected to be on the job by the first of next week. Seven thousand others workers who were employed in independent shops will return as soon as separate agreement with their employers can be signed. Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman acted as mediator of the dispute.

The contracts were signed for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union by Benjamin Schlesinger, president. Acting for the employers were Louis Schwartz, president of the Affiliated Dress Manufacturers, the "inside manufacturers;" Jed Sylbert, president of the Association of Dress Manufacturers, the contractors' organization, and Samuel R. Parens, head of the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers Association, the jobbers' group.

The jobbers and contractors, who who have been at loggerheads on one point throughout the strike, were unable to agree until today. The point at issue was the proposal of the contractors that jobbers confine all their orders to manufacturers who who are members of the contractors' organization. The jobbers agreed to do this for three months, after which another settlement will be made. In

Loss of Dougherty's Hat May Cut Envoy Guest List

District Chief Misses Headgear After Reception and Learns That 200 "Gate Crashers" Attended Fete, With Result That Check-Up Is Ordered.

When Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty left the reception given by the German Ambassador at the German Embassy the other day he took some one's hat by mistake, and has been trying ever since to locate the owner and swap hats once more. But neither the German Embassy staff, the embassy's guest list nor the telephone directory so far has been of any help.

The Commissioner did not discover that he had taken another's hat until he was a considerable distance from the embassy. The hat he took looked a good deal like his own new hat and fitted him, and he thought he would have an easy time returning it to the owner because it had three initials stamped through the inner band.

Embassy officials, however, reported that their guest list contained no name which would fit the initials, and they confided, too, that a check-up of the number of persons who attended the ambassador's reception showed that about 200 more persons attended than had been invited.

Ralph Norton, secretary of the Commissioner, asked the shop where the hat was purchased to check over their list of customers and see if the identity of the owner of the "borrowed" hat could be located. But that, too, failed, for none of the names on the shop's lists fitted the initials.

Nineteen persons were found in the telephone directory whose names fitted the initials and Mr. Norton started to telephone each of these to see if he were the owner of the hat Mr. Dougherty wants to give back in return for his own.

But fourteen of the 19 said "no." The other five had not been reached for one reason or another when the

CITIZEN GROUPS LAY PLANS FOR WAR ON CROSBY

Court Decisions Compiled in Fight on Selection as Commissioner.

Leaders Issue Call for Another Conference Next Week.

ACT OF CONGRESS IS CITED BY DARR

Three Organizations Have Not Given Opinion on Military Man.

Representatives of leading civic organizations of the city emerged from an executive conference at the Board of Trade headquarters yesterday afternoon with the announcement that they will meet again next week to consider President Hoover's appointment of Maj. Gen. Herbert B Crosby as a District Commissioner after all the organizations, represented at the meeting, have expressed themselves on the issue.

An accomplishment of yesterday's meeting was the compilation of a number of decisions on the question of retired Army men.

These cases were compiled by Charles W. Darr, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce. These legal arguments are expected to form a powerful instrument in the fight against the appointment of Gen. Crosby.

Murphy Calls Meeting.

The conference yesterday was called by E. J. Murphy, president of the Washington Board of Trade. It was attended by John B. Colpoys, editor of the Trade Unionist, representing the Central Labor Union; Mark Lansburg and Edward D. Shaw, representing the Merchants and Manufacturers Association; B. A. Levitan, president of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association; H. Mason Welsh, counselor of the same association; Charles Ray, representing the Brightwood Citizens Association; Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; George Plitt, first vice president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dorsey Hyde, executive secretary of the chamber; Mr. Darr, president; Mr. Murphy and Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Board of Trade.

Of the organizations represented at the meeting, three have not yet expressed themselves on the selection of Gen. Crosby. They are the Federation of Citizens Associations, Merchants and Manufacturers Association and the Central Labor Union. These three organizations have opposed the Jones bill, which is designed to liberalize the residential requirements of

TONNAGE NEED OF BIG FIVE IS NOW FORESEEN

French Claim Is Reported to Total 724,000 at Present.

JAPANESE DEMAND 70 PER CENT RATIO

Admiralty Lord Declares Rodney Will Not Be Scrapped.

OFFICIAL RESPONDS TO COMMONS QUERY

British "No-Ship" Tone Project Meets With Disfavor Among Delegates.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Feb. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The New York World News Service is able to give tonight approximately accurate summaries of statements as to naval needs to be issued tomorrow by the French delegation and by the Japanese delegation for publication Friday.

France will claim 724,000 tons gross tonnage in the year 1936.

The Japanese note, it is understood from a Japanese source, will demand a 70 per cent ratio of total American tonnage. Inside this global figure Japan will demand a 70 per cent ratio of America's 10,000-ton, 8-inch cruisers and her present submarine tonnage of 78,000 tons. This would leave Japan with less than a 70 per cent ratio in destroyers and small cruisers.

British, U. S. Figures Known.

Since the British and American tonnage figures are already announced, and Italy claims parity with France, when the Japanese and French programs are issued the London naval conference for the first time will be at grips with its supreme problems.

On the eve of the issuance of the French and Japanese programs America's wonder battleship disappeared into the gathering haze today after Premier MacDonald and First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander had told the chief American delegates yesterday Great Britain could not agree to it. Technically, the American claim to the right to build this ship remains. In fact, the attitude in American circles indicates the so-called "eHnry L. Stimson' has faded into the category of ghost ships.

Mr. Alexander has informed the House of Commons that there was no question of Great Britain's scrapping of the Rodney or any other of her latest battleships.

French Line-up Cited.

The New York World News Service is able for the first time to indicate how Premier Andre Tardieu proposes to divide up the French fleet of 724,000 tons into categories and the

Connie Mack Winner Of $10,000 Bok Prize

Has Done Most for His City in Last Year, Committee Finds.

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Cornelius McGillicudy, better known throughout the country as Connie Mack, manager of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics, tonight received the $10,000 Edward W. Bok award for 1929 for "having rendered the most outstanding service to Philadelphia" during the year. The award, in the form of a check, was accompanied by a medal and scroll.

The presentation was made privately tonight after a dinner at a downtown hotel attended by the Bok award committee and a number of prominent citizens. In other years the presentation was made a public affair, but the usual exercises were dispensed with this year because of the recent death of Mr. Bok.

Charles E. Fox, former district attorney, made a brief presentation speech, in which he praised Mack for his long directorship of the Athletics, his clean sportsmanship and the attention he had attracted to Philadelphia in winning league pennants and the world series.

Mack, who had been in Florida until yesterday, was accompanied to the dinner by his son, Connie, jr., but none of the baseball warriors who carried him to his fourth world series championship last year was present. However, in acknowledging the award, the 67-year-old leader of the champions spoke of them inevitably—Simmons and Foxx and Haas and Miller, Cochrane, Grove and the rest—as coinheritors of his honor.

It was not of past achievements that Mack spoke, but of the future and what he hoped for in the years ahead.

CONNIE MACK.

Crime Commission Aids Are Selected

Dr. W. M. Brown Is One of Three Named to Help Hoover's Group.

(Associated Press.)

Appointment of three additional experts to assist the law enforcement commission in its study of the causes of crime was announced yesterday.

They are Dr. Emma A. Winslow, of New York City; Dr. William M. Brown, of Lexington, Va., and Dr. Stewart Paton, of Princeton, N. J., formerly a professor and lecturer at Yale and Johns Hopkins Universities.

Dr. Brown was the defeated Virginia gubernatorial candidate of the anti-Smith Democrats last year.

Cycle Policeman Shot In Wild Rum Chase

Bloodhounds Hunt Pair That Wounded Raymond Crack.

Raymond Crack, Arlington County motorcycle policeman, rode more than half a mile before he dropped after being shot in the face by a rumrunner during a furious chase and gun battle late yesterday on the Mount Vernon boulevard, Arlington County. The vehicles were running at the rate of 65 miles an hour at the time.

Two men, occupants of the auto, were being sought with bloodhounds in Prince William County late last night after they had abondoned their car, which contained seventeen cases of liquor, at Shady Side Camp, near Occoquan, on the Richmond highway.

Crack and C. W. Carr, another county motorcycle policeman, were directing traffic at Rosslyn, near the south end of Key Bridge when the high-powered convertible touring car drove by at a high rate of speed. The policemen saw the cases of liquor, they said, and immediately took up the chase.

GERMANY EVOLVES INVINCIBLE WARSHIP

Projected Sea Fighter Could Outrun or Outrange Any Known Foe.

PLAN IS REVOLUTIONARY

Kiel, Germany, Feb. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.) A 10,000-ton battleship which can outrange and outrun anything on the sea is planned by German naval constructors and needs only authorization by the Reichstag to be built. It will be a long step ahead of the celebrated Ersatz Preussen now about 30 per cent completed in the shipyard of the Deutschewerke here.

The Ersatz Preussen itself—a substitute for the old battleship Preussen—has already obliged other nations to make changes in naval construction, though it won't be completed until the autumn of 1932. But its successor on the Kiel ways is going to show further evolution which will affect all classes of warships afloat.

This battleship, which is simply marked "Substitute B" in the German naval program—the Ersatz Preussen being marked "A"—will profit by all the construction gains shown in "A" and also by further advances now under study. One million dollars is asked by the navy from the Reichstag before laying it down.

The Ersatz Preussen, the final name of which has not been decided, will be able to outrange anything it can't outrun and outrun anything it can't outrange. Its successor is expected to be even faster than it, which would enable it to outrun any vessel which carries guns anywhere near its own 11-inch batteries. While it won't be able to make the speed of smaller craft, it would have them within range for so long a time before they could bring their batteries into action that they would all be sunk

DRY HEARING BARES WILD PARTY DETAILS

Prohibition Era Scored by Huose Committee Head in Opening Sessions.

LOGICAL CONTROL IS AIM

Failure of prohibition and the alleged evils that have followed in its wake were vividly portrayed yesterday before the judiciary committee of the House of Representatives.

Chairman Graham opened the hearings with a vigorous statement denouncing as a failure the attempt "to forbid the American people to determine for themselves what they shall drink." He pictured guerrilla warfare throughout the country and "conditions reeking with murder, bribery, corruption, violations and evasions and disrespect for all law."

The statement of the 79-year-old chairman of the judiciary committee must have come as a distinct shock to dry leaders in the audience, meaning, as it did, that Mr. Graham had abandoned a "judicial" attitude and definitely and formally lined up on the side of those who are demanding the adoption of some other system that will lessen the evils developed under prohibition.

Walter H. Liggett, magazine writer, the first outside witness, told of his investigations in Washington, Boston, Detroit, Minneapolis, in Kansas and elsewhere. He said he found absolute failure of enforcement at every turn, and named high officials who he said have been drawn into the maelstrom of corruption. He told of a "very wild party" at a roadhouse on an island near Detroit attended by "the Governor of Michigan, four circuit judges, the head of the Detroit police, chief of Michigan State police, politicians, criminals, bootleggers, gamblers" and declared that at that "drunken debauch," the liquor for

Arizona Gallows Awaits First Woman Victim, 52

Clemency Plea Denied, Housekeeper for Recluse She Killed Will Die on Scaffold at State Prison February 21.

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Death on the gallows seemed inevitable today for Mrs. Eva Dugan, 52-year-old housekeeper, whose last hope for life was extinguished by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles in a denial of her petition for clemency.

On February 21, she will die on the scaffold at the Arizona State prison in Florence for the murder, three years ago, of her employer, A J. Mathis, aged recluse of Tucson, Ariz., the first woman in Arizona criminal annals to be executed.

The board's decision was rendered with one dissenting vote, that of C. O. Case, who recommended clemency He was opposed vigorously, however, by Attorney General K. Berry Peterson and L. B. Orme, board chairman.

Appended at the last moment to the woman's appeal was a brief letter she received at the prison yesterday signed "Jack" absolving her of all blame. The writer claimed that Mrs. Dugan "had nothing to do with it" and that he "had to hit old man Mathis" when he came "at me with a knife and would have killed me if I had not struck him."

No cognizance of the claim taken by the board, who pointed out that Mrs. Dugan had received similar letters in the past and that investigation of the missives had produced nothing to mitigate the evidence against her.

Early in 1928, Mathis' body was found in a make-shift grave near his ranch. Mrs. Dugan was charged with the murder, tried and convicted in February, 1928, and was sentenced to hang. She has declared throughout her imprisonment that the youth whom she knew only as "Jack" committed the crime and she ran away with him to Texas. The State alleged that the motive for the slaying was "greed to gain possession of Mathis' property."

Half-Pint Purchase of Gin to Be Basis of Action in District Court.

MAN IS RELEASED UNDER $500 BOND

Assistant U. S. Attorney Voices Confidence of Conviction.

ORCUTT APPROVES LAW'S INVOCATION

Similar Philadelphia Trial Resulted in Freeing of Defendant.

The first charge of violation of the prohibition law by purchasing liquor ever filed in Washington, was entered yesterday against Joseph Patrick Carley, 40, by Second Precinct detectives.

Carley was arrested when he left an alleged speak-easy on Vermont avenue near L street. The detectives said he had a half pint of gin in his possession, for which he said he had paid $1.

Since the provision of the prohibition law tending to make the purchaser equally liable with the seller of liquor has never been brought to a test in the District courts, it was decided to make Carley's case a test. He was formally charged "with buying a half-pint of gin," and later released on a $500 bond. He gave a Kanawha street address which was believed to be incorrect.

Will Make Test Case.

It was reported that the detectives decided on making a test of the case after consulting with David A. Hart, assistant United States attorney, in charge of prohibition enforcement in Police Court. Hart later declared that he did not order the charge booked against Carley, but that he was prepared to try him under the statute.

"Purchasing liquor is just as much an offense against the national prohibition act as bootlegging, if the purchase is made from an illegal seller," Mr. Hart said. "When the police advised men that they had arrested a man for buying whisky I told them to hold him and that I thought I could convict him under section 6 of the national prohibition act."

Provisions of Law.

This section specifies that "no one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport or prescribe any liquor without first obtaining a permit from the commissioner * * *"

Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, assistant United States attorney in charge of padlocks, said that he did not understand why the provision had not previously been invoked.

Despite Capt. Orcutt's statement that the provision apparently covers "purchasing liquor" records of the United States Court of Appeals in Philadelphia show that a decision convicting the "buyer" was reversed.

Decision is Reversed.

This court held that the purchaser is not punishable under the national prohibition law in the case of Alfred E. Norris, New York broker and clubman, who was fined $200 after he had purchased liquor from Joel D. Kerper, alleged "society bootlegger."

While Kerper was sentenced to one year and three months in jail and fined $20,000, the appeal by Norris was sustained and the verdict of Judge William H. Kirkpatrick overruled. Judges Victor B. Woolley and W. H. S. Thomson concurred in the decision with Judge Joseph Buffington dissenting.

Senator Sheppard, (Democrat), Texas, apparently is not convinced that the present law covers "the buyer," for on October 8, 1929, he introduced a bill which would make buyers guilty along with manufac-men returned fire, and one shot was believed to have taken effect in the bootlegger's shoulder. Crack was shot just below the right eye as he passed Russel road, but he kept riding and shooting until he reached Potomac street, in front of the George Mason High School. Both policemen emptied their guns.

Carr abandoned the chase as his comrade lost control of his motorcycle and was hurled headlong into the street. He commandeered a passing auto and took Crack to the Alexandria Hospital.

Upon examination Dr. Martin Delaney found that the bullet together with a piece of jawbone had buried itself in Crack's throat. Two teeth were also missing. An X-ray failed to disclose the shot. Another X-ray will be taken today.

While serious, Crack's injury was not considered critical. The policeman, noted for his war on bootleggers, was hurt about two years ago in a similar battle.

Wesley Snoots, Alexandria motorcycle policeman, took up the race at Washington avenue and was shortly afterward joined by Fairfax Policemen Finks and Mills. As they reached Shady Side Camp, the men jumped out of the car and fled in the woods.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, of Arlington County, obtained the bloodhounds by telephone from the Lorton Reformatory, and a posse was formed of Arlington, Fairfax and Alexandria police. The auto was taken to Alexandria with the liquor. Capt. E. H. Durrer was leading the Fairfax group and Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard the Arlington police.

Residents at Shady Camp said they saw one of the rumrunners holding his shoulder, which appeared to be bloody. The auto had a number of bullet holes in it.

Taft's Condition Steadily Improves

Former Jurist Surprises All by Vigorous Rally From Illness.

(Associated Press.)

Apparently progressing steadily toward recovery, William Howard Taft was reported in favorable condition yesterday by his attending physicians.

Just a week ago grave fears were entertained that the former Chief Justice might not survive the several maladies which had attacked him, but ever since that time he has surprised physicians and attendants by the vigorous way in which he has rallied.

Virtually helpless at the time of his return from Asheville, N. C., Mr. Taft now can move about without assistance. His physicians still encourage him to remain in bed as much as possible, however, fearing that too great exertion would overtax his heart and bring a recurrence of the serious attack which so nearly conquered him.

Two bulletins issued yesterday by his physicians, Dr. Thomas A. Claytor and Dr. Francis R. Hagner, described Mr. Taft's condition as "very satisfactory" and apparently "much better." He has overcome his restlessness at night and sleep is proving beneficial. The physicians warned again that their patient was a long way from complete recovery.

132 Are Indicted Under Jones Law

New Statute Is Employed in St. Louis' Drive Against Rum.

St. Louis, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Striking at the illicit liquor industry in St. Louis with the Jones law as its weapon, a Federal court grand jury in its final report today returned 116 indictments charging 130 men and two women with liquor law violations punishable by heavy prison sentences and fines.

It was the first time since enactment of the Jones law that it was brought into use extensively by a St. Louis grand jury in dealing with liquor cases. A previous grand jury had declined to use this law, which is directed against habitual and commercial dispensers of liquor and provides prison sentences up to five years and maximum fines of $10,000.

Most of those named in today's indictments are persons accused of bootlegging and dealing regularly in illicit liquor traffic in the St. Louis district. The two women indicted were Helen Vachuda, roadhouse proprietor, recently convicted of manslaughter for the killing of her stepfather and sentenced to three months in jail, and Mrs. Lillian Tabor, indicted with her husband, Fred, for alleged liquor sales.

Alleged Rum Act Violator Is Killed

Washington Farmer Shoots and Wounds Agent Before Dying.

Everett, Wash., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Al Kinman, 50, a farmer, and alleged moonshiner of the Cicero district about 15 miles northwest of here, was killed, and J. W. Thomas, 45, Snohomish County deputy sheriff, was wounded seriously in a gun battle late today between Kinman and deputy sheriffs who went to the man's home to search for liquor.

Accompanied by Sheriff George I. Stevers, and Deputy J. J. Jackson, Thomas had gone to Kinman's home with a search warrant.

Thomas knocked, Kinman answered and when told that officers were there, opened the door and shot Thomas twice, Sheriff Stevers said. Thomas did not get a chance to pull his gun, the sheriff said.

Jackson ran around the house as Kinman stepped onto the porch and the farmer started shooting at Jackson. Jackson returned the fire and killed Kinman.

DRY REGIME SCORED BY COMMITTEE HEAD

LAWFUL CONTROL ASKED

which was furnished by "Danny Murphy," whom he described as a well-known gambler, nude women danced.

"Were you there?" asked Representative Michener (Republican), Michigan.

"No," replied Mr. Liggett. "I am more careful of my associates."

Asked when this "wild party" occurred, Mr. Liggett said it was on the evening of November 5 and the early morning of November 6 last. He named the Allen Garden Roadhouse as the scene.

The hearing was held in the caucus room in the House Office Building. The attendance was disappointing to the wet leaders. The room had seats for about 500 persons and two-thirds of them remained unoccupied. The lack of numbers, however, was made up in enthusiasm. One reason for the slim attendance at the opening hearing, it was explained, was that the committee has not yet announced any definite plan of procedure, and witnesses who are expected to appear in large numbers do not know approximately when they can be heard. It was predicted that there will be no lack of attendance once the hearings get full headway.

Former Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland, occupied a seat in the front row and led the applause from time to time with great vigor. Fully half those present were women, young, middle aged and older.

Chairman Graham read his opening statement. It was in the nature of justification for having called the hearings. He explained at the outset that the prohibition amendment can be repealed only by constitutional means or by another amendment, which must be ratified by two-thirds of the States either through their legislatures or by convention. The convention method, he addded, would furnish an opportunity for a referendum "so much desired and asked for." That method of ratification, Mr. Graham said, would "furnish the only means a referendum can be had under the law."

Would Aid Crime Commission.

The chairman pointed out that the judiciary committee hearings "will not interfere with President Hoover's crime commission, but rather be in aid thereof.

"The eighteenth amendment and the enforcement law have been tested for ten years, without satisfactory results," he said. "Enforcement has left a train of consequences most deplorable and depressing to every patriot.

"Killings amounting to over 1,360 have resulted in the last ten years from enforcement. One hundred and fifty-one citizens were killed by prohibition officers and 64 agents killed by citizens. In ten years there were 77,351 arrests for violations, alleged or real. During the first year under prohibition there were 29,000 cases instituted, and during the last fiscal year there were close to 70,000. Demand for more prisons has been made and new ones ordered, which it is said will not give relief from overcrowding except for a period of five years or possibly ten.

"When we add corruption, bribery, demoralization of the citizenry, disrespect for law, bootlegging and kindred offenses, does not such a picture call for the fair, dispassionate judgment of men and women, to come together and reason over what remedy can be devised to abate this sad condition.

Control Is Goal Sought.

"No one wants the restoration of the old conditions or the saloon. We may well ask, Cannot control and regulation of the liquor traffic supply the place of prohibition? What use of more laws, drastic and partaking of the spirit of vengeance, rather than justice?

"Natural liberty of the individual has never been totally surrendered to society, but only so much as is needed to preserve the organized entity. Freedom of decision as to what one may drink, eat or wear is as fundamental as freedom of belief in religion. Like in the delegation of powers to the Federal Government by the sovereign States, all not delegated were reserved. Individual man has a large reservoir of powers. Only when one's choice by overt act breaks the peace or injures society can the individual decision be assailed, and then only to punish the overt act.

"Behold the action of the Canadian Provinces, which, after many experiments, have finally adopted the so-called 'Canadian system,' all except little Prince Edwards Island. Only the United States and Finland stand out as dry nations.

"Can not some system be devised to control and not prohibit that will lessen the evils portrayed? The use of wine has been contenanced through the ages. Cana of Galilee is not exceptional. Had God wished automatons he could have changed the nature of the grape or destroyed the human appetite. He wanted character. He wanted the man who met temptation and conquered.

Clear Reasoning Desired.

"Let us reason together, not with the fanatic, for he is the foe of religious as well as individual liberty but with the broad-minded men and women of every faith and belief, and try to relieve our country through reason and by conceiving a new system—one founded not on the bludgeon and a violation of man's conscientious convictions regarding drink.

"No law can ever be enforced that is destructive of right and individual liberty. You may create a guerrilla warfare and conditions reeking with murder, bribery, corruption, violations or evasions and disrespect for all law. Every law to be capable of being enforced without such a train of consequences must not be inconsistent with the mind of the people of the country as being right and must not be destructive of individual liberty."

The venerable chairman was frequently interrupted by applause.

He concluded by announcing that the hearing would be open alike to proponents of repeal or amendment of prohibition and those who oppose any change in this respect, each side having full and equal opportunity.

"When prohibition was adopted," he added, "the slogan was 'Down With the Saloon.' That was a great call and brought the hosts together. But today we are witnessing transgression of individual right and belief.

Hearings to Be Educational.

"What opportunity has there been given to the conscientious thinker who is opposed to the present system and its evils? These hearings will afford that opportunity. They are intended to be educational."

At an executive meeting of the judiciary committee late yesterday it was decided that the hearing today will continue throughout the day, after which an adjournment will be taken until Wednesday of next week. Chairman Graham announced that today the committee expects to hear Representative Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, whose resolution contemplates a referendum on prohibition, with automatic repeal if a majority votes against the dry system; Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of New York, and former Senator Bruce, of Maryland.

The understanding is that hearings will continue about two weeks, approximately eighteen hours being granted the wets and the same amount of time alloted to the drys. It is expected that Dr. F. C. Dinwiddie, of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, will arrange a schedule of dry speakers, and that Representative Linthicum (Democrat), of Maryland, head of the unofficial wet group in the House, will allot time to proponents of repeal.

1,500 Washington Women Instructed in Home Economics at Post Cooking School

Housewives Report Use of Menus Meets With Success.

The wide interest in The Washington Post Cooking School among the women of Washington who are taking their profession of homemakers seriously was evident yesterday afternoon, when more than 1,500 women attended the session at the Belasco Theater. Practically every one of the 1,200 women who attended the opening on Tuesday returned yesterday and some brought friends with them.

Some of the women who heard the first lecture reported that they used the menu given in the class, tried out the recipes for their family dinners and received compliments from members of their families.

Mrs. Frances Troy Northcross stressed the value of preparing tempting meals for the family circle. She said many housewives do not take enough care in appealing to the appetites of the family, although they will go to elaborate preparations for teas and company dinners.

She also took the opportunity of including in her lecture the fact that the laws of health do not only embrace such precautions as the use of vaccines and serums under prescribed conditions, but also the building up of such high bodily resistance to disease through proper diet, exercise and mode of life that diseases can not find lodgment in our bodies.

"If you wore comfortable shoes like I do you would not get so tired," Mrs. Northcross told the women in her pleasant way, which brought applause.

One of the most interesting features of the cooking school is the period devoted to questions by the audience and answers by Mrs. Northcross assisted by Miss Florence Robb. Some of the women remained for an hour after the lecture and demonstrations were over in order to take part in this open forum on home economics conducted by Mrs. Northcross and her audience.

The following persons were given market baskets:

Mrs. C. A. Hall, New Hampshire avenue and V street northwest; Mrs. E. H. Ralston, 1646 Irving street northwest; Mrs. J. K. Boyken, 1901 Columbia road northwest; Mrs. L. C. Potteiger 1209 K street northwest; Mrs. H. M. Sutherland, 31 Clifton street northwest; Sarah A. Hornlett, 2003 Third street northeast; Frances M. Schults, 1636 Kenyon street northwest; Mrs. F. H. Wolven, Columbia road and Calvert street northwest; Mrs. C. M. Dellinger, 1524 A street northeast; Mrs. P. K. Winden, 235 Emerson street northwest.

Miss W. P. Collison, 1840 Montana place, and Rella M. Lane, 1821 Jefferson place, were awarded cake prizes. Other awards made follow: Refrigerator desk, Mrs. Roy H. Bryant, 3700 Massachusetts avenue; dripolator, Mrs. J. K. Culver, Kensington, Md.; flowers, Mrs. A. C. Nelson, 642 D street northeast; steaks, Mrs. C. J. Rohland, 2953 Tilden street northwest; ham, Mrs. Earl House, 1819 Ninth street northeast.

A record audience is expected at the session today, from 2 to 4 p. m., for the topic of the lecture will be "Reducing From a Safe Standpoint." The following menu will be used for the demonstrations:

Ragout of Beef with Dumplings
Evelasting Rolls
Lemon Meringue Pie
Pastry
Soft Custard de Luxe
Waffles
Bacon-Cheese Sandwiches
Macaroni Mould
White Cake
Everyday Gingerbread
Essentials in Making Good Tea
Calves Liver

The recipes for yesterday's menu were as follows:

Macaroni Croquettes.

3 cups chopped cooked macaroni.
½ teaspoon baking powder.
1 cup grated cheese.
Salt, pepper.
Small amount onion juice.

Blend ingredients, form into balls, roll in egg and sifted bread crumbs and fry in deep shortening, heated to 390 degrees. This makes eight large croquettes.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Mushrooms.

2 tablespoons minced onion.
2 cups mushroom caps.
1 teaspoon celery salt.
1 teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons shortening.
1½ cups white sauce.
Bread crumbs.

Scoop out the centers of tomatoes and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Meanwhile, melt the shortening, add the minced onion, mushroom caps and cup and half of white sauce. Cover and simmer for five minutes, add seasoning. Fill tomatoes with this mixture, sprinkle crumbs on top and bake at 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

Peanut Butter Biscuit.

2 cups flour.
2-3 cup milk.
½ teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons shortening.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
¼ cup peanut butter.

Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients. Add liquid to make a soft dough. Roll lightly, put onto a sheet, cut into rounds. Bake in a medium oven of 450 degrees F. 12 to 15 minutes. One beaten egg may be added, reducing the liquid to make a soft dough.

Frozen Peach Salad.

1 cup peaches.
1 cup seeded white cherries.
½ cup maraschino cherries.
½ teaspoon baking powder.
1 cup diced pineapple.
2-3 cup mayonnaise.
2 cups stiffly whipped sweetened cream.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine fruit and lemon juice. Mix whipped cream, baking powder and mayonnaise and combine with fruit mixture. Chill three hours in trays of the electric refrigerator.

Meringues.

4 egg whites.
1 cup sugar.
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Beat egg whites stiff, add sugar, one tablespoon at a time, beating carefully with whip. Half an hour to combine. Place on writing paper on wet board. Bake 50 minutes in oven of 250 degrees F.

Crullers.

½ cup rich milk.
½ teaspoon lemon extract.
3 cups flour.
1 egg and 1 egg yolk added.
2 tablespoons melted shortening.
½ teaspoon salt.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Blend sugar and eggs, add milk, melted shortening and extract. Sift together four times, ½ teaspoon salt, flour, baking powder and nutmeg. Combine mixtures. Chill in refrigerator overnight. Fry in deep fat heated to 375 degrees F., and drain on absorbent paper.

Devil's Food Cake.

1½ cups flour.
4 tablespoons shortening.
1 teaspoon soda.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 cup sugar.
½ cup boiling water.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 squares bitter chocolate (melted).

Sift flour once and measure, sift flour with dry ingredients three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy, add eggs and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add water to melted chocolate, then soda, and stir quickly. Bake in layer pans in moderate oven, 325 degrees F., about 25 minutes. Makes two medium layers.

Stewed Prunes.

Soak prunes overnight if possible. A little lemon peel, especially if they are sweet prunes, gives a pleasant tang. While stewing, add 2 teaspoons of baking powder to every pound of prunes. This improves the flavor.

Fluffy Icing.

3 cups sugar.
3 egg whites.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 cup cold water
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
1 teaspoon baking powder.

Boil sugar and water until it is 240 degrees F. Pour slowly over stiffly beaten whites of eggs, add baking powder, then lemon juice and flavoring. Place bowl over kettle of boiling water and heat three to five minutes.

Yum Yum Gems.

1 cup brown sugar.
1 egg.
1 cup sour milk.
2 cups flour.
1 teaspoon soda.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon nutmeg.
1 teaspoon cloves.
1 cup raisins.
½ cup walnut meats (chopped).
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 teaspoon baking powder.

Blend shortening, sugar and egg at one time. Add sour milk. Stir in sifted dry ingredients and add raisins and nuts. Pour into greased cup cake tins or paper baking cups and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 15 to 20 minutes, or until done. This recipe makes about 18 cakes. They may be iced at the time of baking or later.

JURY IS SELECTED IN DRY DEATH CASE

Minnesota to Prosecute Agent While U. S. Is to Defend Him.

WIDOW IS SPECTATOR

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Eleven men and one woman were selected today as the jury in the trial of Emmet J. White, United States customs patrolman, charged with second degree murder as an outgrowth of the killing of Gust Henry Wirkkula, 25 miles south of the Canadian border shortly before midnight last June 8.

Judge William A. Cant ordered that the jury be kept in custody during the remainder of the trial, because of the feeling aroused over the killing, which has been seized upon as an issue by both prohibitionists and antiprohibitionists.

Presentation of testimony will begin after statements by counsel Thursday morning. The case provides a legal paradox in that the Federal district attorney's office has taken over the defense of White, who is being prosecuted by the State. Trial of the case was brought into Federal court under an old statute establishing jurisdiction in the case of the customs employes indicted in State courts.

Prospective jurors were asked if they were hostile to the national prohibition act and to laws prohibiting importation of intoxicating liquors from Canada, and also whether they had ever experienced any difficulty with customs patrolmen when they had occasion to cross the Canadian border.

"This case has attracted a great deal of attention—probably much more than it deserves," Judge Cant declared in ordering the jury kept in custody for the duration of the trial.

Mrs. Wirkkula was among the crowd that jammed the court room to capacity. She, with her two young daughters, were with Wirkkula when White and another patrolman opened fire on their car near Big Falls, Minn., last year after the slain man failed to heed a command to halt. Wirkkula, who the officers suspected of smuggling liquor, was killed, and the slugs from the officers' shotguns narrowly missed the others.

No liquor was found in the automobile. Wirkkula had been convicted of violating the prohibition law in an International Falls court six months previous to his death.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Government finally rested its case in the Pottawatomie County liquor conspiracy trial here today and Judge Edgar S. Vaught instructed verdicts of acquittal for Bob Davis and Melvin Corbin, two of the defendants.

NAVY PARLEY LEAKS WORRY DELEGATES

Divulgence of Important Data to Press Cause of Concern.

POLICIES OUT TOO SOON

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Divulging of confidential information and dissertion among the delegates as to matters of publicity are rendering Secretary Stimson's task daily more difficult at the London conference. A concerted effort to stop up the leaks will be made before the ticklish cruiser proolem is reached on the agenda.

Charles Evans Hughes, head of the American delegation at the Washington Conference, encountered the same difficulty which now confronts Mr. Stimson but managed to overcome it by obtaining a gentlemens' agreement from the delegates not to divulge anything that transpired during the closed sessions or meeting of the technical committees. After the first week there developed an effective protection against leaks as each delegate was placed upon his honor and immediate investigation threatened to follow any unauthorized disclosure.

Leaks Occur Daily.

There have been leaks almost daily since the London conference began and in practically every instance the American delegation has been the victim. The latest examples have been particularly embarrassing. The fact that Secretary Stimson had prepared a statement of American policy leaked out prematurely and compelled the Secretary to hurriedly issue his statement before notifying Premier Tardieu that he was to do so. The inclusion of America's request to be allowed to build a super-dreadnought of the Rodney type was made public through unauthorized channels and has brought forth the unfavorable criticism abroad and the unfavorable reaction in Washington.

When the first important conferences took place between the Americans and the French, designed to promote harmony, reports leaked out that a Mediterranean pact involving the United States had been under discussion. These reports were promptly denied but future frank discussions with the French have been rendered more difficult.

Leaks Prove Embarrassing.

A reported suggestion that abolition of battleships would be discussed precipitated a leak to the effect that the American delegation would seriously consider such a proposition. This, too, was denied. Meanwhile reports leaked out prior to Secretary Stimson's speech on submarines on Tuesday that the American delegation had abandoned all hope of abolishing the submarine, and this had an embarrassing effect.

Perhaps the most annoying leaks have had to do with reports of dissension in the ranks of the American delegation.

Obviously the American delegates do not always agree on whatever proposition comes before them and it is the duty of the delegates to frankly express their views and finally decide upon a program. If every difference of opinion is construed as an evidence of dissension and given wide publicity here and abroad it necessarily follows that the delegates will be hampered in their work.

TONNAGE NEEDS ARE STATED FOR BIG FIVE DELEGATES

grounds upon which the French claims are based.

France will ask 175,000 tons of capital ships, 60,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 350,000 tons of cruisers and destroyers, which she lumps together, 96,000 tons of submarines and the balance of 43,000 tons in special classes.

At a meeting between Premier MacDonald and Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand today the French put forward their reasons for these claims. Their tonnage, it was stated, is determined by the naval statutes of France and by "semipolitical considerations."

Needs in 1936 Stated.

France, it is claimed, must possess in 1936 a fleet able to meet the German and Italian fleet combined, plus a small allowance for policing remote French oceanic colonies. The Italian fleet, the French reckon, will be 437,000 tons in 19036 and the German 44,000 tons.

The French will also claim that in 1943 they will need a total tonnage of 805,000 tons.

But there is a little olive branch held out by France in the shape of decision that French needs are both absolute and relative and that, considered relatively, the French figures might be reduced if the decisions of this conference result in a "general slackening of new constructions and replacements."

U. S. Leadership Proposed.

The United States, it pointed out, might lead the way in this direction and thus secure reduction all around because the United States, according to the French, is building and proposing to build both absolutely and relatively the greatest amount of new tonnage.

Out of the mass of technical disputes, referred by the subcommittee of experts to the committee of the whole, there has reappeared an old friend from the Geneva conference, the British attempt to obtain a large number of small cruisers by imposing a low maximum tonnage restriction on the little fellows. Japan backed up Great Britain in this, while France sided with our representatives in registering objections.

The Americans were a little disappointed with British persistence, which is ascribed to naval pressure, as in British political quarters it had been gathered that the British scheme, which was turned down at Geneva, would not be pressed here.

British Idea Outlined.

The British idea, in brief, is that inside the cruiser category two classes should be created, one of 10,000-ton, 8-inch gun ships, and a smaller class, defined by an intricate combination of gun power and tonnage. The United States is understood to hold firmly that this scheme would give Great Britain many small cruisers without paying for them the proper place in tonnage under the parity agreement, and so create an unfair advantage.

First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander argued the needs of Great Britain for small police cruisers on all the seven seas, which, he declared, would be of no use in a fleet action and hence would deserve an application of the yardstick stretched in their favor.

The Italians enlivened the session of committee No. 1 by hurling in reservations, and on four separate occasions her spokesmen demanded that total figures be presented on the tonnage everybody wants.

As anticipated, MacDonald's statement in a plenary session that the category tangle was nearly unravelled proved much too optimistic and committee No. 1 did not settle any of the serious points at issue and finally referred the whole subject back to the subcommittee for further work.

The American-British tussle over the yardstick application to small cruisers within the parity scheme of things was clearly too much for either committee and was referred to the big five, as was the very difficult technical dispute as to the application of transfer within categories. Since the two chief delegates professed themselves unable to understand this, the New York World News Service will not attempt to explain it here. It all seems to depend in the end on what the actual tonnage figures are and these are not exactly known.

Considered as a subject for humorists, the struggles of the subcommittee afford rich material, for it was calculated when all British subdivisions and limitations within categories had been considered, that the British had, in effect, proposed fourteen categories of warships and that some of these are "no ships categories" in which it will be impossible to build at all.

British "No-Ship" Zone.

For instance, the British are alarmed at the wonderful new American 6-inch gun, which is claimed to be the best in the world and able to fire four times as fast as an 8-inch gun. To prevent the United States from building a 9,000-ton cruiser armed with these guns, they propose a "no ship" zone between 7,500 tons and 10,000 tons, in which nothing can be built.

There was general agreement in committee No. 1 that in the cruiser class transfers are to be encouraged from big cruisers downward into small cruisers, but not upwards. But the point was made that as Stimson's statement gives Great Britain and the United States the right to transfer either upward or downward, France may claim a similar right.

These and other subjects of the same sort prevented committee No. 1 from doing much about submarines as enjoined by the plenary session yesterday. But First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander, who presided, suggested creation of a subcommittee to collect relevant documents and draft a text of a "humanizing" declaration to which all the powers are committed and to make a report on the limit of submarine size, the proopsal put forward in the American resolution yesterday. This subcommittee will shortly commence to function.

Neutralization of Philippines.

There was much discussion in conference circles today, especially among Americans and Japanese, of the New York World News Service's story yesterday that suggestions are in the air for neutralization of the Philippines. An American spokesman said quite accurately that this has not been "proposed," but would not say that it is not being talked about.

The general impression among Americans seems to be that much depends upon the price Japan is willing to pay for neutralization measures in terms of fewer submarines and cruisers. The Japanese were very wary in their remarks, showing more anxiety to elicit opinions tha nto give any.

One American authority remarked sapiently that so far as our delegation is concerned, whether this idea gets further or not depends to a large extent on the reaction of American public opinion to the feelers put forth.

GERMANY EVOLVES WARSHIP THAT WOULD BE INVINCIBLE

long before they could become a menace.

The big advance in these new German vessels, technically classed as cruisers, though better described as pocket battleships is largely in careful development of details. To begin with, there is not a rivet in them. Their plates are electrically soldered, thus saving 14 per cent in weight, which is added to their size. Thus a ship that under rivet construction would be given a displacement of between 11,000 and 12,000 tons has a displacement of only 10,000. The method of structure is also new so that everything in the ship, from keel to cockpits, is part of the armor structure itself.

Strain has been studied to a point where the exact limit of the size of guns they can carry is figured. In fact, the limitation on guns is not in relation to tonnage—according to the usual method of calculating the batteries a vessel can carry—but in relation to the accuracy of gunfire. It is possible to figure strain until it would be possible to put a "big bertha" on a battleship, it is explained, but this would be of no use in naval warfare on account of inability to date to get accurate gunfire at over 30,000 yards. The Germans are, however, experimenting with guns and it is within possibilities for batteries to be figured so that "substitute B" will have longer range. Germany, not being a signatory of the Washington treaty, is not under limitation as to the elevation of guns.

Diesel engines have enormously decreased the weight and space necessary for engines and fuels, even for oil burners. Further progress on getting more horsepower per ton of engine are also being made by which "substitute B" is expected to profit.

Murder Witness Dies; Canned Heat Victim

Alcholic poisoning as a result of drinking canned heat caused the death yesterday of Joseph Rivers, 56 years old, painter, of Third street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, at Gallinger Hospital, according to a certificate issued by District Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt.

Rivers, who was a witness in the murder of William W. Sykes at the Mades Hotel in May, 1929, was found unconscious and partially blinded, lying in the vestibule of a house on Fourth street northwest near B street, by Patrolman T. B. Bacon, of the Sixth Precinct, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. He died four hours later.

JAPAN GIVES REPLY ON CRUISER RATIO

Memorandum Repeats Desire of Tokyo for 70 Per Cent as Parity Basis.

COMPROMISE IS HINTED

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Tsuneo Matsudaira, on behalf of the Japanese delegation, tonight presented to Senator David A. Reed a written memorandum in answer to the American proposal that Japan accept a 60 per cent ratio of cruiser strength, as compared with the American Navy, in order to make that category conform to the 5-5-3 battleship ratio agreed upon at the Washington conference.

While it was understood that the memorandum repeated Japan's desire for a 70 per cent cruiser ratio, it was generally believed that neither the American nor the Japanese position was final and that an acceptable compromise would be reached after further conversations.

The discussion dates back to the Washington conference and has served to revive what the Japanese have always claimed was an unfortunate misunderstanding. It is understood that the American claim, while acknowledging that only capital ships and airplane carriers entered into the Washington agreement, holds that there was "a tacit understanding" between the two countries that Japan would be satisfied with the same ratio for heavy cruisers.

Tacit Understanding Hinted.

America claims that this tacit understanding was reached because of a promise by the United States not to fortify her bases in the Pacific Ocean. The Japanese naval experts and delegates who were present at Washington assert that they had no knowledge of any such understanding.

So far as the American promise not to fortify was concerned, they add that, at the same time, Japan agreed not to fortify the Bonin Islands and other strategic Japanese points in the Pacific.

Japan's claim to a 70 per cent ratio would give her the right to 126,000 tons of heavy cruisers, compared to 180,000 tons of American and 150,000 tons of British ships of that class. Japan now has 108,400 tons embracing ten vessels already built and two which are on the ways.

This total tonnage for Japan would include eight 10,000 tonners and four of 7,100 tons each, but these latter would be the only medium sized cruisers of any nation which would carry 8-inch guns.

Demand for Economy.

The full 70 per cent ratio would entitle Japan to build two more cruisers of 8,600 tons each, although Japanese lay opinion is that these would never be constructed because of the present tremendous public demand for economy. However, the big navy crowd of Japan wants the right to build these extra cruisers as a means of maintaining "face," a factor which has a real value in the Orient. One Japanese who is well acquainted with the whole conference situation, said tonight:

"Although Japan feels there is somewhat of a misunderstanding regarding the ratio which she desires, the matter is not at all serious and there will be the friendliest sort of conferences between the two delegations in order to arrive at some figure which will be mutually acceptable.

"So far as the Japanese desire to build extra cruisers is concerned, it is sure that she would agree to scrap five or six of her present vessels if America would allow her a 70 per cent ratio and agree not to build up to 180,000 tons.

Compromise Is Foreseen.

"In other words, 70 per cent might be ten cruisers for America and seven for Japan, which would mean a real reduction in armaments and still maintain a balance which would not endanger either country.

"The chances are that America will not insist upon a 60 per cent ratio nor Japan upon 70, but that there will be a compromise somewhere between 65 and 68 per cent if granted a two-thirds proportion—which I do not say that Japan would accept—my country would have 120,000 tons or the right to build one additional 10,000 tonner which, in all probability, would never be constructed.

"Also, when the four 7,100-ton craft are ready for replacement, Japan might agree to substitute for them two vessels of 10,000 tons each."

Boy, Hurt Under Train, Voted $5,000 by House

(Associated Press.)

Reminiscent of the fact that all casualties of war are not incurred on the field of battle, the House passed unanimously yesterday a bill for the relief of George S. Conway, jr., of Englewood, N. J., who as a lad of 5 lost his leg under the wheels of a troop train.

Representative Perkins, of New Jersey, sponsored the bill to authorize the payment of $5,000 to Conway's father. He told the House a soldier boosted the boy to the window of a troop train bound for Camp Merritt on August 27, 1918, in response to the lad's request "to see the guns."

The train moved out of the station, and the soldier dropped Conway. His right leg was severed below the knee as he fell beneath the moving train.

OFFICIALS OF CHEST AWAIT LAST REPORT

Gifts From U. S. and Store Employes Continue to Roll In.

WORKERS ARE PRAISED

Community Chest officials continued to mark time yesterday awaiting reports from the volunteer auditing committee which would show the exact total contributed to the Chest. Contributions from the Government departments continued to come in in fairly large numbers, and it was stated that several of the department stores which were handled by the group solicitation unit have not completed their reports.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, continued confident that at least an additional $50,000 would be contributed by givers who have not yet been seen by the Community Chest workers. Some of these, he explained, are in the special gifts class and are out of the city, but they are people who contributed largely last year and who have manifested a marked interest in the Chest work this year, so that their contributions are practically assured.

Following the final report of the auditing unit it is expected that the budget committee will be called upon to meet and decide in just what respect the budgets of the various Chest organizations will be curtailed.

Although disappointed at the outcome of the campaign and the failure to raise the minimum requirements of the Chest, officials in charge of the campaign had nothing but the highest praise for the workers who faced the worst snow in eight years and several days of rainy weather at the beginning of the campaign and who, in spite of these handicaps, succeeded in raising the largest amount of money ever collected for a local cause in Washington.

"We feel that we can not praise these men and women too highly," John Poole, campaign chairman, said yesterday. "The determined effort they made, the manner in which they braved the elements, and the cheerfulness with which they worked on for five extra days after the campaign should have closed should endear every one of them to the heart of every Washingtonian who believes in charitable and benevolent enterprise. I think every one of us feels that we got something priceless through our contacts and consequent friendships with this fine body of men and women."

GARMENT WALKOUT ENDED IN NEW YORK

return, contractors will lift the provision requiring the jobbers to place their work in member shops in cities outside New York.

Mr. Lehman indicated the outstanding points of the new contracts were all work of the three employer groups will hereafter be done only in union shops; a permanent impartial chairman, similar to the officer now ruling the cloak and suit industry, will be appointed to adjust all differences in the trade; workers will be on a 40-hour basis, and a commission, representing all parties and the public, will be selected.

The lieutenant governor said that no provision was made for an increase in wages, this matter having been deferred, along with unemployment insurance, for one year.

FISH ELUDE HOOVER, BUT NOT MRS. STONE

Justice's Wife Lands 65-Pound Sailfish as President Looks On in Envy.

FIVE BOATS IN PARTY

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—President Hoover went out after a sailfish today and came in with no catch.

The fishing honors departed from the executive branch of the Government, where they were the first two days of the trip and went over to the judicial. Justice Harlan F. Stone, fishing from the boat with the President, landed a 40-pound sailfish, but it remained for Mrs. Stone, fishing with Mrs. Hoover, to land the prize of the day, a 65-pound sailfish, measuring 7 feet 10 inches.

Considerable uneasiness resulted from Mrs. Stone's catch. She hooked the big fellow at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the moon had come up before she finally landed him. In the meantime, those in Long Key grew increasingly uneasy about the presidential party, for a stiff breeze was blowing and both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were in small vessels.

Newspapermen Get Treat.

The Orca, a big boat commanded by Capt. Herman Gray, of Palm Beach, from which Mr. Hoover had planned to fish today, was turned over to newspapermen invited by the President to be his guests. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover thereupon took two small craft which tossed and pitched in the long swells which rolled into the Gulf Stream, where the angling took place.

The Chief Executive spent his morning looking over mail and studying the latest news from the London naval conference. He found nothing startling either in his mail or in the news from London, and shortly after noon departed for the Gulf Stream, 8 miles off Long Key, on the Atlantic side.

The flotilla, consisting of five boats in all, found the sea rough soon after getting out of the shallow water around the key. Both the President and Mrs. Hoover are good sailors, so the boats pushed on. Justice Stone, Mark Sullivan and Dr. Vernon Kellogg went in the boat with the President. Mrs. Stone was the only other woman in the party who wished to fish today, and she and Mrs. Hoover were in the second boat. Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, and Dr. Joel Boone, White House physician, were in the third boat. Secret Service operatives were in the fourth and newspapermen in the fifth.

Strike Comes Late in Day.

Mrs. Stone's strike came late in the day. Those in the other boats at first thought Mrs. Hoover had the whopper on her line, and all the craft began to come in as close as was safe.

A closer view revealed Mrs. Stone, working hard with her reel, and Mrs. Hoover, excited, vigorously working a moving picture camera. President Hoover's boat was some distance away, but, as it became dark, drew in closer. The moon came up, but Mrs. Stone still had out a lot of line.

The moon was an hour high and the sun an hour gone when the big fish was landed. The fleet then turned toward the shore, the President's boat first, Mrs. Hoover's second, and the rest strung out.

No other member of the party caught anything, although two other sailfish were hooked, only to join the club of "those that got away."

REPUBLICAN CHIEF WILL BE WITNESS

ing the cyanamid company bid or something better.

It was placed in the record while the committee was questioning W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association. He described a trip through the South last fall to enlist aid for the Cyanamid Co. proposal or any more advantageous bid which might be made.

The witness said he had talked with county agricultural commissioners and others in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Florida and had urged that telegrams be sent to Representative Quin, of Mississippi, and McSwain, of South Carolina, both Democratic members of the House military affairs committee, which handles Muscle Shoals legislation.

In addition, he said, he obtained letters of introduction to Senators George and Harris, of Georgia, both Democrats, and also petitions which he intended to present to them when Muscle Shoals legislation comes up for consideration.

Waldo testified that he favored the Wright bill, which would turn Muscle Shoals over to the Cyanamid Co., but that if a better offer were made, it would receive his support. He expressed opposition to Government operation of Muscle Shoals.

Could Not Remember.

Near the end of the hearing the committee attempted to ascertain whether Mr. Waldo had more than two long distance telephone conversations yesterday with J. W. Worthington, chairman of the executive committee of the association, who is reported ill at Tate Springs, Tenn. Question after question was shot at the witness while he insisted his mind was "an absolute blank," and he could not remember whether a third conversation was had.

"It seems curious that I can't remember, but that's the honest truth," he asserted.

At one time he asked to be excused so he could refresh his memory and Senator Caraway retorted:

"Bring your mind with you the next time."

Tells of Two Talks.

In one of the conversations he said Mr. Worthington told him to make clear to the lobby committee that the association had always been independent and had "never worn anybody's collar."

The other conversation, he said, related to the testimony before the committee yesterday by Earl Cooper, stenographer for Worthington.

Questioned by Senator Black, (Democrat), Alabama, the witness denied that Worthington had instructed him not to tell the committee about the long distance conversations.

appointees to the District Board of Commissioners. By the beginning of next week, all three organizations will have held meetings and action on the Gen. Crosby question is expected. This will leave the way clear for the conference next week. All the other organizations represented have voiced opposition to both the Jones bill and the selection of the Army officer.

Congressional Act Cited.

The brief presented by Mr. Darr yesterday cited an act of Congress giving the requirements of appointees to the District commission. This showed that two of the members of the commission shall have been residents of the District for three years prior to their appointment, and that the third member of the board shall be a member of the United States Corps of Engineers.

The brief also cited the opinion of the Attorney General that retired Army officers are still a part of the Army and are subject to the regulations of the Army.

A third case cited is that of Tyler vs. the United States, which holds that men who are by statute declared to be a part of the Army are subject to the rules and articles of war and must be tried by court-martial and not by jury.

Four Other Cases Pointed To.

Four other cases cited hold that retired Army officers are still Army officers, and that they are always subject to assignment on active duty.

Pointing to these cases, Mr. Darr states in his brief: "The foregoing conclusively shows that a retired officer of the Army who is still in the Army and subject to all the military requirements of the Army is not and cannot be considered a civilian after retirement."

The cases cited by Mr. Darr include: Congressional act of June 11, 1878; the Attorney General's decision; Tyler vs. the United States; Texas vs. De Gress; Franklin vs. the United States.

After yesterday's conference had started, Former Policeman Robert J. Allen appeared at the Board of Trade headquarters and expressed a desire to take part in the conference. He was not admitted.

JURY FINDS THREE GUILTY IN SWINDLE

Hitz Reserves Sentence of Men Charged With Using Mails.

ONE IS GIVEN FREEDOM

Frederick E. Lewis, Edward Fell Lukens, of Philadelphia, and Butler Kellogg, of New York City, were found guilty by a jury yesterday in Criminal Division No. 2 of the District Supreme Court on an indictment charging conspiracy to use the mails to defraud. Justice William Hitz, before whom the case was heard, reserved sentence.

The verdict came coincidental with the acquittal of Warren T. Godfroy, of Louisville, Ky. Godfroy was jointly indicted with the others, but Justice Hitz ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty regarding him.

The case, which has been on trial for several weeks, involves the S. B. Thayer Son & Co. Allegations during the trial were that the defendants had moved to Washington from Wilmington, Del., in 1923 and that in 1925, when some of the accused were arrested, there were about 50 contracts with corporations and other concerns in various parts of the United States for which they had never made a loan but for which they had received $150,000.

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly appeared for the Government, while the law firm of Easby-Smith, Attorney Harry N. Connaughton, Attorney Joseph D. Kelly and Attorney Matt J. Holt, of Louisville, Ky., appeared for the defendants.

DOUGHERTY LOSES NEW HAT AT EMBASSY RECEPTION

District Building closed last night. Search will be resumed today.

Several hostesses have complained of imposition by "gate crashers" on their hospitality.

Commissioner Dougherty isn't especially concerned about the loss of his own hat—a new one, by the way—but none the less the fact that a check-up by embassy officials indicated the ambassador gave a reception to some 200 uninvited guests is thought by some to indicate that the informal exchange of hats may bring about a closer inspection of the credentials of arrivals at social affairs in the future. Indeed, several hostesses have already taken stringent steps and invited guests who forget to bring their invitations are not admitted. One such incident involved John Coolidge, a footman refusing to admit him to a private reception in his honor until he had been identified.

Cigar Supply Stolen From Auto.

Lewis Hertzberg, of 410 H street northeast, informed police yesterday that eight boxes of cigars, valued at $40, were stolen from his automobile, which was parked at Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Jersey City

an ideal city for industries

No city in the world can match Jersey City's transportation facilities—railroad, marine, air.

In the centre of the nation's greatest market—ten millions of people in the Metropolitan area, in which Jersey City occupies the choicest location for industry and shipping.

For receiving raw materials from the four corners of the globe, and then distributing manufactured products to the markets of the world, Jersey City stands unequaled in its facilities.

Eight trunk line railroads; ocean-going ships and craft for river and canal transportation; air port for both land and sea planes.

A contented labor market—not a serious strike in fifteen years.

Jersey City, with its central location and its fine transportation facilities, also draws for labor upon Newark, Bayonne, Paterson, other New Jersey cities, New York and Brooklyn.

An unlimited city water supply; and extraordinary fire and police protection.

Moderation!

THE FRIEND that prolongs your youth

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

SEAFOOD MEASURES STIR VIRGINIA HOUSE

Bill Which Would Put Production Tax on Oysters Set Aside in Assembly.

DISTRICT JUDGES NAMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12.—The seafood situation rapidly became more critical in the Legislature today as the House committee on Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries continued to do battle over the now admitted administration bills for a revision of the seafood industry.

Amendments Defeated.

Delegate A. E. S. Stephens, of Isle of Wight, led an assault that resulted in the passing by indefinitely of the measure that was designed to put a 2-cent-a-bushel production tax on all oysters, whether from private grounds or public rocks, a tax designed to furnish the estimated necessary funds for repletion and other activities outlined for the betterment of the industry.

The committee reported favorably a bill that would raise fishing licenses by 50 per cent, but accepted an amendmnt which would leave the tongers' license as at present, $2, while increasing the patent-tong license from $5 to $10.

The House, 56 to 31, voted down amendments to the workmen's compensation law that would have increased the compensation from 50 to 60 per cent of the average weekly wage, not to exceed $15, as against the present $12 maximum, and after heated argument, advanced the measure to its third reading, carrying the committee amendment provision of 55 per cent of the average weekly wage, not to exceed $14. It will come up on its passage today, and although the vote may be close its passage is expected.

Gov. Pollard, who yesterday flayed the lobbyists, who, he charged, were working against the increase, which is being fought by manufacturers, said he understood they had given up the fight of trying to beat it in the House and had transferred their activities to the Senate.

Judges of several districts, including Justice George L. Browning, of Orange, to fill a place on the bench of the Supreme Court of Appeals, with others, were elected today.

Senators Chalkley and Garrett introduced a bill to increase the number of traffic officers under the direction of the division of motor vehicles by 22 and appropriating $60,000 out of the highway maintenance fund for the purpose. The Senate also received a favorable committee report on the House Verser bill providing for the appointment of a commission to study and codify election laws recommending needed changes.

HUGHES' ENEMIES IN SENATE NOW MUSTER 25 TO 30 VOTES

hoped the Senate demonstration would be a lesson to him.

Asserting that the two major political parties do not represent the economic alignment of the country, Senator Brookhart declared that the Supreme Court does perfectly reflect this alignment.

"The division in the Supreme Court represents the real political situation in the United States today greater than any other alignment," he said.

He divided the court into the reactionaries and the progressives, the latter made up of Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone.

He attacked the Baltimore utility case, in which the majority opinion of the court held that the street railway company could include a $5,000,000 franchise, which the city had given it, in its rate valuation basis.

"This is a monstrous idea," he declared. "The court becomes the greatest confiscator of property in the world under such conditions."

The progressive cause would win or lose by the vote on Mr. Hughes, he declared.

Hughes Called "Lame Duck."

In a subsequent colloquy with Senator Glenn, Senator Brookhart asked: "Do we want to put lame ducks on the court?" referring to Mr. Hughes' candidacy for the Presidency.

"If they are no more lame physically or mentally than Mr. Hughes, I say yes," retorted Senator Glenn.

Senator Dill declared that the court is apparently becoming a haven for defeated presidential candidates.

"Mr. Taft was defeated by the greatest majority a presidential candidate ever received," he declared. "He was then placed upon the court and now Mr. Hughes is to be placed upon it. Is the will of the American people never to be considered in appointing our judges?"

It is the action of the court itself that makes it necessary for the Senate to consider the economic views of a candidate, he declared, explaining that otherwise he would not think it proper to consider them.

Judges Blamed for Law System.

Asserting that the court had seen fit to go into questions of property rights, Senator Dill declared, "It has undertaken to write a system of law not contained in the laws written by Congress and the legislatures.

"Those who have studied the fight of the progressives," he continued, "know that the great resort of those who plunder the people is in the Supreme Court. I do not mean that the judges are dishonest, but by their opinions they compel the people to pay hundreds of millions of dollars' tribute. So the judges themselves are to blame for our bringing in these economic questions to the consideration of a nominee for the Supreme Court."

"I have become sick of a sacrosanct judiciary," he declared. "I no longer think of judges as different from other men. The only chance that the people have in passing upon appointments to the Supreme Court is in the Senate."

Senator Glenn's defense of Mr. Hughes made it necessary for both Senators Norris and Borah to serve notice that they would speak again today.

Asserting that both of these senators agreed in Mr. Hughes' ability, Senator Glenn said their opposition boiled down to the fact that he did not agree with them.

He said he was afraid no lawyer could be found to agree all around with Senator Borah, so if the opposition to Mr. Hughes was pursued it would mean in the final analysis that the President would have to appoint Senator Borah, then Senator Norris would arise and say that although he had a high respect for Senator Borah, he nevertheless differed with him on some views, so Senator Borah's name would have to be withdrawn and Senator Norris' substituted and then Senator Brookhart would object to him because they differed on some matters.

Early Career Is Cited.

Senator Glenn cited Mr. Hughes' earlier career, his career of 20 years ago when he was, indeed, looked upon as a trust buster.

As governor of New York, Mr. Glenn asserted, he initiated the first utility regulatory legislation which has since been copied by many States. He told of Mr. Hughes' advocacy of legislation against child labor, of his upholding the laboring man's right to join a union, of the welfare legislation he advocated as governor of New York.

He said that once Mr. Hughes had represented the United Mine Workers in one of the greatest fights of the organization's life. He advocated the first workmen's compensation law in New York, Senator Glenn declared, and asserted that upon his appointment to the Supreme Court before a New York labor organization had warmly commended him.

"And yet they cry out that he would crush the people in the interest of corporations," Senator Glenn declared.

Senatorial Case Referred To.

He said Senator Norris' criticism of Mr. Hughes' leaving the court to seek the Presidency caused him to "question the motives of some senators," inasmuch as Senator Norris had come to Congress from the bench.

In Senator Norris' absence at the time, Senator La Follette pointed out that Senator Norris had expressly stated that he did not criticize Mr. Hughes for leaving the bench and seeking the Presidency, but did criticize him for having failed to attain it, to accept reappointment to the court now.

Senator Glenn retorted that Senator Norris apparently approved only so much of the course taken by Mr. Hughes as Senator Norris had pursued himself.

CORN WHISKY TRAIL LEADS TO LADEN CAR

Police Impound Automobile and Conscate 140 Gallons of Rum.

DRIVER ESCAPES ARREST

Trailing a stream of corn whiskey, that trickled from the rum laden machine they had lost in a wild chase, two motorcycle policemen followed the course of the seepage and confiscated an automobile, laden with 140 gallons of corn liquor. The driver escaped.

Officers J. T. White and F. L. Rawlinson, of the Traffic Bureau, while at Sixth and Bryant streets northwest, were attracted to a machine speeding through Bryant street. They gave chase. The machine followed a tortuous route through the Northwest section with the policemen speeding in its wake.

The pursuit led through Georgia avenue to Barry place to Ninth street and to a blind alley near Sherman avenue. At the intersection of Barry place and Georgia avenue the quarry had seemingly eluded them.

During the chase the officers noticed that the auto had give several jolts. Thinking that the jounces must have caused bottles to break, they found a thin stream of liquor marking the course of the auto.

They followed the trail and it brought them to the machine in the alley, near Sherman avenue. The driver had jumped from the machine and had entered the front door of the house at 2317 Sherman avenue and ran out the back door. A woman and two children who were sleeping on the upper floor were undisturbed.

Police confiscated the liquor. The machine, which is registered under the name of Nathill Strong, of the 2300 block of Georgia avenue, was impounded.

Police said that the lower floor of the house through which the driver had escaped was unfurnished. They attempted to awaken the occupants in the upper floor, but were unsuccessful.

STRADDLING ON PROHIBITION.

As usually happens when by-elections are held at a time when controversial subjects are under discussion, an effort is made to read unusual significance into the result of the election in the Second District of Massachusetts. The district, in which is located the home of former President Coolidge, is normally Republican, but on Tuesday it elected William J. Granfield, a Democrat. Mr. Granfield ran on an out-and-out wet platform. The Republican candidate, F. D. Griggs, was regarded as a dry, a characterization borne out by his record in the State Legislature, although he declared that he would vote for repeal of the Volstead act if the question came before Congress.

An election in a single, isolated congressional district hardly serves to show which way the wind of general public sentiment is blowing. The fact that a wet Democrat was elected to office in a rock-ribbed Republican district need hardly be considered handwriting on the wall. Numerous local issues enter into a by-election. The electorate of the second Massachusetts District did not go to the polls to discipline the Republican party—to register a protest against prohibition, the tariff, or "hard times."

The more logical explanation of Mr. Granfield's victory is that his campaign was based on a platform that made local appeal. It is possible, however, that the prohibition stand taken by the two candidates, not prohibition itself, had a good deal to do with the result.

Mr. Granfield took a straightforward stand against prohibition. Mr. Griggs adopted the policy that has been popular these ten years of prohibition; he attempted to straddle. That he was defeated when normally he had a right to expect victory may have been because of the attempted straddle.

If Mr. Griggs' defeat may be considered due in whole or in part to the attempted straddle the election should serve to warn politicians that the temper of the people has changed. This would be only natural in view of the fact that the prohibition laws are no longer regarded as closed to discussion. That the significance of this has not been realized was evidenced in the speeches of Representatives Beck and Fort. Mr. Beck attempted a straddle by evading fundamental issues and suggesting that the eighteenth amendment be made inoperative by a policy of nullification. Mr. Fort straddled by suggesting that wines and beers be permitted the wets while the eighteenth amendment together with the Volstead act be retained for the drys. Straddling is a relic of a former phase of prohibition. Now that the question has become open, straightforwardness will command a premium.

CHICAGO'S CRIME RAIDS.

Chicago is manifesting all the symptoms of a political unit in revolution. Its spectacular raids on gangland are as a result of pressure brought to bear by organizations of citizens. The Chicago Association of Commerce has issued an edict that the city shall be purged of organized crime, and since the police and the administration are at the end of their rope a showing has to be made. But what will happen when this puff of enthusiasm subsides?

Extensive raids are being carried on under the guise of a campaign to rid the city of its "reign of terror." The police are making a lot of noise and rounding up vast numbers of the lesser lights in Chicago's criminal firmament, but they have plausible charges against only a few of the 2,000 men arrested. The great majority must be released. Headquarters of the famous Chicago gangs have not been molested, and none of the "higher-ups" has been caught in the dragnet. The raids are obviously a demonstration of the kind that is worthless in the enforcement of law.

Chicago is known as the most lawless city in the world because it has provided the conditions under which crime flourishes. It has become the crime headquarters of the country because there is less resistance to organized crime there. Criminals flock to Chicago for the same reasons that mechanics flock to Detroit, merchants to New York and politicians to Washington. Opportunity draws them and opportunity keeps them there. They will not be frightened away by a few spectacular raids which round up the small fry.

If the citizens of Chicago rise in demand that the city be rid of its gangland, and elect and support officials who are courageous and honest, there will be a migration of assassins from the Windy City. There is no reason why Chicago should suffer more than any other city at the hands of murderers, thieves, kidnapers and professional gangsters, except that these elements are tolerated there. Organized crime has secured a firm grip on the city and it will not be easily dislodged. It will be interesting to see whether the new commercial dictators will be content with spectacular raids or whether they will actually root out crime.

INQUIRY INTO BANKING.

In authorizing its committee on banking and currency to investigate chain, group and branch banking the House has departed from the current general rule of investigation by special commissions. There is widespread disagreement among bankers, legislators and all others who have taken a hand in the discussion over the merits of consolidating banking resources. A fact-finding inquiry is essential to bring out the obscure angles of the problem before any legislation is enacted. By putting its own committee to work the House has provided for a complete airing of the subject and paved the way for early action. The committee is asked to report at this session of Congress.

Branch and chain banking are problems of recent origin. The two systems are quite different, and yet have a close relationship. Each bank in a chain is independent of the others, but they are usually linked together by a holding company controlling a majority of their stock. The usual objections to chain banking are that the holding company which forms the chain is not subject to regulation by State or Federal banking authorities; that the resources of one bank in the group are not available for protection of another, and that rural banks tend to lose their intimate connection with the life of the community when controlled from distant financial centers.

On the other hand, branch banking provides for uniform management and makes each bank a part of the larger organization. The subsidiaries are backed by the combined strength of the central and other branch banks. This type of banking is permitted in most of the States, and is so attractive that many national banks are surrendering their charters to operate under State regulations. The Federal laws at present forbid branch banking except in very restricted areas. John W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency, and others fear disintegration of the national banking system and a growth of chain banking, unless the Federal laws are amended.

A sound banking system is one of the first essentials to a prosperous country. The investigation that is about to be made will be of signal importance to the future of the United States as well as highly interesting to students of modern economic trends.

THE SEA SERVICE BUREAU.

The shipping commissioners' offices were established by law in 1872. The Sea Service Bureau was established, as an employment office, by the Shipping Board in 1921. The duties of the shipping commissioners' offices are duplicated by the Sea Service Bureau. The shipping commissioners' offices are estimated for and reported in the budget. The Shipping Board spends such money as it may determine on the Sea Service Bureau. These shipping commissioners' offices exist for the purpose of seeing that the laws governing navigation are obeyed; hence, the shipment and payment of men are conducted according to law. They give their services free to all American ships, expenses being paid by the Government in the regular way.

The Sea Service Bureau was established as a recruiting and training service during the war. It was reorganized after peace was attained as an employment service for Shipping Board vessels in 1921. The Shipping Board was then operating the greater majority of the tonnage in the foreign trade. It is now operating a fraction, only about 200 vessels. As the assumed necessity of finding men for the Shipping Board vessels diminished the Sea Service Bureau undertook to furnish men for private owners. The Shipping Board claims that the Sea Service Bureau furnishes skilled American seamen. The Fleet Corporation officially reports that of five casualties three resulted from human failures, while two resulted from mechanical failures; 60 per cent, in other words, comes as a result of incompetency in the men and 40 per cent as a result of ineffective gear and appliances. But since the seamen are on board of the vessel to keep the gear and appliances in seaworthy condition, a fair statement of fact would be that 80 to 90 per cent of sea casualties are the result of human failures, while mechanical failures are responsible for the remainder.

The Sea Service Bureau duplicates the service of an agency already established by law. Why should not the bureau be abolished?

"LITTLE CABINET" SALARIES.

Members of President Hoover's "little cabinet" are unanimously agreed that their salaries are too low. They appeared before the House expenditures committee in support of a bill that would raise the salaries of Undersecretaries of the Treasury and State Departments and the Budget Director to $12,000 annually. Other assistant secretaries would receive $10,000.

The chief argument for these proposed increases seems to be that the men occupying these positions could earn larger salaries outside of the Government service. Secretary Wilbur advanced the theory that the departments are in competition for talent with the commercial world, pointing out that positions of this kind can not be considered permanent. Secretary Lamont added that Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, has been offered four times as much salary as he now receives, but he does not care to leave the Government service.

Instances of this kind might be multiplied. Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, is reported to have left a position paying more than eight times as much as he receives from the Government. Charles E. Hughes is willing to leave a law practice which gives him an income of several hundred thousand to become Chief Justice at a salary of $20,500. President Hoover has called so many highly-paid experts into Government service that they have come to be known collectively as the "new patriots." It would be idle to deny that many have refused to take Government positions because of the financial sacrifice involved. Conversely, dozens are devoting themselves to the public service with little or no regard for remuneration.

The Government can not compete with private industry in payment of salaries to its higher executives and administrators. Honor and prestige supplement the salaries paid to department heads and their assistants. Nothing is lost by the refusal of some men, whose principal interest is in salary, to serve the Government. The person who enters public service merely for the remuneration it offers is usually unfitted for such work. The successful public official is never paid in cash what he is actually worth to the country.

For this reason officials' salaries can not be judged by what is paid in private industry. A better criterion is what it costs to live comfortably in keeping with the dignity and importance of the office held. On this basis members of the "little cabinet" are, no doubt, entitled to higher pay.

THE STATES AND THE UNION.

In a Lincoln day speech, delivered at Clarksburg under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Senator Goff observed:

> Governments are not created; they grow out of the past. Constitutions are not struck off in a single convention; they are the slow, deliberative work of the ages.

This fact, and the fact that governments and constitutions are not static, is too often lost to sight. The government and the constitution that gives it being are dynamic. They are in a state of development, subject at all times to the forces of public opinion, and susceptible of modification. The people are masters, not only of the government, but of the constitution.

Senator Goff said further:

> Two theories of government were early interwoven in the growing colonies. Men, in those days, were trained to love the colonies and, by inheritance, to love the state. On the other hand, men saw and felt that in union alone was strength and that no government could endure without the power to enforce its decrees and to compel obedience to its rightful commands. Between these theories there had to be a compromise. The Federal Constitution was such a compromise, and out of it grew the best scheme of popular free government that the world has yet seen tried.

Sometimes there seems to be a tendency to violate the compromise that was effected in the Constitution. The States have not always guarded jealously their prerogatives. The Federal Government has absorbed powers that clearly belong to the States. But a living Constitution stands guard against serious violation of the compromise between the States and the Union. As Lincoln saw so clearly, the States must be preserved if the Union is to endure.

Canaries are now blamed for psittacosis. Why not indict the starling?

President Hoover caught a 45-pound fish while other members of his party didn't get a nibble. No doubt about it; the White House does give a man good experience.

Now a committee in the House has begun hearings on prohibition. Funny that none of those estimates on the economic value of prohibition don't figure in the time wasted in quarreling about it.

THE STARLING'S FLIGHT

From the London Times.

A fascinating exhibition of wingmanship (admission free) is on view evening after evening during these winter months. Each year the starlings in any district which they frequent fix upon a fresh roosting-place to serve them until they pair off in spring.

How is this choice of a common dormitory decided? Is it by decree of an autocracy of elders or by the voice of a multitude numbering several thousand? That is a mystery which may never be revealed; but it is clear that the decision is unanimous; at least, there is no evidence of a minority vote, every bird in the flock returning to the appointed place in the gloaming.

Between dawn and sunrise the sleepers get astir, setting off in little foraging parties numbering from 5 to 50. These fly in various definite directions, some of them to a distance of many miles, and may be seen during the day skirmishing afoot over pastureland or the seashore. The chief display begins about sundown, when the foragers, returning successively at various intervals, alight for a few minutes' rest before joining the main body in a series of elaborate evolutions.

It is impossible to do more than guess at the number in the whole flight, but I can not think that there were less than 3,000 starlings in that which a few evenings ago I watched preparing to roost. The daily amount of food required to sustain such a multitude must not only be very great, but each bird must get its fair share, for there are no weaklings—no laggards in a flight sustained over many miles. How clumsy and noisy must human attempts at flight appear to these birds!

One can not but wonder how maneuvers so elaborate—so precisely executed—are directed and controlled. Silence is maintained strictly in the ranks; we hear no note of command, but some signal must be conveyed for frequent changes of direction, each wheel causing a whirring sound of simultaneous wings.

From time to time the whole flock alights, not on the appointed roosting-place, but on trees or on the ground near it. "Stand easy!" is the word, and in alighting the birds break into sudden chatter. After a minute or so for rest, up rises the throng and resumes maneuvering, until finally the whole flight settles to roost with much clamor, in this instance on a grove of young poplars.

The whole proceeding has lasted about half an hour. Faultless discipline, precision of flight and perfect harmony have combined to provide a very choice entertainment; but it is not desirable that the stage thereof should be set, as sometimes happens, near a dwelling house; for when the birds depart in spring they leave the ground in a shocking mess.

When I was a lad—more years ago than I care to enumerate—a starling's egg of palest blue was reckoned somewhat of a prize. Now, starlings have increased in our island to such an extent as to interfere seriously with the welfare of some other species of small bird.

Sudden Virtue. —From the Detroit News.

NEW LAWS AND CRIMINALS

Because of its far-reaching effect the presumption is always against new legislation, and no law should be enacted except in case of urgent necessity, and not then unless there is no other adequate way to deal with the situation. Particularly is this true with respect to legislation affecting personal conduct, says Judge William Rogers Clay, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

We must leave something to moral training, to the home, to the school and to the church, and if these factors no longer play the part they should play, all of us should unite to restore their former prestige and influence.

Jails and penitentiaries, however indispensable they may be, are a poor substitute for conscience. The creation of new crimes means the multiplication of criminals, and the multiplication of criminals means the multiplication of convicts.

If we go on in our ignorance and continue the making of new crimes at the same rate, it will not be many generations until we shall have a nation composed either of convicts or the descendants and relatives of convicts. In short, we shall have a degenerate people without pride of ancestry, or hope of honorable progeny—a prospect that should appall all those who love their country.

All true progress is through the development of moral fiber, the building of character, and character comes from self-control and not from a strait-jacket.

THE IDLE ROSE BUSH.

I have a rose bush in my yard
Which once with bloom was gay;
Time was, its blossoms I'd regard
The loveliest of May.

But now no buds return in spring,
Though strong the stem appears.
Do roses, I am wondering,
Grow weary with the years?

And do they tire of doing well
And long for toil to cease,
Wishing some time that they may dwell
In never-broken peace?

I know that men of blossoming strength
Who've gained all they desire,
Before they've walked life's longest length
Sometimes from strife retire.

No more the flower adorns the bough,
Though still are blooms required,
I wonder has that rose bush now
Grown wealthy and retired?

The Duck May Find a Larger Pond, But It Won't Find Peacocks There.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

PEOPLE are people, wherever you find them.

If that is a truism it is one that needs repeating, for the world is asquirm with discontented people who think far distant towns inhabited by superior creatures wholly unlike their acquaintances.

In certain favored sections the average of wealth, intelligence and culture is greater than in others, but wise and stupid are everywhere—rich and poor are everywhere—good and bad are everywhere.

If the rich and cultured gather at some lake or beach and make the place fashionable, the poor and unlettered come after them to do the chores and they always find homes they can afford to rent.

In a metropolis there are brilliant men and women who have brought their talent to market, and there are libraries, museums, art galleries and night clubs; but most of the people are workers who never notice the tall buildings and seldom enter the temples of culture prepared for them.

Most of New York is abed by 10 o'clock and the night clubs are left to out-of-town people who make late whoopee because they are away from home.

Out on the farm, in rural villages, in small cities and in great ones—look where you will and you find almost everybody working for a living and interested only in themselves, their neighbors and their jobs.

The ignorant and stupid people in your town are like the ignorant and stupid in all other towns.

The narrow-minded and meddlesome people you know belong to a tribe that infests every settlement in Christendom.

The ugly portions of your town duplicate the sordid and depressing trash heaps found in every town.

If distant towns seem afflicted with less vice and sham and imbecility than your own, you should reflect that a distant field of dog fennel seems brighter than a bed of violets at your feet.

Distance lends enchantment because you can see farther than you can smell.

And if some distant land is blessed with a majority that is wise, virtuous and cultured, what reason have you to suppose you would be happier there?

You will flock with your own kind, wherever you are.

You can't run away from your tastes or your deserts.

If your present acquaintances annoy you because they are ignorant and vulgar, you will be annoyed by the same kind of people when you find your level in some other community.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

REGARDING SKI-JUMPING.

Dear Editor: Will you kindly tell me how you rate ski-jumping among the activities of life? Having been viewing the news reels and rotogravure sections lately, I have been a little surprised to note the vast number of people engaged in this sport. I am a young man, 23 years of age, anxious to get ahead in life, but I am meeting with no success. Nobody seems interested in me. No one pays attention. Do you think it is because I am not a ski-jumper? WORRIED READER.

* * * *

Dear Worried: Your letter reflects the quandary of thousands of newspaper readers and moving picture fans. Your question is timely. We are glad you asked. Ski-jumping is (unless the news reel and rotogravure editors are fooling us) one of the world's major interests. Everybody seems to be doing it, and it tends to make a man who never leaped across an icy valley in his life feel awfully inadequate, not to say silly.

* * * *

It is coming more and more to be realized that without ski-jumping ability a youth is under a serious handicap in life, especially from December to April. If he lives in a country where there is any snow it is absolutely necessary that he jump. And even if he lives in a land where there is no snow or ice he finds it essential to grasp the details of the sport and be able to discuss it, since there is a point in all conversations at which the subject arises.

* * * *

A young man who gets about at all with people who read the papers and go to the picture houses will be under a great advantage if he himself is a master of ski-jumping, and it means a lot to an older man to be able to say "I am an old ski-jumper myself." If it is impossible for you to take up ski-jumping buy, beg or borrow a pair of skis at once, my boy, and attain a reasonable skill at it. It will help you socially and in business.

* * * *

Brokerage houses and insurance companies are becoming glutted with football, baseball and golf stars, but a good bond salesman who has won fame at ski-jumping is hard to find. His services command a premium.

* * * *

Ski-jumping is a character-builder. It develops nerve, courage, self-confidence, poise and assurance. A youth who has become a Grade A ski-jumper never again will know that intuitive fear of falling off a roof or being thrown out of college.

By all means, young man, take up ski-jumping before it is too late. Everybody else has.

A census shows there are twelve Henry Fords in the city of Detroit. Chicago isn't getting such a bad break after all.

A tabloid editor's idea of complete frustration is hearing that a pretty girl who was murdered left behind her no photographs in pajamas or one-piece bathing suit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Referendum Is the Only Means of Ascertaining Public Opinion on the Volstead Act.

To the Editor The Post—Sir: In your editorial entitled "Mr. Beck on Prohibition," in The Post of February 8, you make tha statement that "Apparently the great majority of the American people are not willing to repeal the eighteenth amendment, or even the Volstead act." In a former editorial a similar view was expressed.

It seems strange that any fair-minded person having knowledge of such evidence as is available on the subject should take it for granted that the majority opinion of the American people is in favor of prohibition. We can not know, since no referendum has been held (probably because there is every reason for, and none against, the holding of a referendum); but we have some excellent evidence in the Literary Digest's straw vote of several years ago, the results of which showed majorities of varying size favoring—

(1) The retention of the eighteenth amendment;

(2) The repeal or modification of the Volstead act;

(3) The legalization of the manufacture and sale of wine and beer.

I have not kept a file of the Literary Digest, but my recollection is that the majority against the Volstead act was larger than the majority in favor of the eighteenth amendment.

Now, since the Literary Digest's straw votes have foretold with uncanny accuracy the results of more than one presidential election, is it not reasonable to assume that its straw vote on prohibition is an equally accurate indicator of public sentiment on that subject?

The mere fact that the Antisaloon League succeeded in browbeating most of the State Legislatures into ratifying the eighteenth amendment proves nothing. Consider what happened in Missouri. In November, 1918, at the State election held that year, the people of Missouri voted against State-wide prohibition by a substantial majority somewhere between 60,000 and 80,000. Yet when the State Legislature met in January, 1919—only two months later—it ratified the eighteenth amendment almost unanimously. Did the legislature represent the will of the people? It certainly did not; and the same is undoubtedly true of the action taken by the legislatures of a number of other important States.

The results of the 1928 presidential election do not prove anything, since many who voted for Hoover are opposed to prohibition. (I personally know of five such voters.) And bear in mind that, although Hoover received an overwhelming majority in the electoral college, Smith received a very respectable proportion of the popular vote.

Until we can have a referendum we can only surmise that the majority of the people are for or against prohibition; but in the meantime the only evidence that is in any way trustworthy—namely, the Literary Digest's straw vote—indicates that the majority would wipe the infamous Volstead act off the statute books if given the opportunity to do so by an expression of their sentiments at the polls.

Give us a referendum. Let us have facts, not surmises.

Public Snooping Committee Should Look Into Mileage Question and Cost of Printing Political Speeches.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post the other day on the snoopers was very timely, as well as interesting.

How interesting it would be for the taxpayers if there should be appointed a committee to investigate the mileage question. It would be interesting to ascertain how many congressmen remaining in Washington accepted the mileage not made and how many refused to accept mileage not traveled.

The Public Printer states that the Congressional Record costs the Government for the year 1929 $580,289.31. If the public does not have to foot that bill, who does? Any one familiar with the procedure followed in Congress is aware that 75 per cent of speeches made are for home consumption, and that the member does not pay one cent for composition, envelopes, printing on envelopes, placing of speeches in same, and postage. The Public Printer's report states that it cost the Government in 1929 $54,950.96 to supply speech envelopes to members.

Let's have a public snooping committee. The public might learn something, and the taxpayers' income tax be somewhat reduced—maybe.

S. B., FAIR PLAY.

Doing Away With Guns Does Not Insure Peace, but May Encourage Bluffing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think this naval limitation business is all bunk. Even if the limitation were down, which it is not, instead of up, bunk goes for all the good it will do. Getting rid of guns won't make Uncle Sam and England and France or anbody else more peaceable than it does the common run of citizens. When I and my favorite enemy meet on the street the fact that we have left our shooting irons at home doesn't make us a bit more friendly. If one word leads to another, and then some more, it is likely to lead to fists and then to brickbats and rocks or any other weapon that might be handy. I am an admirer of world peace, but it won't come to the world scrappers by getting rid of their guns. It must come some other way. Unarmed citizens are more apt to put up a bluff than if they hadn't left their guns at home, and a bluff is not a good way to promote peace.

COMMON CITIZEN.

Take That, Jim Beck!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Representative James M. Beck thinks that it is possible for prohibition to destroy the Republican party. Suppose it did; would the country be any worse off? What good excuse can the Republican party give for existing anyway? DEMOCRAT.

PRIMO PARTISANS BATTLE STUDENTS

Several Persons Are Injured During Street Riots in Barcelona.

DICTATOR GOES TO PARIS

Barcelona, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Free-for-all street fights between university students and partisans of Primo de Rivera caused injuries to several persons before daylight this morning.

In protest the students remained away from classes this morning and the university was closed while they paraded to the governor's palace, demanding protection from the adherents of Primo. The governor promised investigation and protection.

Late tonight, as students were returning from a frolic, they were hooted by supporters of Primo and fighting with fists, clubs and stones followed. Police restored order.

Dictator Found in Paris.

Paris, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Primo de Rivera, who slipped into Paris unannounced Tuesday night, was finally found today in the haunts he loved as a student years ago.

Newspaper men searched the large hotels of the city before they located the former Spanish dictator today in a small hotel on the left bank of the Seinne in the Latin Quarter. It was in that region that he lived in his student days.

"I have just come to Paris to spend a few days before going to San Remo," he said. "I shall remain there a few days and then come back to Paris before returning to Madrid."

As to politics, he would say notihng.

"You will excuse me, sir, if I say no more about it," was the way he put it.

Then, with a sigh of fatigue, he took an elevator to his room, saying he would see nobody.

Papers Still Muzzled.

Madrid, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Impatient because the Berenguer cabinet still retains the censorship of domestic newspapers imposed by the Rivera dictatorship, Francos Rodriguez, president of the Spanish Press Association, today asked the premier when the promise of a free press would be fulfilled.

Premier Berenguer assured him that the censorship would be lifted gradually, but declared the government did not believe the time was ripe for the inauguration of the proposed policy.

Francos Rodriguez expects to present the subject to King Alfonso.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

DEAR ALECK: You write this department to learn if there is any school in Washington at which one might prepare for one of Mr. Hoover's commissions.

Why, Aleck, you must be crazy. Of course, there is no such school here. There are schools here in the Nation's Capital to train one for the consular service, how to be a hotel manager, how to get into the law and then there is the great political school.

• • • •

BUT this department, Aleck, has a sincere desire to answer all questions and with that end in view our research bureau has given considerable study to the make-up and origins of Mr. Hoover's commissions.

Now one man recently appointed to a commission, that to study conditions in Haiti, is Mr. William Allen White. Mr. White is a great wit. At the outset of the recent presidential campaign he was so witty that he was pulled off the Republican boards almost as quick as he got on. But Mr. White's display of wit before he was pulled off is not to be forgotten.

It is not known just what is to be Mr. White's function on the Haitian commission, but being a great wit, it is assumed that he is to pry around and develop the latent wit and humor of the Haitians.

• • • •

THEN another appointment was that of Mary Roberts Rhinehart. She is a writer and a novelist. Her appointment was to the commission to study the great question of eminent domain of the West.

This lady is an authority on Western lands. As she said herself she has rested on the great cedar carpets and listened to the rhythmic whistling of the winds, the chirping of the birds, the gurgling of the brooks and the restless oil streams that are steadily pounding away in these Western lands seeking a way to get the air.

In addition, she has taken frequent walks and that, of course, tends to make one an expert on grounds. She also owns a ranch and inasmuch as a truck garden once made Representative Fort, of New Jersey, set himself up as a farm expert, it is readily to be seen that Mrs. Rinehart has no hesitancy in claiming to be an authority on the great land problem of the West.

• • • •

IT WILL be her duty on the commission to develop the natural and forgotten beauties of the land in question; to dig up its folk lore, its uncouth, primitive refinement, the moving, gripping story that it holds for men.

We hope this answers your question, Aleck. There is really no set procedure for one to follow to get on a commission. It is rather an elusive something. You take Will Irwin—he has done everything that Mrs. Rinehart and Mr. White have done and he is not on one.

Paris Paper Posts Reward for Missing Russian Royalist Leader.

Paris, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A reward of $20,000 for information as to the whereabouts of Gen. Alexander Paul Koutiepoff, the white Russian leader who disappeared from the street here more than two weeks ago, was offered today by the newspaper Le Matin.

The reward will be paid whether the general is found dead or alive, but the information must also permit identification of persons responsible for his disappearance.

Le Matin calls upon "any men who acted under the menace of threats from Moscow, to atone for their crime by facilitating the course of French justice."

New Envoy to Germany Formally Presents His Credentials.

Berlin, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Frederic M. Sackett, of Kentucky, became Ambassador Sackett at noon today when he was received by President von Hindenburg in the gilded room of the executive palace reserved for reception of diplomats.

The German president accepted the American envoy's letter of credence, then listened to a brief address by Mr. Sackett stressing German-American friendships, and replied in kind.

After the formal exchange of addresses the German president and the American Ambassador chatted a few moments. When he was leaving, Mr. Sackett complimented Herr von Hindenburg on his health and vigor.

German Reds Riot At Auto Factory

Diet Members Leaders in Opel-General Motors Disturbance.

Ruesselsheim, Germany, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Despite denial by officials of the Opel-General Motors Works here of Communist disorders in their plant, the Hessian government today confirmed that 200 Communists from Frankfurt, augmented by 400 Communists among the Opel workers, had forced other workers from their machines in the plant and attempted to stop the machinery and empty the boilers.

They were led, the announcement said, by Oskar Mueller, Communist member of the Prussian Diet, and a member of the Hessian Diet named Sumpf.

An emergency squad of 200 police surrounded the plant and arrested the Communist leaders, including Mueller and Sumpf. The Prussian police closed the frontier between Wiesbaden and Frankfurt and said the Opel works would be closed to all outsiders, with the workmen inside subjected to strict control.

Senator Gives Brilliant Ball For Chewnings

Mr. and Mrs. Couzens Hosts to Large Group at Carlton.

By JEAN ELIOT.

SENATOR and Mrs. James Couzens were hosts last night at a brilliant ball at the Carlton Hotel, entertaining between 400 and 500 guests from official and resident society. Invited to meet "Miss Couzens," they were presented instead to Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, jr., the marriage of Miss Margo Couzens and Mr. Chewning, which has been so much "in the news" of late, having taken place shortly after invitations for the ball went out.

Vice President Curtis attended the fete, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann. They remained long enough to extend congratulations to the young couple and to greet many of Senator Couzens' colleagues of the Senate, who were present. The entire senatorial group had been invited, although the company for the ball was recruited principally from the younger set, contemporaries of Mr. and Mrs. Chewning.

Dr and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, parents of the bridegroom, had come from Fredericksburg, Va., to attend the ball; and others in the company were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Couzens and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Yaw, the latter formerly Miss Madeleine Couzens. They arrived early yesterday from Detroit and are guests of Senator and Mrs. Couzens at their residence in Woodland Drive.

As the guests were arriving between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock a string orchestra played "conversational music," with dancing—in the Carlton room—beginning about 11 to the music of a famous jazz orchestra. Senator and Mrs. Couzens, with Mr and Mrs. Chewning, received in a drawing room adjoining, which is charmingly decorated in the manner of a French salon.

Mrs. Couzens wore a gown of black chiffon velvet, which was untrimmed and depended for its beauty on grace of line and richness of material. For her formal debut as a youthful matron, Mrs. Chewning had chosen a gown of heavy blue silk shot with threads of gold and silver. It was made in the graceful mode of the moment, with a short train giving an effect of dignity. A string of small perfectly matched pearls was Mrs Chewning's only ornament. This was begun for her when she was a child, new pearls being added with each birthday.

Supper was served in the dining room at midnight and just before this there was a program of exhibition dancing by Miss Lisa Gardiner formerly of the Pavlowa ballet, who had chosen a Spanish dance, a Russian number and a Louis XIV gavotte, for each of which she wore an appropriate and colorful costume. There was general dancing between the numbers, which were announced by Mr. Eben Comins.

Mr. and Mrs. Chewning entertained ten guests at dinner at the Carlton before the ball.

Howards to Entertain For Alastair MacDonald.

The British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard will entertain at luncheon today in compliment to Mr. Alastair MacDonald, son of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, who arrives in Washington today by airplane from the West Coast and will be at the Wardman Park Hotel until Saturday. Mr. MacDonald came from Los Angeles, Calif., where he had conferred with Mr. Herbert Hoover, jr., chief of the radio division of the Western Air Express. Both young men are aviation enthusiasts.

Nobil Donna Antonietta de Martino will be at home at the Italian Embassy on February 28.

Dr. Enrique Olaya, Minister of Colombia, who has been elected President of Colombia, will return to Washington following confirmation of his election to present formally his resignation as Minister to the United States. His inauguration will take place in August. Senora de Olaya, who has remained in Washington through her husband's campaign, has gone to Baltimore to see her daughter, Senorita Lucia Olaya, a student at Notre Dame Academy. She is accompanied by her elder daughter, Senorita Maria Olaya. They will return to Washington today.

The Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Diez de Medina are in New York for a few days and are staying at the St. Regis.

Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur Are Hosts at Dinner.

The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur were hosts at dinner last evening in the Pan-American room of the Mayflower and will also entertain again at dinner on Friday evening.

Their guests last evening included the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Walter F. Brown, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert P. La-

Dixon, Mrs. Horace Albright, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Marye and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Scattergood.

Dr. Hubert Work, formerly Secretary of the Interior, will sail on February 15 for Bermuda with Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, to be absent several weeks. Gov. Fisher and Dr. Work, who were boyhood friends in Indiana County, Pa., have been in Washington for a day or two discussing plans for their proposed holiday—and presumably politics.

Mrs. Henry C. Corbin entertained at dinner last evening for a small company asked to meet Lady Rhodes, who is her guest.

Mrs. John Crayke Simpson was hostess at dinner last evening, entertaining at the Chevy Chase Club.

Dr. M. W. Perry And Miss Dial Are Married

Nuptials Announced by Former Senator of South Carolina.

Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement by former Senator and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial, of South Carolina, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Fannie Dodson Dial, and Dr. Matthew White Perry yesterday at noon at the Dial home on Kalorama road. The Rev. John C. Palmer officiated.

Although unheralded, even to intimates, the wedding brings no element of surprise to many who knew of the engagement of the two popular young people. Spring flowers, with palms and ferns, decked the house. The bride had selected a gown particularly adapted to her type, one of creamy lace and tulle, with bodice closely fitted and long sleeves of the tulle. A veil of tulle shrouded the lovely dress. The bride carried calla lilies.

Miss Dorothy Dial, sister of the bride, and Miss Mildred Perry, sister of the bridegroom, were her attendants, the former wearing a becoming spring-like costume of deep lavender lace and the latter in a similar costume of green lace, each carrying a sheaf of pink roses. Dr. William Earl Clark was best man.

Only a small group of relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony, a breakfast following, when Mrs. Dial and Mrs. Perry, mother of the bridegroom, who came from Norfolk for the wedding assisted.

After the breakfast Dr. and Mrs. Perry left on a wedding journey, and on their return will make their home in the Presidential Apartments for the present.

Dr. Perry is a graduate of Guilford College and of the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, where he won the coveted Spencer-Morris prize. After serving as an interne at the Pennsylvania Hospital, he came to Washington, where he is engaged in the practice of his profession. He is also professor of clinical medicine at the Georgetown University School of Medicine.

The wedding of Miss Helen Benton Stonebraker, niece of Capt. G. Livingston Thompson, U. S. A., and Mrs. Thompson, to Capt. Marion Carson, U. S. Cavalry, took place yesterday at 4 o'clock in St. John's Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The bride's gown was of parchment satin, fashioned in the prevailing mode. The cap and veil were of rose point lace and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

Miss Dorothy Tyng, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. F. C. Tyng, was maid of honor. She was becomingly gowned in an orchid and pink frock, with shoes and hat to match, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Capt. William Donaldson, of West Point, was best man. The ushers, also of West Point, included Capt. Lloyd Durfee, Capt. Frank Carr, Capt. William Reinburg and Capt. Leo Warner.

A small reception for the bridal party and immediate friends of the family followed the ceremony.

Capt. and Mrs. Carson will be at home after March 1 at Fort Riley, Kans.

Miss Rachel Cooke Niedomanski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Niedomanski, and Mr. Michael McGinnis Mahoney were married yesterday at 5 o'clock in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral. Mr. Mahoney is the son of Mr. and Mrs Frank Mahoney, of Atlanta, Ga.

The Rev. Joseph Fletcher performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully gowned in old ivory satin enhanced by a veil of point d'esprit caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Her maid of honor, Miss Helen Sutherland, chose a bouffant model in peach satin. With it she wore a picture hat in matching tones and carried a bouquet of Hill roses. The other attendants were Miss Elizabeth Birkhead, Miss Betty Steedman, and Miss Aline McDaniel; each wearing period gowns of satin in pastel shades with hats to match and nosegays of spring flowers.

The best man was Lieut. James P. Berkeley, U. S. M. C. The ushers were Capt. James M. Pearce, Capt. Dudley S. Brown, and Lieut. Bayard L. Bell.

A reception followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Niedomanski receiving at their home, which was decorated in palms, ferns and bride roses. Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney will be at home at the Charleston Navy Yard, Charleston, S. C.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Sarah Lord Chapin, daughter of Mrs. Delphine Lord and widow of Mr. Byron Adelbert Chapin, to Mr. Henry Livermore Hunter. The ceremony took place yesterday at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Chapin, 1827 Kilbourne place. The Rev. Mark Depp, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, officiated. On their return from a wedding trip to Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will be at home at 1827 Kilbourne place.

Home in Paris Is Established By Joerissens

Residence Here Leased by Couple to Arms Inventor.

Shaking the dust of Washington from their feet more or less permanently, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Joerissen will leave town toward the end of February for Paris, where they expect to make their home in the future. Although they have lived abroad for many years, Mr. Joerissen having been foreign representative of an important manufacturing firm, heretofore Mr. and Mrs. Joerissen have always maintained a house at 1619 Massachusetts avenue, in which they have spent part or every year. This time, however, to the regret of their many friends, they have leased their house for a fifteen-year period, and, as Mr. Joerissen has made new connections with Paris as his headquarters, will live abroad for some years, coming home only for occasional visits.

It is a Britisher, Sir Charles Ross, who has taken Mr. and Mrs. Joerissen's house. The inventor of the Canadian service rifle has been a resident of Washington for some time, finding that the climate of his native Scotland does not agree with him, and his present residence is at 1721 New Hampshire avenue.

The house which Mr. and Mrs. Joerissen have owned for a number of years has finely proportioned high ceilinged rooms, which have been decorated in the French manner and make a charming setting for beautiful old furniture picked up abroad. They expect, however, to take their lares and penates with them to be installed in an apartment in Paris. Mr. Joerissen was for many years in the United States Foreign Service.

At the Salon Sutro to be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Carlton four pretty girls will serve as ushers. As is the custom at this series of afternoon concerts arranged by the Misses Rose and Ottilie Sutro, the work of an American composer, Mr. Harold Morris, will be featured.

Mrs. Olinus Smith entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Kenwood Country Club for her sister, Mrs. Robert C. Jefferds, and Mrs. Everett, both of Charleston, W. Va., who are visiting Mrs. Jefferds' mother, Mrs. George Cooper.

Miss Mary Temple Hill will return Sunday from Philadelphia, where she has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Richard W. Wilkinson, who are passing the winter in Philadelphia. Mrs. Wilkinson was formerly Miss Elizabeth Armentraut.

Mrs. Rust Aims At Career as Art Director

Capital Matron's Debut Is Scheduled for Saturday.

Mrs. Harry Lee Rust, jr., is finding a new method of expression for her highly developed artistic talents. For some time she has been working with the Junior Theater, which enjoyed a successful season at the Wardman Park Theater last year, and when this organization, pledged to produce plays which have a particular appeal for young people, opens its new season at the Shubert-Belasco Theater on Saturday, Mrs. Rust will make her formal debut as its art director.

When Mrs. Rust was elected to this position last spring, she went to Paris to make special preparation for her work and studied for several months with an assistant to Max Reinhardt. In this time she made miniature models of stage settings to be used in this year's productions of the Junior Theater. Several of these had the distinction of being chosen for an important exhibition of stagecraft given in Paris last autumn.

The setting which she has designed for "The Ivory Door," to be presented as the Junior Theater's first offering, was one of those exhibited.

Mrs. Rust will entertain a box party at both the afternoon and evening performances on Saturday. Others who are entertaining, or who have taken seats are Miss Sue Pollard, daughter of the Governor of Virginia; Mrs. William E. Chandler, jr., Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson, Mrs. Alexander Stewart, Mrs. Daniel Borden, Miss Bessie Kibbey, Mrs. Dwight Clark, Mrs. Hewitt Wells, Mrs. Holland S. Chase, Mrs. Richard S. Oulihan, Mrs. E. R. Finkensteadt, Mrs. W. Calhoun Stirling, Mrs. Frieda Fraser, Mrs. Arthur Stanley Riggs, Mrs. L. G. Hallett, Mrs. Edmund D. Rheem, Mrs. Robert E. Mattingly, Mrs. Robert S. Pickens, Mrs. F. A. D. Hancock, Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, and Mrs. Brainard Parker.

The University Club will entertain members and guests at a concert tonight, featuring Mr. Kurt Hetzel, pianist, and Mr. Bernhard G. Spille, tenor, accompanied by Mr. Paul Whitney Fishbaugh, pianist. Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway, chairman of the entertainment committee, will introduce the artists. Following the concert, a supper will be given by the board of governors in honor of the artists and distinguished members of the audience.

The Air Attache of the Italian Embassy, Commander Silvio Scaroni, has returned to his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after passing several months touring.

Mr. and Mrs Francis E. Drake, of Chicago, are guests at the Willard, having stopped off in Washington on their motor trip from Miami Beach en route to their home in Chicago.

MUENCHEN SALVAGE BELIEVED POSSIBLE

Inspection Indicates Burned German Liner Can Be Lifted From Mud.

DAMAGE IS $3,000,000

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The North German Lloyd Liner Muenchen, wrecked by a fire which swept through her palatial interior after she docked yesterday from Bremen, can be raised from the mud of the Hudson River and refitted, officials of the line believe.

Capt. Feodore Drechsel, the line's marine superintendent, and the liner's deck and engine crews boarded her today and made a preliminary inspection after firemen had finally extinguished the blaze that caused an estimated damage of more than $3,000,000 and claimed two lives. The Muenchen's stern is lying on the river bed with only its superstructure showing above.

The fire, starting in the No. 6 hold, ate its way forward beyond the midsection of the ship, but the tons of water poured into the hull prevented the flames from reaching the forward holds where cargoes of an explosive nature were stored.

Tube Service Is Resumed.

Service in the Hudson tubes, connecting Manhattan and New Jersey, which had been discontinued because the hull of the Muenchen lay directly over the tunnels and it was feared might split them open if a heavy blast occurred, was resumed at 6 a. m., two hours before the fire was out.

Capt. Drechsel said he did not believe the series of explosions which ripped up the deck plates and blew open the hatches on the stern had seriously damaged the hull.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined. Henry Schuengel, resident director of the North German Lloyd Line, said that experiments had been made with samples of the cargo and no combination which would explode or cause spontaneous combustion had been found.

Spontaneous Combustion.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy reported to Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman tonight that a preliminary investigation into the circumstances of the fire on the Muenchen convinced there is every reason to attribute the blaze to spontaneous combustion of the cargo in hold No. 6. He said he did not believe the fire was of incendiary origin.

Brophy's statement was based on information he obtained from stevedores and members of the crew who were in the hold unloading cargo when the fire broke out. The fire marshal said the fire broke out after about 150 tons of the cargo in hold No. 6 had been removed and not while the vessel was at sea.

THE one-sidedness in dahlia purple chiffon is what makes Style No. 8213 so outstandingly smart and slender.

Why, even the neckline is partial to one-sidedness and is joined by jabot frill in pretty cascading effect.

This combined one-sidedness, carries out verticle line that gives the figure charming length.

It's an adorable dress for afternoons, dinner and Sunday night wear.

It's quite simple to make, with upper tier stitched to the skirt along perforated lines, with the lower tier joined to edge of skirt.

Bandits Seize Police, Rob Safe and Escape

Oilton, Okla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Two men armed with sawed-off shotguns captured a policeman and a night watchman here early today, cracked the safe of Oscar Anderson, Inc., automobile dealer, and escaped with $500 in cash and $1,500 in securities.

The two men also stole a new automobile from the motor company, in which they made their escape after leaving H. C. Hattabauch, night policeman, in a refrigerator car at the railroad siding, and binding and gagging C. S. Padgett, night watchman at the automobile plant, with adhesive tape. As they fled westward through Payne County, they engaged in a gun fight with sheriff's officers.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 11.

Salaries paid employes constitute one of the largest items of business expenses which are deductible from gross income. To be allowed such, claims must conform closely to the words of the revenue act, which provides for the deduction of "a reasonable allowance for personal services actually rendered." The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services. Money paid an officer of a corporation for which no services are rendered, or for services inadequate to the compensation, is not deductible as salary. Reasonable compensation is held to be an amount that ordinarily is paid by like enterprises in like circumstances for like services. For example, an officer of a corporation received in 1929 compensation in excess of the amount ordinarily paid for services such as he rendered, and which bore a relationship to the amount of his stock holdings. The excess would not be treated as salary, but as a distribution of earnings of the corporation, and the amount of such excess would not be considered a deductible item.

An Investment that does not fluctuate in value—
Life Insurance

OWNERS of life insurance have had occasion recently to compare the stability of this form of investment with that of even the highest grade securities.

A chart of the market price averages of leading stocks for twenty years shows an irregular line that rises and dips, sometimes vertically, with "peaks and valleys".

There are no "depressions" in the investment values of life insurance policies. They do not fluctuate with business cycles. From year to year, the 44 million Metropolitan Life Insurance policies show a steady increase in values to policy-holders.

The man who regularly invests part of his earnings in life insurance can go to sleep each night with the knowledge that he is building an estate of the greatest security and with a sure investment return for every dollar paid in.

Life insurance is an investment whose value constantly increases the longer it is kept in force.

BABY BIRTH RECORD BETRAYS FUGITIVES

Pair Sought for Murder of Policeman Caught in Chicago Net.

ONE MAN CONFESSES

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Traced by means of a baby's birth record, two men sought in connection with the slaying of a Cleveland policeman and numerous Ohio robberies, were arrested here today.

The pair, Charles Hannick, alias Hanowich, 22, and George Williams, alias John Lord, 64, paroled Illinois convict, were taken by local police assisted by Cleveland officials who had intercepted a letter telling of the birth of a child to Mrs. Hannick.

An examination of local birth records revealed the address of the Hannicks, and the suspect surrendered without resistance.

Hannick furnished police with the address of Williams, who was arrested along with Miss Jewell Long, 21 years old, of Sioux City, Iowa. Under questioning Hannick said Williams shot and killed Patrolman Carl Sherman and wounded Sergt. Martin Hoffman, when the police interrupted the pair during an attempted holdup of the Willis garage at Seventy-ninth street and Euclid avenue in Cleveland on the night of March 6. Hannick also confessed he and Williams held up the Roumanian Savings & Loan Co. in Cleveland April 10, obtaining $4,200.

Both men, who police said are suspected of complicity in a number of other Ohio bank robberies, announced they will waive extradition, and are expected to be returned to Cleveland tomorrow. Officials indicated Mrs. Hannick and Miss Long would be released.

$50,000 in Damage In Big Farm Fire

Home of New Yorker Near Annapolis Is Saved by Firemen.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 12.—Flames swept the farm of Martin H. Smith, of New York, at Hillsmere, near here, this afternoon and did $50,000 damage before being extinguished by three annapolis fire companies. A three-story hay barn, two granaries, a corn crib, a chicken hatchery, two garages, and two automobiles were destroyed.

Firemen were able to keep the blaze from the residence and also the gardener's home, though the latter was endangered. Twenty horses, six cows, and several wagons and carriages were rescued from the barn.

H. F. Myers, manager of the estate, discovered the fire while fodder was being cut in the barn. Employes of the farm were unable to stop the spread of the blaze. The Eastport, West Annapolis and the Independent fire companies were called. Chief H. J. Medford of the Eastport company, was in charge.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A 68-year-old man was sentenced to life imprisonment today for shooting and killing William Hiteshue, 73, of Tarentum, who, he said, had laughed at him.

The man was Herman Kummer, of Tarantum, found guilty of first-degree murder by a criminal court jury. He admitted shooting Hiteshue when, he said, Hiteshue laughed at him and reached into his pocket as if for a weapon when he found him with Mrs Abbie Holl, of Tarantum, who married Kummer without divorcing her first husband. His shots, he testified, however, were intended to go into the air. Notice of appeal was given.

Why Fat
WHEN SO MANY FIND IT EASY TO REDUCE

All can see everywhere that countless people have found the right way to fight fat. Slender figures now prevail. Excess fat has largely disappeared. Mark the people you know who in late years have gained new youth and beauty, new health and vigor, by combating fat.

One great reason lies in the discovery that most fat people have an under-active gland. Its failure to control nutrition permits too much food to form fat. Modern physicians, in treating obesity, combat that cause.

Their method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. Each box contains the formula, also the reasons for the good results. People have used Marmola for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. And the results have come without abnormal exercise or diet.

Why retain your excess fat when so many have ended theirs? Go try their method—try it now. Get Marmola, read the book in the box. Take four tablets daily, as directed, and watch the changes that occur. Do this in justice to yourself, to please your family and friends. You will be delighted.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

1 All you need is an ordinary saucepan, a strainer and a 3-lb. can of Crisco. Put Crisco into a cold saucepan and heat slowly. Test with a small cube of bread to determine when Crisco is hot enough for frying. For previously cooked foods (croquettes, fish-balls, etc.) bread should brown in 40 seconds. For uncooked foods (fritters, oysters, etc.) in 60 seconds. For raw potatoes, (chips, French-fried), in 20 seconds.

2 Don't wait for Crisco to smoke. Fill your strainer half full of the food and lower it into the Crisco. Increase the heat, as the cold food naturally cools the Crisco a little.

French frying—simplified!
and a secret of better taste

3 When the food is brown and well done, lift strainer out of the fat, shake lightly, drain the food on absorbent paper.

4 Now strain Crisco into an empty can, through cheesecloth or a fine sieve, and set aside to cool. You can use Crisco over and over for anything you want to fry. The taste of one thing will not be carried to another.

WHEN you come to think of it, should you ever fry in a fat you are unwilling to taste?

You taste milk. You test eggs. Now, taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Then you'll understand why Crisco's own sweet, fresh flavor so improves the taste of your cakes, pies, hot breads, cookies and fried foods.

CRISCO is used in the Cooking School now being conducted by this paper

Mrs. Frances Northcross, of The Post Cooking School, stresses the importance of modern cooking methods and modern ingredients. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends Crisco.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

GIRL AND SEVEN MEN TAKEN IN RUM RAIDS

Police Say Man Fled as Lillian Wallace Was Trapped in Home.

GAMING CHARGES MADE

A young woman and seven men were arrested in a series of liquor and gambling raids yesterday by members of the police vice squad.

The woman, Miss Lillian Elizabeth Wallace, 21 years old, was arrested on charges of possessing five quarts of liquor and maintaining a disorderly house, and three men, Fred Taggert, 24; Stanley Gray, 24, and Harvey Schult, 25, were arrested on possession charges when Sergt. Cesar J. Letterman and Detective Richard J. Cox and James Mostyn invaded a house on Randolph street northwest near North Capitol street.

Miss Wallace, police said, was found by the raiders asleep in her bedroom and arrested. A man, who was also in the room, escaped through a window, the raiders reported.

John Edward Miller, 25 years old, was arrested on a warrant charging violation of 865-b of the District code, which concerns gambling, at a cigar store on E street northwest near Twelfth street. The raiders reported that a crowd of persons were in the store at the time the warrant was served. Miller was liberated under $2,000 bail at the First Precinct.

In a poolroom on North Capitol street near F street the raiders arrested Toy Crawford, colored, 33, alleged proprietor of the room, and charged with possession of two quarts of liquor and permitting gaming. Police said that Frank Gleason, colored, 24, and Beverly Jamison, colored, 36, were arrested in the place when found engaged in "shooting craps."

Woman Explorer in Capital On Way to Amazon Jungles

To Visit Chicago Where "Men Shoot People in the Street."

MRS. VIOLET CRESSY-MARCKS.

Mrs. Violet Cressy-Marcks, noted English explorer and soldier of fortune, is in Washington for a three-day stopover on a journey that will bring her to the jungles of the Amazon.

The interpid explorer, who bears physical vestiges of harrowing experiences in the Tropics, the desert and the frozen North, is somewhat anxious to visit Chicago, "to see these men that run around shooting people in the street."

Her most recent expedition was of ten months' duration in the Arctic. Miles north of the Arctic Circle, she crossed Lapland into Russia, camping out on the Russian frontier with the thermometer registering 53 degrees below zero.

Nor is she daunted by the dangers that confront her on her itineraries. On her left hand she bears a livid scar inflicted by an Arab, and on the bridge of her nose is a mark from a bullet wound that she received in a fight on the desert.

Her lust for adventure began during the World War when she left school in England to join the Red Cross. During the latter part of the conflict she was stationed in Italy in the ambulance service. Soon after the armistice she began a series of travels.

Since 1925 she has spent the greater part of her time away from civilization. In her brief years she has failed to slake her thirst for adventure. In spite of enormous hardships she has driven her own sleds in Alaska, traveled through Lapland, trekked through African deserts and jungles from Capetown to Cairo.

Camel caravans accompanied her through the Sahara, Syrian and Arabian deserts, and she has shot big game in Tibet, the Kongo, Himalayas and the Dyak country of Borneo.

Virtually all of the centers of ancient art and culture have been studied by her. There are but few quarters of the world which she has not seen. Curios she has found on her journeys form a collection which she has exhibited on numerous occasions for charity purposes.

On most of her journeys she has been unaccompanied except for native guides. Scientific specimens she has gathered and astronomical observations she has made form part of the collections of the museums of England.

With all her hardships and narrow escapes from death her youthful charm and manner remains unspoiled. Her graceful carriage and fresh complexion has not been harmed by the blasts of the Arctic and the searing heat of the desert.

Her jaunts to all countries of the world have given her a firm grasp of international art and politics and has gifted her with a unique philosophy of life.

Unlike most women, she has no use for a powder puff. She has never smoked and finds no use at all for a mirror, she says.

Her present journey will take her through Detroit and Chicago to California. From there she will fly to Florida and then she will embark for South America where she will explore the Amazon.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

The traffic regulations of the District of Columbia cover one's private driveway whether or not one is aware of that fact. A driveway and an alley are treated exactly the same.

With regard to the manner in which one shall drive out of either, the regulations are quite specific. Speed of emergence into the street is limited to three miles an hour and it is specified that the driver shall come to a complete stop before crossing the sidewalk.

Example: A motorist is driving out of a driveway which runs parallel with the side of his house. Approaching the sidewalk, he sounds his horn and proceeds across without stopping. Although traveling at a speed of three miles an hour or even less, he has violated the law by failing to stop.

LINCOLN'S MEMORY EVOKES LAUDATION

Maine Republicans Are Told Party Is Again Facing Crisis in History.

BUST GIVEN TO LONDON

Portland, Me., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Republican leaders of Maine, assembled at the annual banquet of the Lincoln Club tonight to pay tribute to Abraham Lincoln, were told that the party "is again approaching a crisis in its history," and that attacks on the eighteenth amendment by newspapers and members of Congress were "a challenge to the Lincolnian conception of our Federal Union."

Practical politics came to the fore when Gov. William Tudor Gardiner announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to succeed himself.

Representative Florence P. Kahn, Republican, California, assailed Federal legislation as a "panacea for all ills of the body politic" and called upon Republicans to "cut away the practices and doctrine that threaten to strangle the roots of the party" as it approaches "its crisis."

Dr. Schurman's Tribute.

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Speaking at the forty-fourth annual Lincoln dinner of the National Republican Club tonight, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former Ambassador to Germany and former envoy to China, declared that "wherever men struggle for human freedom and the right to govern themselves, the name of Lincoln is engraved on their hearts if not visibly inscribed upon their banners."

Describing conditions as he found them in China during his stay there, Dr. Schurman said the ideals of America and of Lincoln were the original inspiration of that republic.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, spoke of the achievements of the Republican party, past and present.

Deploring the "widespread disregard for law," Mr. Hurley said, "law can not be maintained by the use of force alone. I am not referring particularly to prohibition now, but to the widespread indifference on the part of individual citizens toward the observance of every fundamental law.

"The great appeals that we heard in the days of our youth for temperance, law enforcement, right thinking and right living," he continued, "seem all to be lost in the demand for the use of force."

Bust Given to London.

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A bust of Abraham Lincoln, the work of Andrew O'Connor, Irish-American sculptor, who presented it to the city of London as a token of Anglo-American friendship, was unveiled at the Royal Exchange today by the Lord Mayor, Sir William Waterloo. It was formally presented to the city by the Marquis of Crewe who acted for the Marquis of Reading, chairman of the Lincoln committee.

The bust is carved from a block of American limestone quarried near Lincoln's birthplace.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Representative J. Will Taylor, Republican national committeeman for Tennessee, told a gathering of Republicans at a Lincoln Day dinner here tonight that the Republican party is the only agency to which "the voters of Tennessee, tax-burdened to the point of exhaustion, can look for deliverance."

Praising the memory of Abraham Lincoln, Mr. Taylor said: "Next to the Humble Carpenter—the Lowly Nazarene—in my judgment, Abraham Lincoln was the greatest individual that ever lived "in the tides of time."

THEN SHE REALIZED . . .

"a dash of Sugar will give me that flavor..." and it did

She was trying to make a French dressing such as her neighbor made. But all her experiments with familiar seasonings failed to give her the right flavor until she thought of sugar. And a dash of sugar was just what was missing!

If you ever try to copy something you have eaten somewhere, and it doesn't taste the way you know it should, give a thought to sugar.

A dash of sugar will work wonders in the making of salad dressings or piquant sauces. In broiling or roasting meats, in vegetable cookery, nothing will take the place of a little sugar in securing or developing a pleasing flavor. Many of the popular French dishes include sugar, added during the cooking process.

A quick test for finding the flavor value of sugar is to mix a pinch of it with a pinch of salt. Taste it — there's no better flavor. Use such a combination of sugar and salt in cooking vegetables. It will ideally heighten the flavor of peas, corn, spinach, carrots and tomatoes. Baste lamb chops as they broil with this mixture — ¾ teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful vinegar, 1 teaspoonful sugar, and 5 tablespoonfuls salad oil.

Where is the child who will turn up his nose at vegetables and cereals flavored with a dash of sugar? As a matter of fact, doctors and dieticians recommend the use of sugar in flavoring such foods because it makes them more palatable. The Sugar Institute.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SITTING on the sidelines watching the political raids on the Federal Radio Commission, one wonders what has become of the civil service and why it has no application in connection with the $7,500 and $10,000 legal and engineering plums which are being so freely handed out.

The latest news from the military front, at the Radio Commission, is that in the reorganization the skids are to be put under Carl H. Butman, secretary, to make a place for one politically deserving now employed by the commission and supposed to have strong administration backing.

THE exact circumstances which led up to Abraham Lincoln being carried into the little house in which he died was vividly told last night by Lewis G. Reynolds, custodian, speaking from that house over a Nation-wide Columbia network:

"After Booth had shot the President the injured man was hurried out into the street and into the air, as soon as it was possible to do so, hoping, of course, to find some vehicle or contrivance in which he could be taken to the White House," Mr. Reynolds explained.

"No ambulance could be had quickly in those days, and with nothing at hand but the family carriage, the wound being so desperate, those who had the President in charge knew that he could not live to get there. But just as though arranged by Providence, they glanced across the street and saw a dim light in the two front windows of this house."

ALISTER MacDONALD, son of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, will speak over the radio from New York Saturday night.

The White House knows nothing of a reported visit of "Amos n' Andy," who are said to have in mind calling on the President.

MARIA JERITZA, Viennese operatic star, is to be heard a week from tonight through WRC in a Wagnerian program.

The broadcasting of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra concerts by the Columbia system will not begin until next fall. They will originate in Carnegie Hall, the Metropolitan Opera House and the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

FROM the radio tabloid "Juliet and Romeo," with Fannie Brice as Juliet:

Father (upstairs, calling to Juliet)—Who is that loafer down there?

Juliet—It's Romeo.

Father—What does he want?

Juliet—He wants to marry me.

Father—He will have to see me first.

Juliet—He did, and he still wants to marry me."

Jane Interprets the Mode

Utterly lovely . . . this pale green chiffon and lace evening ensemble, with its white fox and odd coat. (Courtesy of Drecoll-Beer, Paris.)

Paris, Feb. 12.

"SO, it's a studio frock, is it? Oh, I see!"

Well, it looks more like a pain in the neck to me, if any one tried to work in it," says La Secretaire Americaine very pertinently, if slightly inelegantly. And that's just the way it strikes me, too, if you want to know it!

But I s'pose the dear things must have a little fun—and for those who see not behind the scenes, a "studio" seems to be all finished painting and afternoon teas.

At that, I s'pose they had to call 'em something—and they are lovely, those elaborate pajama suits that sorta happen along every now and then in the best regulated collections. Always the trousers are velvet or lame (lah-may), spurning the more practical flat crepe or satin, which are actually practical for studio working. Always the blouses are lame or chiffon or velvet, usually lavishly fox-collared. And always the lady and the studio frock are lovely.

Have you a little studio frock in the offing? Well, I hope not—but then, if you just can't live without one——

And then a lovely Riviera ensemble of Drecoll-Beer, which just simply had to be sketched for you! Pale green lace, pale green chiffon, white fox—but it wasn't only that so much as it was the way all these three were assembled.

See on the dress, for instance, in the illustration, where the chiffon meets the lace. Then see again that the very odd coat of chiffon has two long draping side panels, which fall down over the lace skirt of the dress.

Isn't it lovely? Riviera and Palm Beach styles presage summer, you know!

* * * *

After all, it's the jacket or the blouse that makes the spring ensemble! The modish beige or dark blue depends for its colorful touch upon the blouse. You can add just that touch yourself, with an idea from this week's illustrated leaflet for which you have only to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

There's a swirl-of-color design, a bordered bolero, stripe and triangular motifs, oh, some perfectly slick ideas. One of them, at least, is for your spring jacket—hurry!

The weekly Dare fashion letter appears in the Capital exclusively in The Sunday Washington Post.

"Grandfather Comes Back."

LONG TIME ago this column found a grandfather! He came out of a clear sky with over 70 years of experience and a great gift of expression. He offered wonderful bits of wisdom to warring folks who were sorry they were married or sorry they couldn't manage to be. He brought to this column a great glad calm. He looked back into the years that he had lived and offered what he had learned that we might profit. He told us that no one really knew when they were happy. He told us that troubles made character. The column readers loved grandfather, and the column writer pondering over a difficult column letter often wondered how grandfather would answer it; what grandfather would advise. But for over two years grandfather was never heard from. And now today, dear grandfather comes back, and with real wisdom, too! "Don't put things above experience" says grandfather, and a lot more. Read his letter and remember he is over 70 years old, bless his wonderful heart and its dear wisdom.

Dear Miss McDonald:

You stack up admirably with the late Joseph Cook's definition of the college sophomore, "who can ask more questions than any man can answer." Here you come again with the query: "What is the matter with men?" egged on by the letters of two very discontented, and unhappy wives. My first inclination is, being the seventh generation of Yankees from Plymouth Rock, to answer your question by asking another: "What is the matter with the women?" These complaining wives! One says her husband gives her $14 a week for the house expenses, and because of this she seems to have lost all mental balance and poise. Such wives do not think their little problems out clearly. They want things, and in their colossal discontent abuse the poor men whom choice, fate or destiny have given them for husbands. Are they too idle or too lazy to cultivate a tolerant spirit? Are they unable to appreciate the true values of life? Do they wish to substitute mere things for experience? Do the "movies" constitute their mental pabulum, or an automobile give them happiness.

Why that unhappy girl who growls that her husband gives her only $14 a week would not be a whit more contented if her allowance was $28 or $42. The more she would be given the more she would want. She is a disciple of unrest. She frets over trivialities, finds fault with her husband and probably nags him week in and week out. He, good-natured fellow that he is, just lets her fret and keeps up the $14 weekly allowance. That wife is in a state of mind largely of her own creation. She has lost poise and does not know it. Her mind has fed upon itself until it is half burned out.

Anybody reading her letter feels sorry for her, of course; but why can not the poor woman see that the remedy lies in her own hands? That husband is no fool, and he is neither cruel nor what we call tight. He just knows his wife better than she knows herself. If that stony husband were once approached by a wife in calm and sensible manner, if he were once convinced that the needs of the household were greater than the $14 a week, and convinced in words not barbed with sarcasm and toned in complaint, whatever the distracted woman needed would surely be forthcoming. I suggest that this wife try putting her house problems on a business basis, give the husband calm and common sense showdown in place of nervous and irritable complaint. I venture to opine that this stubborn husband would be so surprised that he would hand over his checkbook, acknowledging that she is a better man than he.

Again, what is the matter with the restless discontented and unhappy wives? Why do they not glory in their tasks, welcome the unbounded experiences that wifehood in so difficult an age offers, and aid instead of hamper the men who are their husbands?

GRANDFATHER.

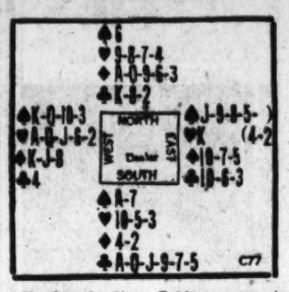
WORK ON BRIDGE

Interesting Hands I Have Met.



IN the Auction Bridge game in which this hand was played, South bid one Club, West doubled, North went to three Clubs hoping to shut out East; but East bid three Spades, South four Clubs and West four Spades; then, after passes by North and East, South ventured five Clubs. This bid was made mainly as a protective measure, South fearing that the opponents would make game at Spades.

At Contract South would bid two Clubs, West would double, North would bid five Clubs.

The Play.

In the play the King of Spades was led by West and won by South; and it is South's play to trick 2 that I want to emphasize. Probably three-quarters of all bridge players in this situation would lead a second Spade for a dummy ruff, and a large percentage of those who did not make this play would lead trumps. But the South who played this hand realized that there was no hope of making his contract unless he had quite a bit of luck. He stood to lose three Heart tricks unless he could discard some of South's Hearts on dummy's Diamonds.

The success of the Diamond finesse looked probable because of West's double, but the luck would come in in finding the adverse six Diamonds evenly divided. The odds were against that, but it was a possibility worth trying for; so to trick 2 South led a Diamond, not a Spade or a trump, and when the finesse won—as was to be expected—the Ace of Diamonds was led from dummy, followed by another Diamond ruffed in the closed hand. When the adverse Diamonds all dropped, the play became easy.

It was now necessary to exhaust the adverse trumps. If this could be done in two rounds, dummy could be put in with a Spade ruff and two Hearts could be discarded on two Diamonds, thus making a small slam. If it took three rounds to exhaust the adverse trumps, a ruff would be fatal because it would be essential for North to win the third round of trumps. So the Declarer led two high trumps from South and, when West refused the second round, led a third, giving up all hope of a ruff in dummy, but being repaid by the ability of dummy to cash two long Diamonds, on which South obtained two discards. After that Declarer, of course, lost two tricks, but nevertheless won the game.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 13 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m., and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 6:40 p. m.

The influences for this date will be very relaxing, and both physical and mental efforts will be feeble in character. It will be a critical time for the very sick, especially those suffering from nervous disorders.

Children born on this February 13 will be oversensitive and will crave love and affection. They will be very reticent and it will be difficult for them to reveal their emotions. They will be more inspirational writers than talkers.

You are sufferng from an inferiority complex and are continually reacting against your own imaginary feeling of deficiency. Your brusqueness of manner is an acquired trait used to shield your natural shyness and feeling of unimportance from the public. In your case, any sense of inferiority is a delusion on your part.

Nature was not mean or stingy when she handed out your assets—she gave you a brain of normal capacity, very clever hands, considerable endurance, and a personality which only needs development to become attractive. Accompanied by a proper mental attitude an your part, there are few things, which any ordinary person can perform, that you can not also do, and do well. Under normal conditions you are not a good fighter, and it is only when you are literally driven to the wall that you show your true courage and ability. At such times you are a surprise to every one. You need some external force to drive you on to achievement.

Generosity is one of your outstanding virtues—you are generous in your attitude toward others, and you are a bountiful giver of material gifts. You are too tender hearted not to be touched by any grief or trouble which may come to others, and there is no one more anxious to lend a helping hand. You are naturally very unselfish.

36-Word Will Disposes Of $400,000 Estate

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—W. H. Alford, vice president of Nash Motors, who died last week, wrote a will containing only 36 words, one of the briefest ever filed in Kenosha County.

Filed for probate today, the instrument, dated May 11, 1915, bequeathed the entire estate to the widow, Gertrude M. Alford. The preliminary estimate gave the value of the estate in excess of $400,000. Friends said the final inventory would show a much larger total.

JELLEFF'S
F STREET

With NELSON B. BELL

JOHN J. PAYETTE, general manager of the Warner Bros.' interests in the Washington territory, in a pleasant visit that consumed more time than either of us could spare yesterday afternoon, disclosed elaborate plans for the remainder of February and all of March at the Earle Theater. A list of notable stage bookings is in course of negotiation, with Little Jack Little, radio favorite, starting the ball rolling this Friday midnight.

During the week of Nick Lucas' personal appearances, incidentally, the giant Warner Theaters benefit, that has become an annual fixture, will be given as a special midnight performance.

Three star acts are under tentative contract that may still not be consummated unless certain clauses in controversy are smoothed out, and this column, therefore, will not disclose their names, which have already been bandied about enough, but if they land, as seems highly probable, they will be history makers, and no kidding!

The Friday opening policy at the Metropolitan, to be inaugurated this week with "No, No, Nanette," by the way, is a move of problematical value—even to those who have decided to put the system in operation experimentally—based on the success that has attended the innovation in New York and other metropolitan centers. If you are in quest of a subject for endless discussion, try and decide why Saturday is a better opening day for new bills than Sunday, and why Friday is better than Saturday—if it is.

If you crave to know more about little Jack Little than you do now, here are a few highlights.

Born in England, Jack has been a resident of Iowa most of his life. At the University of Iowa he incubated the notion that he was a song writer and in course of time devoted more waking hours to giving one-man shows, with the aid of a battered piano, than he did to the pursuit of knowledge. Belabored by the faculty to cut out the foolishness and get down to work, he concluded that he must be right and so started a tour of the broadcasting stations "plugging" his own tunes.

It was from this start that he wound up at Station WLW, Cincinnati, with his mythical night club of the air, one of the most popular features ever put on the ether. His studio activities will be reproduced on the Earle stage by special mechanical equipment. Little Mr. Little is 28 years of age.

Next week's attractions in the picture palaces: Metropolitan, Louise Fazenda, Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray in "No, No, Nanette," beginning tomorrow; Palace, Richard Arlen and Mary Brian in "Burning Up"; Fox, Charles Farrell and Mary Duncan in "City Girl"; Rialto, Betty Compson in "Woman To Woman," opening Friday; Earle, Dorothy Mackaill, in "The Great Divide" and Little Jack Little in person; RKO-Keith's, Conrad Nagel and Lila Lee in "Second Wife"; Columbia, Ramon Novarro in "Devil-May-Care," second week.

Possibly you would like to know that Lawrence Tibbett, former barytone of the Metropolitan Opera Co., will occupy the screen of Loew's Columbia in March in "The Rogue Song," the sensation of the season....Greta Garbo in her first talking picture, a new version of O'Neill's "Anna Christie," which Blanche Sweet made silent, will follow "Devil-May-Care" at the Columbia....M. J. "Mike" Cullen, managing director of the loewcal Loew interests spent last Monday in New York, and "Angie" Ratto, manager of the Palace sneaked out and bought himself a new Studebaker coupe while has was gone....Harry Hammond Beall, president of the West Coast "Wampas," press agents' organization, who spells it the wrong way, is tossing a luncheon at the Willard today at 1 for the hungry motion-picture editors of the Capital....I should like to know just how much menagerie Singer's Midgets really carry, having heard of a camel and a donkey that certainly weren't in there with the elephants, reindeer, ponies and duck the day I was at the Fox....Ben Lundy, major-domo of the "Bermuda Bound" stage unit at the Palace, was the originator of the midnight auditions at the Earle Carroll Theater in New York, upon which the producer of the "Vanities" largely depended for new talent....Andy Sharick, managing director of the Rialto, is building up a nice, consistent business for the Ninth street house, so long looked upon as a sure-fire flop....His next special Saturday morning juvenile program in conjunction with The Post's Knighthood of Youth department falls on Washington's Birthday.

I'm in favor of the one-day-week—provided they are not all Wednesdays.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PEANUT BUTTER AND TOMATO SOUP.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

The protein of peanuts and soy beans is more efficient than that of other legumes, or in other words, it contains more of the materials needed to make body protein. Peanut butter, which can be either bought as such or prepared at home or at school, can be quickly made into a good and nutritious soup. This soup also offers a good means of serving tomato juice, a food rich in vitamin C.

PEANUT BUTTER AND TOMATO SOUP.

1½ cups tomato juice.
½ cup peanut butter.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon paprika.
2½ cups boiling water.

Add the tomato juice gradually to the peanut butter, and when smooth add the seasonings and the water. Simmer for 10 minutes and serve with croutons.

Well-seasoned soup stock and a little lemon juice may be substituted for the water and tomato juice, and the quantity of salt should then be reduced. A few drops of lemon juice may be added just before the soup is served.

CHICAGO IS ROCKED BY TWO BOMBINGS

Fresh Outrages Occur While Police Continue Drive Against Outlawry.

LAUNDRY, HOME WRECKED

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—While police continued their frenzied drive to rid the city of gunmen, terrorists resumed their activities today with two bombings that imperiled a score of Northside residents.

Two persons were injured and numerous others were driven from their homes by the explosions, which brought the total for the new year to thirteen.

A laundry was wrecked and part of a residence torn away. Residents more than a mile distant from the laundry blast distinctly felt its reverberations, and windows of homes for hundreds of yards around were shattered.

Commissioner of Police William Russell, in charge of the drive which since Sunday has resulted in the arrest of nearly 2,000 petty hoodlums and gunmen, ordered his men to dig still deeper into haunts of crime in an effort to clear up the latest bombings.

He intimated that both blasts were the work of racketeers, on the peculiar tactics of whom Col. Robert Isham Randolph and his secret committee of seven investigating Chicago lawlessness are now concentrating.

Col. Randolph said his committee reported discovering the sinister hand of the racketeer in every major business enterprise and industry in Chicago, and added that fresh steps were being taken to break up the "malign influence under which Chicago business is operating."

House Group Reports Bill Against Gun-Toting

Two bills were favorably reported yesterday by the House District committee, one to restrict sale and possession of firearms and the other to permit fraternal insurance companies to separate their insurance activities from their fraternal activities.

The antigun-toting bill provides that a person must post a $500 bond and obtain the consent of the superintendent of police before carrying a dangerous weapon.

POLI'S

The Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society, in its third presentation at Poli's Theater this week, last night unfolded the supreme tragedy of jealousy, "Othello."

As the Moor, Louis Leon Hall rose to histrionic heights—his work new to this precinct. Mr. Hall's Othello is one of power and majesty and suffers in no way by comparison with Fritz Leiber's Iago, played with perfect poise. Virginia Bronson was cast as the fair Desdemona, well done, with Lawrence H. Cecil adept as Cassio.

The Shakespearean plays, in these hands, are being presented with great discernment and taste. The diction, with one or two exceptions, is flawless; the tempo is fast but not furious, and there is a general all around enthusiasm in the company that breathes the breath of life in age-old scripts.

Tonight the troupe essays "Twelfth Night."

Illinois Society Holds Gala Ball

The February ball of the Illinois State Society was held last night in the ballrom of the Willard Hotel.

Hull, Representative and Mrs. Homer Holaday, former Senator and Mrs. Thomas Sterling, Judge and Mrs. Thomas Williams, Miss Mary Logan Tucker, Representative and Mrs. Carl Chindblom and Senator and Mrs. Charles Deneen.

Mrs. Carl Chindblom had charge of the music arrangements and Senator Charles Deneen, president of the society, presided.

The value of the good will of the women of the country toward world peace was told to the members of the Capitol Hill W. C. T. U. at a meeting in the Waugh Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mrs. E. C. Stanton, director of the international relations committee of the District of Columbia W. C. T. U., outlined to the listeners the proposal of the London naval conference and the meaning of the Kellogg peace pact.

Mrs. Stanton also narrated the policies of the national organization regarding the entry of the country into the world court.

APARTMENT SEEKERS

When you find an apartment equipped with General Electric Refrigerators, you have found a landlord with his tenants' comfort at heart!

. . . . . .

Note: This refrigerator has been chosen for the third consecutive year as the official refrigerator for the model kitchen at The Washington Post Cooking School being held at the Belasco Theater, February 11 to 14, inclusive — another recognition of the superiority of the General Electric.

The landlord who has provided his tenants with the very kind of refrigerators they would buy for their own homes, has shown he is the kind of man who considers his tenants' comfort, convenience and happiness above everything.

He has provided General Electric Refrigerators because he knows what a great convenience it is for his tenants to be able to control their refrigerators independently of all the other refrigerators in the building—to be able to defrost when it suits their own convenience—to be able to regulate their refrigerators to the temperature they happen to want—any time—day or night.

He knows what pride his tenants have in the glistening white all-steel General Electric cabinets with their immaculate porcelain linings. They are the refrigerators with the sanitary porcelain chilling chambers — absolutely protected from rust, dirt or impurities resulting from use by previous tenants. They are the refrigerators with the entire mechanism hermetically sealed and permanently oiled—so reliable, so trouble-free that of the hundreds of thousands of owners, not one has paid a cent for service!

The landlord who thinks enough of his tenants to provide for them the finest refrigerators that money can buy, is the type of landlord you are looking for. Sign his lease without reservation!

Join us in the General Electric Hour, broadcast every Saturday at 9 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, over a nation-wide N.B.C. network.

Of the hundreds of thousands of owners not 1 has paid a cent for service

How Ford Methods Cut Cost of Distribution

Lower profits in selling save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in manufacturing

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago the Ford Motor Company was formed to provide reliable, economical transportation for all the people. That original purpose has never changed. The constant effort in every activity is to find ways to give you greater and greater value without extra cost—frequently at lowered cost. This applies to distribution and similar important factors, as well as manufacture.

For the Ford Motor Company believes that its full duty is not only to make a good automobile at the lowest possible price, but to see that there is no waste, extravagance, or undue profit in any transaction from the time the car leaves the factory until it is delivered to your home. It is obvious that hard-won savings in production will be of little value if they are sacrificed later through excessive selling costs.

EVERY purchaser of a motor car has the right to know how much of the money he pays is for the car itself and how much is taken up by dealer charges. If these charges are too high, one of two things must happen. Either the price of the car must be raised or the quality lowered. There is no other way. The money must come from somewhere.

In the case of the Ford, the low charges for distribution, selling, financing and accessories mean a saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser in addition to the still greater savings made possible by economies in manufacturing.

Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

The profit margin on the Ford car has always been fair to both the dealer and the public. Within the past three months, it has been possible to effect still further economies. Today, the discount or commission of the Ford dealer is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

THE business of the Ford dealer is good because he makes a small profit on a large number of sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales. He knows, too, that the extra dollar-for-dollar value of the car makes it easier to sell and more certain to give satisfactory service after purchase.

Consider also that the Ford car is delivered to the purchaser equipped with a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, an extra steel-spoke wheel, and bright, enduring Rustless Steel for many exterior metal parts, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes.

If for any reason you wish to buy certain small accessories, you will find that these, too, are sold at the usual Ford low prices. Replacement parts are also available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the country.

THESE are important points to remember in considering the purchase of a motor car. They show why it is possible to put so much extra quality into the new Ford and still maintain the low price. They are also the reasons why more than 35% of all cars sold today are Model A Fords.

ORTIZ RUBIO IS ABLE TO GET OUT OF BED

Nation-Wide Search Is Being Made for the Plotters Against President.

TRAIL LEADS TO TEXAS

Mexico City, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—President Ortiz Rubio, wounded a week ago today by a gunman, was sufficiently recovered this afternoon to leave his bed and attend to several business affairs at his home. It is believed that he will be able to go to his office at the National Palace next week.

The number of detentions in connection with the shooting of the president by Daniel Flores is increasing daily. Arrests have been made in various parts of the country, but official silence still cloaks the result of the investigation of what the authorities declare was a widespread plot to assissinate the chief executive.

It was learned today that Valente Quintana, former chief of police in the federal district, is now in the City of San Luis Potosi, where he is in charge of the investigation in that place, and Charcas, a nearby town, which was the home of Flores. Many arrests have been made there and the police claim to have found evidence that persons living in San Antonio, Tex., had knowledge of the plot against the president, even if they were not involved in it themselves.

Many Congratulations Received.

Congratulations on his escape from death continue to reach the president. They have come from the heads of European, as well as American nations and also from many other people in all walks of life. The president has been much touched by this widespread interest in his safety and among other acknowledgments today extended thanks to the entire United States by means of a special message addressed to the Associated Press.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Federal Department of Justice officers here today said they had received no word from Mexico City that persons in San Antonio were involved in or knew of the plot against President Ortiz Rubio, which resulted in the wounding of the president, by Daniel Flores, inauguration day in the Mexican capital.

Plots Usually Known in Texas.

"All Mexican plot are supposedly to lead to San Antonio," the officers said, "on account of the large number of refugees residing here."

City and county officers also said they were without information in regard to San Antonians being involved in the plot. City, county and Federal officers said they had not been asked to aid in locating any suspect.

Philadelphia Youths Cared for by Police

Two Philadelphia youths, having only 50 cents in their possession, were lodged at the Fourteenth Precinct Station upon request last night while en route to Florida for the remainder of the winter. They gave their names as Joe Dooner, 17 years old, and John Santer, 18 years old.

The boys told Lieut. McGill Grove that they had intended embarking for San Pedro, Calif., at Marcis Hook, Pa., but that they missed the boat, despite the fact they rode from Philadelphia in a taxicab. The taxi fare, they said, took all their money—$11—and their baggage as well.

B. & O. WILL ACQUIRE 600-MILE RAILROAD

I. C. C. Grants Permission to Buy Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Line.

IS $14,000,000 PROJECT

(Associated Press.)

Permission to purchase control of the 600-mile line of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway was given the Baltimore & Ohio system yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Allegheny corporation, present majority owner of the Buffalo line, will turn over to the Baltimore & Ohio 84 per cent of the outstanding stock of the Buffalo line for $14,263,216.

As conditions to its approval, the commission ordered the Baltimore & Ohio after the purchase to keep open all traffic routes now established by the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, to agree to purchase at arbitrated prices control of any connecting short line which may be allocated to it, and to offer to minority holders in the Buffalo company the same price for their shares which the Allegheny corporation will receive.

By the transaction, the commission said, the Baltimore & Ohio will be able to establish a new direct route over its own rails from Baltimore to Buffalo. In addition, by using the 80 miles of Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh line between Butler and Dubois, Pa., the Baltimore & Ohio, with its own rails, will be able to establish a new short line between Chicago and New York, passing north of Pittsburgh, and reducing danger of congestion in the Pittsburgh area.

An intensive campaign of aeronautical education.

Congressional authorization for marking all Government buildings for air routes.

Provision for an adequate air defense for the United States and its insular possessions.

8-Hour Day Urged For U. S. Workers

Postmaster General Favors Same Period for All Classes of Employes.

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General Brown yesterday recommended the principle of an eight-hour day for all Federal employes in both the field and departmental services.

Testifying before the House post-office committee on the Kendall bill to provide a half-holiday on Saturday for postal workers, Mr. Brown said, however, that he could not indorse that measure because of the increased financial burden it would place upon his department, which already is operating at a deficit. He explained that the postal force receives certain benefits which industrial workers do not get.

Postal officials have estimated that enactment of the Kendall bill would cost the Government $13,000,000 annually. Postal employes' representatives contradicted this estimate, insisting that the cost would not amount to more than 50 per cent of that amount.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Bankers believe that the bids on the forthcoming $50,000,000 issue of 90-day non-interest bearing Treasury bills will be more favorable to the Treasury than were the tenders on the first offering, made in December. ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Five Companies.

H. F.—I am writing for an opinion on Bullard, Graham Paige, American Reinsurance, Waldorf System and Grand Union stocks.

Answer—Bullard appears to be in good shape, with earnings for 1929 of $5, as compared with the $1.60 annual dividend. Graham Paige is in the nondividend class and is speculative. The dividend on American Reinsurance is $3 per year, and the payment is well covered by current income.

Waldorf System is being whipped into good shape. Sales and earnings are incleasing as a result of an expansion program started last year. For the first eleven months of 1929 profits were $2.20 per share, contrasted with $1.84 for the 1928 term. Thus the yearly dividend of $1.50 was covered in eleven months.

Stock of Grand Union pays no dividend. The company operates a chain of cash-and-carry grocery stores, and earnings have been unsatisfactory.

Davison and Others.

J. I. Y.—Can you let me have some information concerning Davison Chemical, Gould Coupler and Remington Arms?

Answer—Davison is quite a factor in the fertilizer industry, and is a large manufacturer of sulphuric acid. Its entrance into the fertilizer field has resulted in large earnings for the 1929 fiscal year, profits equaling $3.34, while earnings for the present fiscal term are expected to be about $5 a share. By the remarks of the president, carried in the annual report, the stock is headed for the dividend class.

Gould Coupler income has been unsatisfactory. The stock pays no dividend and must be regarded as speculative. The recently announced increase in a munition products is expected to add $2 a share to earnings of Remington Arms this year, thus doubling 1929 profits. The stock looks attractive at present quotations.

Pilot Radio & Tube.

A. R.—I am thinking of investing in Pilot Radio & Tube stock listed on the New York Curb Exchange. What does it pay, and what can you tell me about the company?

Answer—The Pilot Radio & Tube Corporation is not an ordinary radio company, but is also a manufacturer of electrical equipment. It is well established in the radio parts business, the immediate predecessor company being in operation since 1922, and others as far back as 1911. Pilot radio products are widely distributed, about 40 per cent of the output being distributed in foreign countries, while the bulk of domestic sales are with leading chain stores and mail order houses.

For the first three-quarters last year, net sales aggregated $1,428,887, an increase of 61 per cent over the same time in 1928, while for the full year 1928 net sales reached $1,419,141 as compared with $857,171 in 1927. Net profits in the latter year were $161,039, and increased to $322,621 in 1928, while for the first quarter of 1929 profits were $105,483. The company has acquired a Federal Radio Commission license to broadcast television. In addition to turning out radio parts and other electrical articles it proposes to begin production of parts for television and complete television sets. Pilot recently acquired, through an exchange of stock, the Twin Coupler Co. and the Detroit Radio Tube Co. The stock pays dividends of $1.20 annually, and may be regarded as suitable for long-term holding.

Pennroad Corporation.

G. M. D.—Will you kindly give me some information in connection with Pennroad Corporation stock? I own some of this stock, and would like to learn, if possible, the future prospects.

Answer—Pennroad Corporation is not on the dividend-paying list, and therefore must be considered a speculation, even though it is so closely affiliated with the Pennsylvania Railroad. Moreover, it is an investment trust, and this column makes it a practice not to comment on securities of that description because the future success of such corporations is so largely dependent upon the efficiency of their management. In the case of Pennroad Corporation, the efficiency of its management can hardly be called into question.

Middle States Oil.

H. S.—Last summer I bought 100 shares of Middle States Oil common. Was advised to exchange them for some other shares of the company. I sent the shares to them and received 100 shares of their new stock, and was assured that quotations for this stock would appear in the newspapers after New Year's. I haven't seen them in any newspaper yet, and would appreciate any information you have about them.

Answer—Middle States Oil certificates, representing the new stock, are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and are occasionally dealt in. At this writing they are quoted at $1 bid, $1.12½ asked. Whenever transactions are made, they are regularly reported in the daily newspapers. In the week ended Saturday, February 1, transactions in these certificates amounted to 4,300 shares at 1⅛ high for the period and $1 low.

Collection Interest Drops In Letters Signed by Shaw

Other Writers' Offerings Also Feel Slump at Auction in London, But First Edition "Vicar" Copies Are in Demand.

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Letters signed by Bernard Shaw have been tumbling in value like speculative shares lately. Several auctioned at Sotheby's brought only 10 shillings ($2.40) apiece.

Apparently news of the sale of various Shaw items at good prices not long ago resulted in a flood of offerings. The same explanation, however, would not apply to the Robert Burns waistcoat, which sold for only £6 (£30), regardless of the fact that the heart of the Scottish bard beat under its buttons for years.

Nor is there a plethora of historic canes which could be blamed for the fact that the malacca walking stick carried by the poet Gray on his celebrated visit to a country churchyard, brought only £30.

TWO WORLD TRACK RECORDS FALL AT PHILADELPHIA

Griffith Acts To Bolster Outfield

Holdout Gesture of Goslin Causes Mates Report Early.

Slugger Still Silent; Goslin Seen Cause of Changed Plans.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE no word to this effect has been received from President Clark Griffith, now at the Nationals' spring headquarters at Biloxi, it would not be at all surprising if his recent decision to have Outfielders Sam West and Emile (Red) Barnes report for training with the early shift was based on the fear that he and "Goose" Goslin will not have reached a salary agreement by the time the season starts.

As far as can be learned, Goslin is giving the Nat owner the cold shoulder. Some time ago, a contract calling for little better than the average salary but containing bonus clauses which would give the "Wild Goose of the Potomac" the amount he drew last season provided he has a good year, was mailed him. Previously, Goslin had failed to come to Washington, as requested, for a salary conference, and since the contract was sent him, it is not believed he has done any corresponding with Griffith.

Few Outfielders With Team.

Should Goslin fail to report, it will mean that Manager Johnson must have another outfielder ready and West and Barnes are considered as his best bets. As a matter of fact, the only others with the club are Sam Rice, a fixture in right field; George Loepp, purchased from Baltimore Orioles; and Alvin (Jake) Powell, the former Takoma Tiger bearcat.

Johnson already has gone on record that West is his first choice for the center-field berth and that he believes Barnes has the making of a real player. Consequently, it may be figured that Barnes is second choice and would be the logical left-fielder were Goslin out of the picture.

When announcing that these two young flychasers would be given more training work than the others, no particular reason was given by Griffith. There's no harm guessing, however; hence this suggestion that maybe the Nats' owner is using a little foresight on the chance that Goslin is a holdout.

Joe Bush Catches on At Allentown.

Pitcher "Bullet Joe" Bush certainly missed his calling and should have been a high-powered salesman, judging from the manner in which he has been able to sell his services ever since he was first marked "no good" by the majors. Since starring with the Red Sox, Athletics and Yankees, he has sold himself to the Browns, Nationals, Pirates and Giants before finally finishing his big league career back with the Mackmen.

In the last few years Bush has been a free agent several times but never has had any trouble getting a desirable post because of his ability as a salesman. This season, for the first time in his career, Joe will branch out as a manager, having sold him-

AMERICAN U. TO COMPETE ON TRACK

Eagles Turn to Cinder Paths Instead of Baseball.

FOR the first time in the history of the college, a track team will be put on the field this spring at American University. Coincident with this announcement comes word to the effect that no baseball team will be organized at the Massachusetts avenue school during the coming months, in order to have every possible effort spent on the new sport.

While no definite dates have been made as yet, it is understood that the Methodists will enter several meets, though the entrance into dual meets are undetermined.

At the same time it was stated that although track will be the only major sport functioning at A. U. this spring, intra-mural activities will include tennis, track, baseball and as many other sports as possible that can be participated in by the students.

Targee Scholastic Track Star.

Although most of the prospective candidates for the track team at the Methodist school are of an unknown quantity, it is assured that Coach Walter Young will have one capable athlete around whom he can build a capable squad if the others measure up to this young man's ability.

Orville Targee, football and basket ball star, is a devotee of the cinder path of no mean ability and has established quite a name for himself among the scholastic ranks of the State of Ohio. While running in the Ohio meets last year, Targee set the record for the 100 and 220-yard dashes, being recognized as the southern Ohio champion in each event. His time was recorded as 10 flat in the 100-yard dash, and 21.4 seconds in the latter run. Although no definite information was forthcoming on his result in the 440, it is understood that he completed the quarter-mile in close to 50 seconds.

RED SOX SIGN GASTON.

Boston, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Boston Red Sox today announced the receipt of the signed contract of Milton Gaston, pitcher, who was acquired last year from Washington, and who, with his brother, Alec, made up one of the few such big league batteries. Alec has since been released.

MANAGES QUINCY CLUB.

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Ray Schmandt, former Brooklyn first baseman, has been signed to manage the Quincy Three Eye League Baseball Club in 1930. Schmandt will be a playing manager, covering first base.

G. W. Defeats Gallaudet, 31 to 21

Fine Leads Colonial Attack in Seventh Court Victory.

Gray Stops Cosgrove; G. W. Gains 17-14 Lead at Half.

By JACK ESPEY.

DEL COSGROVE and Johnny Ringle, leader and runner-up among local college point scorers, found the closest guarding they have met this season when Gallaudet invaded the George Washington court last night. This pair, between them, could register only three field goals and the Colonials, led by Irving Fine, won rather handily by a score of 31 to 21.

It was Gallaudet's fourth defeat of the season and its first at the hands of a local foe. The victory gave George Washington a record of seven wins and three losses for the season.

Cosgrove, guarded by Bob Gray, Colonial captain, failed to sink a shot until 31 of the 40 minutes had passed. Even then, it was a George Washington substitute at whose expense he scored. Shortly thereafter the Blues' ace holed a flip from midfloor, and that represented the sum total of his scoring for the night.

Ringle, who usually encounters little difficulty in dropping them in, whether it be from short or long range, was nearly shut out by Bill Hoover and Bill Blaine, who alternately handled the center duties for the home team. Ringle potted one from the side in the waning moments of the first half to pull Gallaudet to within two points of a tie.

G. W. Five Takes Early Lead.

George Washington, with fine performing fancy offensive feats, took the lead in the first couple of minutes and stayed in front until the final whistle. Hokanson placed Gallaudet in the lead at the outset with a goal from the deepest corner, but Fine matched this a moment later and then caged a difficult one-hand effort, giving G. W. the lead, 4 to 2.

After a hard-fought first half, which closed 17 to 14 in favor of the Colonials, the game developed into a rough affair owing to extreme eagerness on the part of both teams. The passing became wild and the players' personal contact frequently resulted in nasty spills, Gray of G. W. and Brown of Gallaudet suffering injuries that necessitated sideline treatment.

When Cosgrove finally found the range with nine minutes remaining, George Washington stepped on the gas and slowly but surely widened its lead. Fine, who remained on the bench for the first half of the second session, reentered the game at this juncture to take a hand in the decisive drive.

With Fred Mulvey, a newcomer, contributing 12 points, the George Washington Freshmen last night ran wild against the Gallaudet Reserves on the G. W. floor, winning a loosely-played game, 63 to 12. Mulvey, an all-around athlete from East Providence, R. I., who recently enrolled at the downtown school, hit the loop for six field goals to carry off individual scoring honors. Zahn, Burgess, Romig and P. Brown were other potent point-makers for the winners.

Western-G. U. Prep Fives Play Tomorrow

Western High's game with Georgetown Prep, originally scheduled to be played at the Western Gym today, will be played at the same place tomorrow, it was announced at the West End School yesterday. Cadet drill scheduled for today was given as the cause of the change.

Tow high school teams will see action today along with the Emerson Prep Five. Central is slated to hook up with Raymond Riordan at the Mount Pleasant Gym, while Eastern will invade Woodward Prep School. Emerson will travel to Alexandria to do battle with the High School of that city.

V. M. I. BOWS TO OLD LINE FIVE, 44-25

Maryland Uses Nine Players in Swamping Cadets.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Feb. 12.—A clever crew of basketers from the University of Maryland got the jump on V. M. I. in the first half here tonight, and, though the Cadets rallied in the second half, the Old Liners coasted through to a 44-to-25 victory.

Coach Shipley, of Maryland, used nine players and there was little to choose among them in ability to pass trickily and locate the basket with unusual accuracy. Bob Brown, V. M. I. forward, topped both teams in scoring by dropping in four shots from the floor and five from the foul line, but his teammates missed many scoring opportunities under the net.

Berger, Chalmers, and Gaylor sent Maryland ahead before Brown tallied for V. M. I., and the same trio sank shots in quick succession until Bob Brown and Gregory put the Cadets back in the running.

Ronkin and Rooney then took up the burden for the visitors and penetrated V. M. I.'s defense repeatedly to give the Old Liners a lead of 30 to 15 at half time. The Cadets tightened up in the second half, both teams guarding so closely that Maryland scored only 14 points to 10 for V. M. I. Chalmers and Gaylor headed Maryland's attack, with Radice playing the floor well. Gregory and Grow, Cadets guards, played a strong defensive game.

Single Games for High School Series Sought

The plan of staging single games next year in the interhigh basket ball series on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, instead of the double-headers which have been in vogue for some seasons back will be left to the five high school principals, it was decided at a meeting of the high school faculty advisers yesterday. Seruch T. Kimble, of Central, and Rupper Sharitz, of Business, were named as the committee to consult the principals regarding their views in the matter. The matter must be decided within the next week, inasmuch as the 1931 schedule is required to be drawn up within that time.

C.U. Officials to Allow Malevich to Box in Two Classes Saturday

OFFICIAL acceptance of the offer of Jack Malevich to meet two opponents Saturday night in the Catholic-Washington and Lee boxing match was given yesterday by the Cardinals' athletic director, Jack McAuliffe.

Malevich, heavyweight, offered to fight also as a light-heavyweight in order to save his team the forfeiture of the light-heavyweight bout which had appeared unavoidable owing to lack of a 175-pound representative. Malevich, though weighing but 178, has been fighting in the heavyweight division, and can reduce to be eligible for the light-heavy class.

In the event that Malevich can not go on for the heavyweight bout, McAuliffe has sought to assure seven bouts—the regular college program—by asking Washington and Lee to send two featherweights or two lightweights. Catholic has two men available in each of these classes.

Notre Dame and Army Ticket Rush Under Way

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The rush for tickets for the Army-Notre Dame football game, to be played at Soldier Field instead of New York next November 29, already has started.

The Notre Dame ticket office has received thousands of requests for pasteboards, although applications for individual games will not be available until August 1

Meenan, G. U. Athlete, To Recover Eyesight

Harold Meenan, Georgetown University athlete, will recover the sight of his eye which was badly injured when struck by a piece of pecan shell playfully flipped by a school mate a week ago. This was determined by his physician, Dr. Michael F. Kennedy, at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital yesterday when the stitches were removed from the wound. At first the injury seriously threatened to develop blindness.

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Stanislaw Petkiewicz, Polish conqueror of Paavo Nurmi, won an easy victory in the invitation mile run at the Osceola Club indoor track meet at the Seventh Regiment Armory tonight.

The Polish diplomatic courier led all through the race to beat Loring McMillan, former Union College miler. Frank Bayley, of the New York Athletic Club, was third. Petkiewicz ran the mile 4m. 23 4-5s.

FRANKLIN U. BEATEN BY COLUMBUS

Boyd Sinks Deciding Basket in 18 to 17 Upset Win.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN'S fast-traveling court team was handed an unexpected setback in the Central Gymnasium last night when it was nosed out by the Columbus University five, 18 to 17. It was a nip and tuck game throughout with the Franklins leading, 10 to 9, at the intermission.

Columbus was trailing until the last few minutes of play when, led by Mealy and Connor, it suddenly rallied and forged a point to the good just before the gun ending the game was fired. Boyd, of the Columbians, sank what proved to be the decisive basket. It was the first victory of the season for the Columbians.

Keefer, Litman, and Ryan accounted for the bulk of Franklin's points.

Potomac Boatmen Beaten by Stewarts

The Stewart Brothers Five jolted the Potomac Boat Club Team last night, handing the Boatmen their first defeat by a local team this season in the Silver Spring High School Gymnasium. The final score was 14-11 in a contest which was featured by close guarding. Curtain was the hero of the battle for Stewarts. He held Timmons, Potomac's star center, scoreless and made a field goal himself. Wiler was the only player in the game to make more than one field goal.

Bat Nelson Yearning For Ring Comeback

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Shades of Goldfield and Reno! Battling Nelson is yearning for a ring comeback.

No sooner had the former world's lightweight champion read about Charlie White's comeback campaign than he thrust out his chest and challenged him.

"If White is good enough to come back, so am I," the once durable Dane said. "There is many a good sock in these fists of mine and the fight promoters, who are digging the cemeteries for good fighters, can throw away their spades."

Nelson wants to meet White in the latter's comeback try at Jack Dempsey's show at the Coliseum, February 21.

Tuxedo Park, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Clarence C. Pell, national racquet title holder, defeated Lord Aberdare, of England, in the final round of the gold racquet tournament today, 15—10, 15—6, 15—12. Aberdare was runner-up to Pell for the title in 1928.

SANDLOTTER TO GIANTS.

Ironton, Ohio, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Charles Gallagher, 21, Ironton sandlot baseball star, leaves tomorrow to join the advance guard of the New York Giants at St. Louis. Gallagher, a catcher, was signed by John J. McGraw, Giant pilot, last fall.

Bull Resents Inspection of Park, Chasing Baseball Men Therefrom

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—To president Robert G. Allen and Manager Jack Steele, of the Little Rock Southern Association Baseball Club, undoubtedly goes the distinction of being the first officials to be chased from a baseball park in 1930.

A young bull in the role of umpire disputed their decision to inspect Whittington Park as a possible site of a spring training camp and promptly chased them from the grounds.

That is to say, Allen was promptly chased. He reached the gate first and closed it. Steele crashed into the closed gate and so did the bull, a moment later, just after Steele jumped to one side. Then the animal started in pursuit of Steele, chasing him around a small building. The manager implored his chief, who was now thoroughly enjoying the spectacle, to open the gate. After the third circuit of the house, Allen decided Steele had had enough and opened the gate. Jack just made it.

The officials, after returning to the city, found their trip of inspection had been futile, as the park already had been leased to the Howard David Team for spring training.

BOWMAN SETS MARK BY DEFEATING ELDER IN 45-YARD SPRINT

captain of Tech's Track Team, who won the open scholastic 800-yard run from a strong field in the Meadowbrook Meet, at Philadelphia, last night.

Girl Betters Record in 220; G. U. Wins 2-Mile Relay.

Conger Is Winner in Overton Mile; Quinn Bows.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Two new world's records were hung up tonight in the annual indoor track and field meet of the Meadowbrook Club at the Arena. Chet Bowman, of the Newark A. C., established a new indoor mark of 5 seconds flat in the 45-yard invitation sprint, and Miss Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, lowered the old record in the 220-yard sprint for girls to 26 4-5 seconds.

Jack Elder, of Notre Dame, forced Bowman to the limit every inch of the distance and the finish was so close that the judges were unable to decide on the winner for several minutes. The former Syracuse flash and the Hoosier meteor ran neck and neck down the last 20 yards. Bowman's time of 5 seconds created a new record for the distance in a final, but Percy Williams, of Canada, was said to have run a faster heat than this last year.

The fleet-footed Cleveland girl ran away from the field to beat the record in the 220-yard sprint. She shot out ahead and sped to an easy victory over Miss Dallas Creamer, of Canada; Miss Olive Kruger, Tennessee, and Miss Mary Gilliland, Milrose, who finished second, third and fourth, respectively.

Ray Conger, famous miler of the Illinois A. C., raced to victory in the John W. Overton memorial mile in a great race against Gene Venzke, New York, and Joe Hickey, New York University. Conger was content to let the others set the pace until the final lap when he shot into the lead and remained there until the finish.

The two-mile run was easy for Paul Rekers, Penn State, who lapped the field early in the contest and won as he pleased. D. Dean, University of Pennsylvania, finished second, and R. Young, University of Georgia, third.

Georgetown University won the two-mile college relay in easy fashion, with Pennsylvania second and New York University third.

Sol. Furth, New York University, speeded to victory in the 45-yard spring handicap for men, winning by a margin of about a yard from R. Quinn, University of Maryland, in 5 1-10 seconds. F. Alden, of Swarthmore, was third.

Stella Walsh, Cleveland, took the 45-yard international sprint for girls in 5 8-10 seconds. Myrtle Cook, Canada, was second, and Helen Matthews, Meadowbrook, third. Miss Walsh got away to a poor start but in the last 30 yards she developed such a burst of speed that she won with comparative ease.

Charlie White to Try Comeback Against Hayes

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Frankie Hayes, hard-hitting Philadelphia lightweight, today was selected as Charlie White's first opponent in his comeback drive. The pair will fight ten rounds or less at Jack Dempsey's show at the Coliseum, February 21.

Both White, who is trying to come back after years of retirement, and Hayes, are left-hook artists.

Joyce Wethered Quits Championship Golf Play

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Joyce Wethered, holder of the British woman's golf championship, today stated that she will not defend her title at Formby, in May, and furthermore that she has finished with championship play altogether.

The retirement of this five-time holder of the British championship comes at the comparatively early age of 28, but it is known that for some time she felt she was faced with too difficult a task in keeping up the standard of play expected of her by the golfing public.

In addition to Miss Wethered's retirement, it also was stated in authoritative golfing circles today that Cecil Leitch, long one of England's leading women golfers, will not again be seen in premier championship play.

HEAVY SPARRING PARTNERS IN DEMAND AT MIAMI

Fighters Lack Opposition In Drills

Sharkey and Scott in Need of Heavies to Speed Training.

Big Men Can Demand $25 a Day at Miami Fight Camps.

Special to The Washington Post.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12.—The Miami cauliflower market is booming as a result of the extraordinary demand for heavyweight culls to supply the Madison Garden stable of heavyweights now ensconsed in various training camps in the Greater Miami district. Any good big man can get a job as a punch catcher, but there are not enough native or visiting experienced heavyweights to meet the demand.

Jack Sharkey wants a big, tall fellow built along Scott's lines, so that he can accustom himself to lifting the line of his fire and getting inside barrages of left jabs delivered by opponents who can outreach him.

Victorio Campolo is paging the local lists for a short, chunky fellow like Johnny Risko, who can keep boring in and throwing punches.

Scott to Give $100 If Knocked Off Feet.

Phil Scott offers a reward of $100 to any of the local firemen who can knock him off his feet. Scott's opponents are instructed to rush him and do as much damage as they can. The English champion tries out new recruits nearly every day. He has become quite a favorite with the American Legion boys because of his affability and the fact that he joined the British marines when he was only 16 years old.

Raoul Bianchi, Argentine heavyweight, who meets George Cook, the Australian champion, in a six-rounder on the Garden card, is coming down to work with Scott next week. Cook spars daily with Sharkey at the beach.

Sparring partners are also wanted for Johnny Risko who arrives next week and will probably pitch his camp at Hollywood. Tommy Loughran will bring his own punch catchers down from Philadelphia whether he trains at Palm Beach or Miami.

Frenchman Trains With Belgian.

Pierre Charles, the tall Belgian champion, and Moise Boquillon, the French champion, spar with each other daily at Hardy's Casino, Miami Beach, where Young Stribling prepared for Sharkey last year. Gus Wilson, noted trainer for Georges Carpentier and later Jack Dempsey, is in charge at Hardy's, both Charles and Boquillon being under his management. Charles is booked for ten rounds with Loughran on the Garden program, and Boquillon goes the same distance—or less—with Jimmy Maloney, the Boston fishmonger. Maloney may effect a training hook-up with Risko.

Heavyweights of any ability whatsoever—even those with only size and ability to take punishment—are overlooking a bet by staying away from Miami. They can spend a nice vacation at the American Riviera with all expenses paid for they can pick up at least $25 a day and work at their trade not more than 10 minutes a day

PALACE GRID CELEBRATION.

The Palace A. C. will celebrate its winning of the Capital City League 133-pound football championship at a dance to be held Saturday night at Pythian Temple. All members of last year's eleven are requested to attend a special meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of John Smith, 498 G street southwest.

PIERCE WINS SR. SOCCER CROWN

Beats Park View With Last-Minute Goal; Gage Jrs. Score.

PIERCE school won the Municipal Playground Department's elementary school senior soccer championship yesterday on the Plaza playground where it defeated the Park View Eleven 1 to 0 in a hard-fought match. Previously Pierce had downed Park View 2 to 0.

It was a disasterous day for Park View as, earlier in the day, its Junior Eleven was elliminated from further consideration in the junior playground series by Gage School. This score was 1 to 0 also and the victory gave Gage the Western section championship and the right to play Peabody, Eastern winners, for the junior city championship.

Pierce did not score its lone and winning tally until the final minute of play, and the success was one of the most brilliant plays witnessed in an elementary school match. It came after a corner kick, which was perfectly placed by Nelson. Boyd leaped from the scramble in front of the Park View goal and headed the leather in the net for a victory and the city championship. Pierce went through the entire season without being scored on.

Result in Doubt Until Very End.

Up until this moment it was anybody's game, the ball traveling rapidly from one end of the field to the other throughout the contest. Apperti and Marcellino were the outstanding Park View players, while Boyd, Bore and Sullivan were the mainstays. C. Smith played cleverly at goal for Park View.

Today Gage and Peabody will meet in the first of a two-out-of-three series for the junior city championship. All of the games will be played on the Plaza pitch, starting at 3:30 o'clock.

DEVITT SCHEDULES 4 OUTSTANDING GRID GAMES

Columbia U. Freshmen Booked

Hun School, Gettysburg, Mt. St. Mary Prep Are Foes.

Other Hard Games Sought; Central May Be Played.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

FOUR games definitely arranged for the Devitt Preparatory 1930 football eleven already assure that team one of the most attractive grid cards ever scheduled by the local prep school, likewise offering it an opportunity to step into the ranks of the East's best prep school teams. Negotiations with two other outstanding schools are expected to be completed within a short time.

Columbia University Freshmen, the Hun School of Princeton, N. J.; Mount St. Mary's Prep and the Gettysburg Academy comprise the quartet of schools which will offer Devitt some of the sternest opposition ever faced by a District prep eleven. Unfortunately for local fans, none of the above games will be played on a local field. Jim McNamara being scheduled to take his charges out of town for each engagement.

Other Strong Foes Sought.

The Brooklyn Prep School and the Franklin High Team, of Philadelphia, are the two teams which may be added to the prepmen's schedule. So far, few local teams have been lined up for Devitt next fall, but it is thought that Central might again offer it the annual "C" Club game at the Central Stadium. Last fall Devitt decisively defeated the high school lads on that occasion, 19-0.

The game with the Columbia Freshmen will send the local team directly against the old Georgetown University coaching system, inasmuch as the New York yearlings will be under the general supervision of Lou Little, former Hilltop director of athletics, with two former Blue and Gray players assisting in the coaching of the first-year boys. Paul Liston, 1929 performer, and George McCabe, Georgetown quarterback of a few years back, will act as assistants to Ralph Furey, head coach of Columbia Freshmen.

Hun School Noted For Good Teams.

Hun School, a directory prep school for Princeton, long has been noted for its training of brilliant college gridders and has always put out crack football teams, while the gridiron qualities of Mount St. Mary's and Gettysburg Academy have been highly rated for some time. For Devitt to take the measure of any of these schools would be feathers on the headgears of Jim McNamara's players.

3 Knockouts Mark Racquet Club Bouts

The heavy punching was done by Quigley, City Club lightweight; Sullivan, Knights of Columbus lightweight, and Wolfgram, City Club heavyweight. Following are the summaries:

126 POUNDS—Barber (Knights of Columbus) boxed Casey (Knights of Columbus), in three-round exhibition.

145 POUNDS—Sullivan (Knights of Columbus) knocked out Shapiro (Nehi Club) in third round.

CATHOLIC U. BEATEN BY LOYOLA

Baltimoreans Sew Up Game in Final Half to Win, 28-24.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 12.—Loyola College conquered Catholic University, 28 to 24, tonight in a game which a combination of circumstances forced to accept the classification of an anticlimax to the contest with Loyola of Chicago last night. Although the Greyhounds won, they were somewhat listless from their vain efforts the preceding night to check the Westerners. The game with Catholic University meant little, for reports of the ability of the visitors preceding their team had given little cause for alarm.

The visitors, under no similar psychological restrictions, set out to make a game of it all the way, and they succeeded, even though the final score was against them. Marucci, guard, and Walsh forward, gave Loyola little chance to slow down the pace of the game, especially during the latter part when Catholic University was trying to close a asalizing gap that Loyola opened a the start of the second period.

After a close fight of it in the first period, little advantage accrued to either team, and honors were nearly even, with Loyola a point to the good at 12 to 11 when the whistle blew for intermission.

To start the second half Carlin, Bender and Twardowicz in fairly rapid succession dropped outside shots through the net to gain a seven-point lead for the home team. Catholic University called time out to consider its dilemma, but with all the readjustmens in play, the visitors were never able to narrow the margin to less thnn three points.

G. U. GOLFERS PLAN BUSY SEASON

Veteran Team Likely to Play Dozen or More Matches.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY is contemplating its busiest golf campaign in history. If present plans are consummated, the Hilltop mashie wielders will engage in more than a dozen matches this spring.

As a member of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association, Georgetown already is certain of having eight matches, as there are that many other members of the association. Four to six more matches with teams outside of the circuit will be added to the schedule. Georgetown's association rivals are Princeton, 1929 national champion; Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Brown, Williams, Holy Cross and Dartmouth.

The association's season will open on Saturday, May 3, with Georgetown playing a double-header in Philadelphia, meeting Princeton and Pennsylvania. Last year Georgetown finished second to Princeton in the association tournament and also in the national collegiate event.

Experienced Team to Be Available.

The Hilltop again will place a veteran team in the field headed by Maurice McCarthy, 1928 intercollegiate title holder, and one of the foremost amateurs in America. Other experienced men in the Blue and Gray array are Mark Flanagan, Chick Beser, Richard Wilson, John Foley, Bob Manning and John Clancy. Besides this group, there will be two sophomores, Shanley Corcoran and Arnold McCaffrey, said to be capable golfers.

McCarthy was named as an alternate on the U. S. Walker Cup Team early in the winter, but he withdrew in order not to lose too much time from his studies. He is due to graduate from the Hilltop in June. Last September he preferred sticking to his books to participating in the national amateur tournament.

William and Mary Finds Bridgewater Easy

Special to The Washington Post.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Feb. 12.—William and Mary ran away with Bridgewater College here tonight as the Indians walloped the Eagles, 39 to 14, in the first intercollegiate court contest ever staged here.

The Indians took the lead at the start and were never headed, holding a 17-to-8 advantage at half time. Bridgewater was held to six points in the final half.

Reichman, Tech, Wins Meadowbrook Half Mile

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—The National Capital again furnished a winner in Philadelphia scholastic competition when Al Reichman, captain of the Tech High School Track Team, today won the open 880-yard run from a strong field in the annual Meadowbrook schoolboy indoor meet. His time was 2:09 1-5.

Running a heady race from start to finish, Reichman kept with the leaders for most of the distance and then uncorked a fine spurt in the closing stages. It was a notable effort, considering that it was his first race of the season.

Skinker Eagles Beat Grays Quintet, 46-35

The Skinker Brothers Eagles made it two straight in the new pro league last night, defeating the Grays, 46 to 35, at the Silver Spring Armory. The Eagles gained a 27-13 lead at half-time. Sweeney and Bennie led the attack for the Eagles, while Hayes was the leading scorer for the Grays. Sunday, the Eagles entertain the Patterson Professionals at Silver Spring.

RULED FREE AGENT.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Feb. 12.—The Knight Store Five basketers defeated the Moose Trojans late night by the score of 38 to 28 in one of the best games seen in the local armory this season. The game was tied for the first three quarters, only to have the local boys pull away in the last ten minutes of play. The winners looked better in this game than any other since the absence of Earl Cronin, their forward. They passed, dribbled and outshot the visitors throughout the game. Brenner, Cabell and Travers played good ball for the winners, scoring 10, 9 and 9 points, respectively.

Alexandria High School Basket Ball Team will swing into action tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Armory Hall, when it will play the Emmerson Institute, from Washington. Coach Reynolds' team has not been in action since last Friday night, but has been drilling daily for this game. Two local boys will appear on the Emmerson Team, Russ Sutton and Elec Cabell.

With fourteen consecutive wins to their credit the St. Mary's Celtics Basketers will meet the French A. C. in the local armory here tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock. This is the second battle that the Celtics have played in the Washington Pro League, winning their first by a 2-point margin.

A game is being planned between the Alexandria High School men teachers and the George Mason High School teachers to be played soon.

The annual game between the Alexandria High School girl teachers and the Alexandria High School Girl Team will be played here in the local Armory Hall on March 8.

Unbeaten J. C. C. Quintet Looming as Big Hurdle To Post Tourney Teams

THERE will be one undefeated team competing for the District A. A. U. unlimited championship next month in the big tournament to be held under the auspices of The Washington Post if the Jewish Community Center Quintet continues its present pace. Seventeen ambitious court combinations have faced the J. C. C. Unlimiteds this season, and as many victories are recorded in the scorebook.

"Ten points better than anything in town," is the way the Center boys sum up their ability. They have proven themselves even more superior against all the foes they have engaged to date.

Last year the Center Big Five went into the finals in quest of the District title, but found the United Typewriter Grays a shade the best in the championship battle. Only after a great battle were they repelled. The year previous the Center Unlimiteds played a prominent part in the title melee, but failed to reach the final round.

Da Grossa Develops Flashy Machine.

John Da Grossa has developed a flashy, fast passing club to represent the Center this year. It is a high scoring machine, as the records attest for the seventeen games played. Probably the most prized victory to date is the one gained over the Richmond Councilors, who had defeated the St. Mary's Celtics a few hours before the J. C. C. dribblers scored their impressive triumph.

Da Grossa believes this is the year the Center Cagers are to rule supreme among District unlimited teams. With 29 other teams entered in the tournament, it looks like a "tough spot" for any contender.

As in former years, the Jewish Community Center will be represented by prominent title contenders in several classes. The J. C. C. Flashes are among the strong 130-pound combinations slated to battle for the championship of that class.

February 28 Last Day to Register.

Teams planning to enter the 130, 115 and 100 pound boys' classes and the unlimited and junior women's classes have until midnight of February 28 to file their individual and team registrations. An unusually large entry list for all of these classes is expected. Entry blanks may be obtained in the sports department of The Post.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHAT ABOUT PIMPLES?

E. S. wants to know what to do for pimples. I wish I could tell her some way to get rid of her pimples overnight and never have another one so long as she lives. I am forced to confess that I know no such magic. The fact is that pimples come so near to being normal that they are not easily disposed of. They are nothing but accumulations of nearly normal grease in nearly normal grease glands, which later become infected with a coccus that is almost always on the skin and almost harmless there.

The skin is full of grease glands—or it should be. They are everywhere except in the palms of the hands and soles of the feet. Nominally the grease is an oil which flows readily from the gland into the skin or into the hair. As the changes which life brings unfold themselves this grease loses some of its oiliness and becomes more solid.

This tendency first shows itself about puberty time. The first part of the body on which the tendency is noted is the fleshy part of the nose. In fact, one of the earlier signs of oncoming puberty is this tendency of the nose to take on a certain heftiness. The parts of the body in which the grease tends to accumulate in the grease glands are the face, cheeks, and scalp. A few blackheads develop in the skin of the neck. There is a slight tendency in that direction in the skin of the body, particularly the shoulders. The skin of the arms and legs rarely participates.

A blackhead is merely a mass of grease, the outer part of which has been filled with dirt. Men who shave rarely have blackheads in the beard areas. The daily lathering, washing, and scraping removes the dirty heads of blackheads.

A whitehead is nothing more than an accumulation of grease in a grease gland, the opening of which has been covered by skin. No dirt can reach a whitehead to blacken it. Whiteheads are found in skin that is pressed on by glasses and around the eyelids, where there is also a tendency for skin to stop up the grease glands. A blackhead becomes a pimple when the ordinary skin pus cocci get into the grease and start a little boil formation.

From childhood to old age there is a progressive tendency of the sebaceous gland grease toward solidity and dryness. Old people do not have many blackheads, but those they have are apt to be large and the grease in them is apt to be quite dry and solid. Theirs has been called the greaseless age. Not much grease is poured on to the skin by the grease glands, partly because not much is secreted and that which is secreted does not flow readily.

MAY BE SEVERAL THINGS.

J. H. R. writes: For the last six months I have had itching between the toes, swelling of the sides of my feet, and hard sores at the beginning of my toes. Is this athletic foot and if so is there any cure for it?

REPLY.

Probably you have ringworm of the feet, called toe scald, although you may have shoe or sock dye poisoning. In either event your physician should cure you.

I don't know what athletic foot is. My guess is that this is not athletic foot.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON IS TOLD OF COMMON CAUSE

Suter Declares Vote Problem and Back to District Are Closely Related.

SUPERVISORS TO MEET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Jesse E. Suter, of the District of Columbia, chairman of the committee for national representation, speaking at the mass meeting held last night in the auditorium of the Cherrydale Firemen's hall before a capacity audience held under the auspices of the Back to the District Association, declared the problems of both this section and those of the District of Columbia are in common.

"Being a part of the greater Washington metropolitan area this entire section comprising the original District of Columbia area should be under one jurisdiction," he said.

"The movement for this section to be receded to Virginia started as early as 1804 and was largely due to the fact that the people wanted the right to vote.

"The sponsors of this movement are to be congratulated that they are supporting our efforts to gain representation and the right to vote for President," he said.

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution offered by J. Cloyd Byars which cites that the retrocession act of 1846 makes impossible the orderly and systematic development of the Nation's Capital in accordance with the plans of its founder, whose 200th birthday anniversary in 1932 the American people will celebrate. It is further pointed out in the resolution calling for extension of suffrage in national elections and the right of representation in Congress to citizens of the District of Columbia.

Byars declared that with the right of suffrage and representation in Congress the chief objections to the return of Arlington County will have been removed.

Richard L. Eacho, vice president, stated that the membership of the association is growing rapidly and that calls for meetings to be held in other sections of the county and in the City of Alexandria are being received. He stated that plans are now underway for the holding of a joint debate in the District of Columbia in the near future.

At a meeting of the board of supervisors to be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the courthouse, they will consider the proposed zoning ordinance that will govern all future developments in Arlington and listen to any objections that may be raised against it.

While it is conceded by its planners that there will be some objections, the Arlington County Civic Federation is sending a delegation to request that the section relative to the establishment of apartment houses in residential A area, and the raising of live stock in the same classification be amended.

The ordinance recently completed represents many months of careful consideration and public hearings by the Zoning Commission, and members of the commission are expected to be present to defend their work.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, who had an important part in its construction, has asked Allen J. Saville, of Richmond, who served as engineer from the Zoning Commission, to be present at the meeting. No other matters will be considered by the board that day.

At 10 o'clock on Saturday the board will hold its regular semimonthly meeting when all matters of importance to county government will be considered.

Owing to the difference of opinion voiced by the supervisors and the board of education as to the division and allocation of the $500,000 recently paid the county by the city of Alexandria for that part of the county annexed by the city of Alexandria as to what should be the latter's share of the fund on account of the loss of school property in the annexed territory is due to come up for discussion. The money, according to County Treasurer E. Wade Ball, is on deposit in the banks of the county of Alexandria.

Following this another important matter to come before the board is the report of County Engineer Kinnier showing sewer conditions in the county and embracing a recommendation and estimates for establishment of a modern sewer system taking in the various community and privately owned systems. Mr. Kinnier will also submit another report showing what has been done to the county roads during the past year and their present condition.

Plans are now being formed in the engineer's office for the remodeling of building, acquisition of which was authorized at the last board meeting for use as a health center for Jefferson District. These plans will be submitted to the board for their approval. The plans also provide for using all and part of one of the buildings which adjoin for the clinic and the other for a community library. The clinic will consist of a waiting room, weighing and examination rooms and a dental office. The plans also provide for a new heating plant in the building.

Parkett W. Luckett was elected president to serve his sixth term of the Veitch Summit Citizens Association at its annual meeting held last night at the home of Mrs. Horace J. Etheir. Other officers are Philip Gunion, vice president, and Mrs. Laura S. Etheir, secretary-treasurer.

The appointment of the standing committees will be announced at the March meeting.

The special meeting of the Arlington District Council of Citizens Associations announced for tonight will be held at the home of the secretary, A. A. Moore, Lyon Park, instead of in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at the Ashton Heights Woman's Club house, Clarendon avenue, at 12 o'clock, with President A. B. Honts presiding.

Members of the Holy Name Society of St. Charles' Catholic Church at Clarendon will meet tonight at 7:30 at the church, from where they will go to Alexandria in a body to attend special services for the funeral of the Rev. William Anthony McKeefry, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Funeral services for Mrs. E. W. Comley, 59 years old, who died at her home in Cherrydale Tuesday night, will be held from the Cherrydale Methodist Protestant Church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by the pastor, the Rev. John A. Trader. Burial will be in Columbia Gardens at Clarendon.

Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thelma DeMott, of Washington, and two sons, Roland W. Comley and Lorne C. Comley.

Fellowship Council, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will give a dance tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon. Preceding the dance there will be a short business meeting starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Confession Is Laid To Pair's Assailant

Man Sentenced to 20 Years Admits Crime, Sheriff at Annapolis Reveals.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 12.—Andrew Holland, 17-year-old Negro, convicted Monday on charges of assault with intent to kill Mr. and Mrs. Albert Glover, of Churchton, and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Robert Moss in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, has confessed, Sheriff Michael F. Carter said today.

The confession, the sheriff said, was made while the Negro was being taken to the penal institution. The Negro did not go into detail, simply admitting that he struck Glover over the head with a meat cleaver and then shot Mrs. Glover from ambush.

At his trial Holland did not have counsel, declined to testify and did not question State witnesses. His attitude was that of utmost indifference.

LINCOLN IS PRAISED BY GOFF IN SPEECH

Senator Declares, in Address at Clarksburg, That All Owe Him Debt.

NOW BELONGS TO WORLD

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 12.—All mankind owes Lincoln eternal gratitude, Senator Guy D. Goff, of West Virginia, declared in an address here today under auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"He stands alone in human history without a successor and peculiar to American soil," Senator Goff said. "He went to the White House a giant, he staggered out of it a shadow, worn down in the service of the Republic. With all great men it is not so much what they intend to do, but rather what their qualities of their natures impel to do, that determines their career. The strength of a nation depends upon something greater than its armies and its navies; it rests on the sentiments and the ideals that inspire its people.

"The forces responsible for our development have been composite, the blending in one of the best in many races, and the master spirit that could ride the whirlwind and direct the storm has alone survived."

The spirit of Lincoln is man's unfettered effort to be himself and to write his character according to the principles that govern his life, Senator Goff asserted, and it warns against the dangers of a highly developed civilization.

"It advises that if government is to come closer to man's needs, we must have better citizens and more unselfish statesmen, because no one is or has any right to be exempt from the common lot," the senator stated. "It cherishes honor, admires courage and nourishes men fit to cope with great forces and to assert great principles. It cautions us that the Republic needs men to answer its questions and solve its problems; men to stand in the hard places and fight the hard battles; men who believe that they find their lives only by losing them in the service of others; men whose lives appeal to our intellects, arouse our ideals and touch the best in all of us; men who would rather be social exiles, having the testimony of any approving conscience, than be 'guests in kings' houses;' men enriched by the lessons of experience and crowned and mitred by the hands of inviable consecration, because they have felt life's pinch, suffered its tragedies and lived its joys.

"Abraham Lincoln lived and died his patriotism. In life he was a great American. He is an American no longer—he is one of those giant figures who lose their nationality in death."

Reigle Is Convicted Of Hammer Attack

Man Who Hit Wife and Soldier May Get 20-Year Term.

Vincent E. Reigle was found guilty by a jury in District Supreme Court yesterday on charges of assaulting his wife, Madeline Reigle, and Sergt. Thomas Garfield, of Fort Myer, Va., with a dangerous weapon. Justice Peyton Gordon reserved sentence.

Reigle, according to testimony, is alleged to have attacked his wife and Garfield while they were sitting in an automobile in front of the Reigle home, 2411 Twenty-second street northeast, about midnight on August 29, last. Reigle is alleged to have wielded a hammer with such vigor that Garfield only recently was released from the hospital.

Assistant United States Attorney Walter M. Shea appeared for the Government while the defendant was represented by Attorney Benjamin Kail.

Reigle was indicted twice, once in connection with each of the alleged assaults. He was found guilty on the last count of each indictment.

Under the District law the man can be sentenced to serve ten years in prison on each of the indictments. The law does not specify any minimum.

$200,000 to Be Spent In Petersburg Project

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 12.—To provide for certain permanent public improvements in Petersburg, the City Council has adopted an ordinance providing for an issue of $200,000 of City of Petersburg bonds bearing 4½ per cent interest and will be retired April 1, 1970. This bond issue was made necessary in part by the necessity of replacing the Walnut Hill viaduct with an earth fill and partly by the need of other permanent improvements.

Forms for bids have been mailed to several bond buyers. Bids on the issue will be opened at a special meeting of the City Council Tuesday.

TRANSFER OF VOTING LIST PLANNED SOON

Arlington County Territory Recently Annexed by Alexandria Affected.

MT. VERNON TO GET BUS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Arrangements have been made by the city electoral board for the transfer of the Arlington County voting list in the territory recently annexed, to the Alexandria city records. Albert V. Bryan, Commonwealth's attorney, has been in communication with C. O. Thomas, secretary of the electoral board of Arlington County, in regard to the transfer.

Richard B. English, of the city board, introduced a resolution in the board meeting, which was adopted, to the effect that the city council be asked to appropriate sufficient money, not to exceed 10 cents a name, for the work of transferring the names of the voters to the city books in the Fifth and Sixth wards in the annexed territory. John J. Kiger, registrar of the old Rosemont precinct, and Frank Monroe, registrar of the Third ward, will take charge of the work of putting the voting registers in shape for the coming election.

The first election to be held since the annexation of a portion of Arlington County by Alexandria will be the Democratic primary for the nomination of three candidates for city council, to succeed Councilmen Edmund T. Ticer, Robert S. Jones and J. E. W. Timberman, whose terms expire September 1. Councilmen Jones and Timberman have announced that they will not run for reelection, but Councilman Ticer is again a candidate. Other candidates for the nomination are Mrs. Naomi P. Craver, former councilwoman of Potomac; Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, Arthur Herbert, Richard B. Washington, Clyde C. Lamond and E. C. Davidson. Two others, L. B. Alexander and O. P. Angelo, will run as independents, subject to the general election in June.

Robert L. May, owner of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Rapid Transit Co., has announced that, effective March 1, he will inaugurate two bus lines to take the place of the service heretofore rendered by the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington electric line, whose Alexandria-Mount Vernon line will be abandoned March 1.

One of the bus lines will be to Mount Vernon, with buses leaving every hour from Prince and Royal streets, and the other will be between here and Hunters Station, with six trips daily over the river road, to accommodate school children who have been using the electric line.

The petition of Mr. May for the establishment of this new line will be heard in Richmond before the State Corporation Commission on February 26, but Mr. May has been assured that there will be no opposition to granting the franchise.

William B. McGroarty was reelected president of the Washington Society of Alexandria at the annual meeting of the society held Tuesday night; Charles H. Callahan is vice president; Judge Howard W. Smith, second vice president; Hannon E. Norris, secretary and treasurer, and the Rev. William Jackson Morton, D. D., chapiain.

John B. Gordon was appointed chairman of the standing committee, with Arthur Herbert, Edward S. Leadbeater, Charles E. Dare and Arthur K. Warfield as the other members of the committee.

A nominating committee which selected the nominees was composed of W. L. Norford, chairman; Robert B. Murphy and Maughlin Nivin.

William Brenner, of 3800 Benton street, Washington, is in the Alexandria hospital suffering from severe injuries received Tuesday night, when he was found unconscious in the rear of a house on Craik street, Rosemont, and taken to the hospital by Sergt. Edgar Sims and Policeman Julian Rawlett. Brenner did not regain consciousness for two hours after arrival at the hospital.

Eddie Poole and Kenneth Poole, of Rosemont, and Harry Heingardner, of Mount Vernon, have been arrested and charged with felonious assault in connection with the case.

Fire Chief August Emrich and several engine companies of the Baltimore Fire Department will attend the celebration of Washington's Birthday here and participate in the parade, according to a letter received yesterday by Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., from P. W. Wilkinson, secretary of the Baltimore board of fire commissioners.

The Rev. Percy L. Vernon, former pastor of the First Baptist Church here, but now of Lewiston, Maine, will be the principal speaker at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon today in the George Mason Hotel, his subject being "The Trinity of Success."

Democrats Name Robinson as Head

Clarksburg Man Chosen to Head County Executive Committee.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Howard L. Robinson, member of the firm of Robinson & Robinson, attorneys, was the unanimous choice of the Harrison County Democratic executive committee for chairman to succeed J. Forner Davis, who resigned after filling the position for eight years. The resignation of Miss Emma K. Davis as associate chairman was presented to the committee, but action was deferred to a later meeting.

Resolutions expressing the appreciation of the committee for the able services Mr. Davis has rendered the party were unanimously adopted and forwarded to him at Miami, Fla., where he is spending the winter.

The new chairman is a graduate of the law school of Washington and Lee University. He was the Democratic candidate for State senater in the 1926 campaign.

Virginia School Teacher Saves Child in Creek

Special to The Washington Post.

McComas, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Miss Gladys Vaughn, school teacher, of Crystal, is being acclaimed for heroic action in saving the life of a 6-year-old girl.

Little Marie Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luce Hall, fell into the creek opposite the Crystal Company's store and was being washed by the swift current past the railroad bridge on down the creek. Miss Vaughn rushed to her rescue, plunged into the cold water and brought the child safely to shore.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

THINGS had come to a pretty pass, I want to tell you. The peace conference Luella planned had ended in a wholesale war. Instead of patching up the quarrel of her girl friend, Mary Jane, with that irresponsible young fellow, Roger, everybody was at daggers' ends. For two whole days Luella hadn't spoken to me, just glaring every time she saw me and remaining in that eternal silence. It began to get on my nerves.

Any excuse to get out, I wandered down to the neighborhood store for some cigarettes. It was a moonlight night, and I stopped to admire the beauty of it all. A roadster drew along side me—Roger's blue roadster he had bought at the auto show because it matched Mary Jane's eyes—and there sat the cause of my troubles, with the dizzy blonde beside him.

"Where are you going?" piped Roger, "can't I give you a lift?"

"Give me a lift? Say,——" I snorted, "you've driven me so low it'd take a derrick to give me a lift now."

* * * *

HE hopped out of the car, the engine running, and the blonde looking after him in amazement.

"Whassa matter?" he asked.

That was a hot one. So I told him.

"Aw," he said, "don't let that worry you. What you've got to do is follow my method—treat 'em rough!"

The brazen young imp. I gave him a lecture about preaching such an infernal doctrine. The business of treating 'em rough doesn't get a man anywhere with the fair sex.

"Oh, yes, it does," said Roger, enthusiastically. "Take my case——"

About the last thing I ever wanted to hear of was his case. It was that affair, his romance with Mary Jane that had put me on the rocks—put us all on the rocks. He and Mary Jane were on the outs, Luella and I were on the outs—the whole world was wrong.

"You'd better go back to your girl friend," I suggested, nodding toward the car, puffing there like a locomotive getting ready for a long run.

"Aw," he said, "she can wait," and I admired the easy confidence of the younger generation who do, seemingly, as they please.

* * * *

BEFORE I had time to answer him, though, I heard the crunching of a clutch, and as we both stood in amazement, the car started off, down the road. Blondes, evidently, are like time and tide.

"Well, I'll be dog-gone," said Roger, watching his new roadster disappear in the distance, "if that isn't nerve!"

"That's one girl who wouldn't walk home, eh?" I chuckled.

"She'll never get another chance," he said, and I know the season of strawberry blondes was over for Roger.

We walked down to the neighborhood store to buy cigarettes, and while we were there we got two boxes of candy—one for Mary Jane from Roger, and one for Luella from me.

"Treat 'em rough"—but say it with sweets.

BALTIMORE SLAYER TO DIE FOR KILLING

Jury Finds Price Guilty of Reuben Heyman's Death in January.

FOUR-MINUTE DECISION

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Lorenzo Price, Negro, today was found guilty of first-degree murder without recommendation for mercy by the jury in criminal court which heard testimony in his three-day trial for the killing of Reuben Heyman on the night of January 2. The first-degree verdict without recommendation carries the death penalty, and was reached after four minutes' deliberation.

Price was accused of the murder of Heyman and assault on his companion, Mrs. Dorothy Burgess, after he had forced Heyman to drive the automobile in which he and his companion were sitting to a lonely spot. During the trial efforts were made by the defense to show that Price and Mrs. Burgess had met at an interracial dance and had kept engagements since, and that she had arranged to meet him on the night of the murder near where Heyman's car was parked.

Price appeared in the courtroom throughout the trial still suffering from wounds inflicted by a Baltimore county policeman in a gun battle in which he was captured the day after the murder and alleged assault.

Two days were given defense attorneys to file motions for an appeal, at which time Judge Robert F. Stanton said he would pass sentence.

$45,000 Damages Sought in Wreck

Three Suits Filed Against Bus Line in Fatal Virginia Crash.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 12.—Suits asking a total of $45,000 from the Greyhound Lines, Inc., and the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Transportation Co. as a result of an accident on the Richmond-Washington highway near here on December 23, in which Mrs. C. E. Booman and John W. White, of Washington, lost their lives and C. F. Booman is said to have been permanently injured, were filed in the Stafford Circuit Court today.

The suit growing out of the death of Mr. White was filed by Presley B White, of Norfolk, administrator, and Smith & Fentress, of Norfolk, are counsel for the plaintiffs. B. A Banks, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Booman, enters suit on account of her death and is represented by Kelsey & Jett, of Norfolk. Both the suits are for $10,000, the limit allowed in a damage suit over a death in Virginia.

A suit entered by Mr. Booman claims $25,000 for personal injuries of a serious nature allegedly received in the same accident. Kelsey & Jett represent the plaintiff in this case.

Charge Against Siegal Dropped in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Feb. 12.—A nolle prosse has been entered in the case of Abner Siegal, Washington attorney, charged with failing to pay his income tax, it was learned today.

According to an order signed last Saturday by Amos W. W. Woodcock, United States district attorney, the action was taken at the request of the Attorney General. It was said that a compromise was reached in the case, but the terms were not disclosed.

OFFICIALS WAR OVER FIRE IN HIGH SCHOOL

Annapolis Mayor Fights Plan to Resume Classes in Rooms on Monday.

ASSERTS CITY RIGHTS

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 12.—Dissention between Mayor Walter E Quenstedt, of Annapolis, and George Fox, superintendent of education in Anne Arundel County, came today as an aftermath of the fire that yesterday seriously damaged the high school building here.

Mayor Quenstedt declared that he would take steps, legal if necessary, to thwart the plans of Superintendent Fox to resume classes at the school next Monday, a crew of workmen having started today to place the rooms in temporary condition and to replace the damaged roof later on.

Whatever work is to be done on the building, the Mayor asserted, would have to be with the complete approval of the municipal authorities, including Fire Marshal Jesse A Fisher, and Building Inspector William B. Gardiner as well as underwriters, despite the fact that school buildings come under the jurisdiction of the county board of education.

The mayor added that he will fight any move to allow holding classes until the building is under a new roof, and proper fire escapes erected. Superintendent Fox issued a statement in which he said that ordinary fire escapes are not the proper thing for school buildings, but that the plan is to place an outside stairway, similar to that on the present grammar school structure which was also visited by fire two weeks ago. He added that it would be deplorable to close the school for an indefinite period at this important stage of the term. However, he said, a meeting of the county board has been called for tomorrow, when a survey will be made to determine the safety of the building, and final action would be based thereon.

Garber Reelection Sought in Virginia

Seventh District G. O. P. Plan Renomination of Representative.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Feb. 11.—Republicans of the Seventh Congressional District are planning to renominate Representative Jacob A. Garber for the November election. They declare he has developed unusual strength since he was elected in 1928. Republicans say that there will be no candidate to challenge Representative Garber's right to renomination for a second term.

Democrats, on the other hand, point out the small majority of 300 or 400 votes that Representative Garber received in the last election over Thomas W. Harrison as an index of Republican weakness in the ten counties of the district. They are counting on their nominee, possibly either former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, of Frederick; Marvin J. Menefee, of Page, or John T. Harris, of Rockingham, as being able to carry at least five of the ten counties of the district. These are Warren, Clarke, Frederick, Albemarle and Rappahannock counties.

The Democratic majorities in these counties, they say, will wipe out small majorities that may be given Representative Garber in Rockingham, Shenandoah, Page, Madison and Green counties.

FAIRFAX UNDECIDED ON CRAMPTON BILL

Chamber of Commerce Studies Possible Effect Upon Potomac Power.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

The members of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce at their regular meeting in the schoolhouse at Colvin Run voted to postpone their indorsement of the Cramton bill, which recently passed the House of Representatives, to allow time to find out whether this bill as passed by the House would interfere with the possible development of hydroelectric power at Great Falls at some future time.

The discussion of the bill hinged on the question as to whether or not it conflicted with the purposes of the proposed Potomac River Power Commission. The bill creating this commission was drafted by Thomas R Keith, the chairman of the chamber's waterpower committee, and it has passed both houses of the State Legislature and is now awaiting the signature of Gov. Pollard, and whether the amendment to the Cramton bill that prohibits toll bridges across the Potomac River would work a great hardship to the State by delaying for years the construction of the greatly needed bridge.

A special committee consisting of Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax; A. Smith Bowman, of Sunset Hills, and R. R. Buckley, of Clifton, were appointed by President Edmond H. Allen to make a study of the provisions of the bill and to find out from Representative Cramton and other persons whether or not the water-power development would be curtailed and if the rights of the State or its citizens would be impaired by the passage of this bill. This committee is to report to the next meeting of the board of directors.

Several persons had complained that he had been annoying them and after an extensive search he was found hiding in the room of the judge of the Circuit Court, in the courthouse, eating a can of "canned heat," which, he stated, was the cause of his condition. Another can was taken from him at the time of his arrest.

MARYLANDER FINED $200 IN RUM CASE

Laurel Man Charged With Possessing 240 Quarts, Is Sentenced.

CAUGHT AFTER PURSUIT

Herbert Leinn, of Laurel, Md., was fined $200 on charges of possession of intoxicating liquor with intent to sell and $5 on a charge of reckless driving yesterday by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Hyattsville Branch of Prince Georges County Police Court. He was charged with possession of 240 quarts of alleged liquor.

Leinn was arrested after an exciting chase on the icy Baltimore boulevard two weeks ago which did not end until after his tires had been shot off and his car was bumped by pursuing policemen. He was arrested by County Policeman Claude Reese and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown.

The policemen started pursuit of the car at Muirkirk and chased it to Bladensburg. Several times they tried to halt the car by driving alongside, but the driver refused to stop. Finally they shot the rear tires from his car, and even this failed to stop the car. At Bladensburg the police car rammed the rear of Leinn's car and caused it to skid around on the slippery road. Before he could get away they jumped on his running board.

Cronzi Helm, colored, who gave his address as the Washington cathedral and said that he was chauffeur for the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, was fined $25 on a charge of exceeding a speed of 40 miles. He was arrested by Policeman Reese.

Lewis Pollard, colored, of Washington, was fined $50 on a charge of having a smoke screen in his possession. The apparatus was not in place, but was in the rear of his car when he was arrested by Reese and Brown.

Carlisle, Pa., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Charles Albert Rhinehart, 53, of Hagerstown, Md., who has been in jail a longer time in the last twenty years than he has been free, is in jail again here today.

A Pennsylvania Railroad detective, who arrested Rhinehart in McConnellburg twenty years ago, on a charge of horse stealing, arrested him again last night at the railroad station as a suspicious character. Search of the man revealed, police said, a set of tools, mask and a revolver. A charge of carrying concealed weapons was made.

Rhinehart, police said, served five terms in various jails, the terms aggregating eighteen years since his arrest twenty years ago. Police records indicated he had been released last October from the Maryland Penitentiary at Baltimore.

RECLAIMED FORESTS URGED FOR VIRGINIA

CUT IN WASTE PLANNED

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Establishment of forests to supply the demands of woodworking industries in Virginia as a means of encouraging both industries and reforestation was advocated today before the Virginia Commercial Forestry Conference by Dr. J. Elton Lodewick, professor of wood technology at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Establishment of forests contiguous to Virginia industries would benefit the industrial, agricultural and economic development of the State, Dr. Lodewick declared, adding that forests are often retarded by absence of a market for their product.

"The foundation of a safe and sane forest policy for any region must be based in part, at least, upon the relation between supply and demand," he said. "It is obvious that there can be neither object nor profit in growing that for which there is no demand.

"The idea of local forests to support local industry is not new," said Dr. Lodewick. "It has been in successful operation in Massachusetts for many years, except that in the north each industry owns and manages enough timber land to assure it a continuous and adequate supply of raw material. The Halifax paper Co., of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., has arranged with farmers within a 25-mile radies to cultivate pine. This company hopes to continue operation indefinitely under this plan."

With proper attention to wood utilization and marketing of wood products, Virginia is destined to regain its position as one of the principal forest-producing States of the Union, Axel H. Oxholm, director of the national committee on wood utilization of the Department of Commerce, told the conference.

"If commercial forestry does not pay in Virginia it is the Virginian's own fault," he declared. "Climatic and soil conditions are better in Virginia than in many other forestry districts in the world, where commercial reforestation has been a success for years."

A coordination of the wood-using industries, with the sawmills as the center, is the answer to the waste that invariably follows wood production, said Mr. Oxholm. Today, he declared, progressive pulp manufacturers of Virginia are using sawmill waste as a raw material for the pulp and paper industry.

New Trial Sought In Sheriff Killing

Six Affidavits Filed, Asking New Hearing for Hagerstown Convicts.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 12.—Six affidavits have been filed in a petition asking for a new trial for Charles Lewis and Leslie Clark, both of whom were convicted of the murder of Deputy Sheriff Clyde L. Hauver, of Frederick. Lewis was found guilty of first degree murder and given a life term and Clark of second degree and sentenced to 15 years. The shooting took place during a raid on a moonshine still near Thurmont, Md., last July 31.

Hazel May Covlin, of this city, sister of Clark, gave the most important of the affidavits in which she says she did not tell the entire story of a conversation she had with her brother the day following the shooting, when she says she was advised not to do so by State's Attorney William Storm.

She says in her affidavit that her brother told her Lewis did the shooting because he had to do it as the officers were shooting at
